BODIES ARE SENT TO MEXICO CITY

Death of Last of Candidates Against Him Leaves Obregon a Clear Field for the Presidency.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5.—Gen. Arnulfo Gomez has joined in death his companion in the recent revolutionary movement, Gen. Francisco Serrano. Both Gomez and Serrano were candidates for the presidency. The presidential office announced today that Gomez had been captured and executed by a firing squad last night near Teocelo, State of Vera Cruz. Thus the attempt to overthrow the Calles government has virtually come to an end. With Gomez were executed his nephew Francisco Serrano. Later Gen. Adalberto Macias Meza Perez and Col. Salvatore Castano's were shot by a firing squad.

Minister of the Interior Alberto Pani has issued a statement today declaring the country is normal again and, "complete peace and tranquillity reigns in every state."

The death of the two presidential candidates now leaves Gen. Obregon, whose candidacy is supported by Calles, alone in the field.

Captured by Gen. Escobar.

Gomez had succeeded for more than a month in hiding in the mountains of Vera Cruz with a handful of followers. Gradually the forces under the Federal Gen. Escobar surrounded the remnants of Gomez's followers in a canyon in the Orizaba Mountains and the capture of the rebel leader was made by Escobar nimself.

The official statement says:

"Gen. Arnulfo Gomez was made prisoner last night personally by Gen. Escobar. With Arnulfo, his brother, Francisco Gomez Vizcarra was also taken prisoner. Vizcarra was one of the rebels accompanying Arnulfo. There are hopes of capturing soon the traitors Gens. Almada and Medina, who are still hidden in the mountains.

"The following also were made prisoners: Former Gen. Adalberto Macias, Col. Salvador Castanos and Maj. Francisco Meza Perez, who were ordered court-martialed.

Gen. Gomez Shot.

"Gen. Arnulfo Gomez and Vizcarra were shot near Teocelo, state of Vera Cruz, some hours after they were made prisoners. The bodies will arrive at Mexico City tomorrow."

The bodies arrived here tonight and will be turned over to relatives.

At 33 Gomez had been military commander of the Federal district of the States of Tamaulipas, Jalisco and Vera Cruz. He was candidate of the anti-re-electionist party for President (those opposed to Obregon's re-election to the presidency in 1928 as Calles' successor) and revolted Oct. 2. He fled from Mexico City, but the next day Serrano was caught and executed with 13 of his followers. Gomez fled into battle with about 1500 men to oppose an overwhelming force of Federals, Gomez was defeated in a six-hour fight in the mountains near Teocelo. He retreated with about half his force. Over 600 of them surrendered to the Federals a few hours later and Gomez went into hiding.

Early this week the authorities received information that Gomez was trying to get an airplane from Mexico to fly to the United States Monday Gen. Escobar found him at Barranca de Comalapa, a region honeycombed with caves. His following had been reduced to four men and he was taken without difficulty.

Shortly after midnight Escobar telegraphed to President Calles the news of the capture and asked for instructions. The President ordered an immediate courtmartial, and the executions followed.

STUDENTS ARRANGE 40 DUELS

BUDAPEST, Nov. 5.—No fewer than 40 duels have been arranged for the coming weeks. This follows the duels fought yesterday between Magyar and Christian students as an sequel to the recent university disorders.

These duels will have to be fought not between students attacked and their aggressors, but between the former and special policemen representing the Christian students' club.

JURY-FIXING NET ENSNARES BRAND NEW U. S. MARINE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. — A newly enlisted United States marine, who was all set to go to Haiti, will be a witness in the grand jury investigation of charges of jury tampering laid against Harry F. Sinclair and one of his most confidential agents, Henry Mason Day.

This marine is Douglas Catchim, until recently assistant manager of the Washington office of the Burns Detective Agency, whose detectives were engaged for days and nights in keeping under surveillance jurors in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy case in which a mistrial was ordered last Tuesday.

Catchim enlisted in the marines here on Oct. 28, the day the activities of the Government agents trailing the juror trailers began to become known. He was sent to the Hampton Roads naval base and just missed a naval transport which sailed for Port Au Prince on Nov. 1.

Girl Heard by Grand Jury.

Government agents trailed him to Norfolk and there served upon him a subpena for his appearance here Monday before the grand jury, which held an extraordinary session for two hours today to hear the testimony of a high school girl, a juror fond of horse racing and one of the October panel who just missed service on the oil jury.

A bit of confidential gossip led to the trail of Catchim, whose name was even unknown to the Federal agents working on the case. District Attorney Gordon received an anonymous communication about him from "a friend of a friend," and the machinery of Government was set into motion to locate and subpena him.

When Catchim goes before the grand jury he will be asked about a report that he told a friend that if he could get out of the country and remain out for sometime he would be "fixed" for the rest of his life. The inquisition also will go to what part, if any, he had in the shadowing of the jury.

Burns' Manager Subpenaed.

Charles Gramberry, office manager of the Burns agency here, who also has been summoned as a witness before the grand jury, said today that Catchim had worked in the local office up to a month ago, but had resigned then on the ground of ill health.

This bit of information which led to the service on Catchim is only a small part of that which has flowed into the District Attorney's office since the oil jury was discharged last Tuesday. Much of it comes by mail, but no little part has come in over the telephone wires.

All of the communications are anoymous and those sent through the mail are penned in printed form so that the senders may not be traced. Thus far, it was stated at the District Attorney's office, there has not been a single misleading tip.

Besides Catchim, William J. Burns himself is to appear before the grand jury Monday. Burns has notified District Attorney Gordon that all of the operatives employed to shadow the trial jury would report here when the Government wanted them.

The witnesses before the jury today were Josephine Hopkins, a high school student; Charles Holt, a member of the dismissed jury; and Lawrence G. Hoes, who was called on the October panel, but failed to qualify as a juror in the Fall-Sinclair case.

Miss Hopkins' name appeared in one of the confidential reports of the Burns men, reports which the Government charges were made to Day and to Sheldon Clark, an official of another of the Sinclair Oil Co.'s, who has promised to be here Tuesday for grand jury examination.

Member of Jury Heard.

The report on Miss Hopkins was that her automobile was seen following that of one of the jurors. She said she was unaware of being near a juror's car and apparently those conducting the grand jury investigation concluded that she had no connection with the case.

Holt, who concedes he is fond of following the race horses, said apparently an effort was being made to connect him up with Sinclair, but asserted that he never knew the oil man until this trial.

Hoes' statement was that two days before the oil trial started a

Bolivian, Alleged Slayer of Ex-President, Cries for Revenge and Declares to Last He Is Innocent.

By the Associated Press

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Nov. 5.—Alfredo Jauregui, chosen by lot from four men convicted of the murder ten years ago of former President Jose Manuel Pando, was executed today by a firing squad.

The young Bolivian, who has spent ten of the 28 years of his life in prison, was killed by eight bullets. His body was taken to a nearby cemetery for burial. His selection by lot to pay the penalty for the four was due to a Bolivian law which says that only one person may be executed in punishment for a crime.

Four Men Draw Lots.

The three convicted with Jauregui were his brother, Juan, who studied law in prison and acted eventually as attorney for the four; Simon Choque and Nestos Villegas. The four drew slips of paper from an urn in the Palace of Justice Oct. 25. Alfredo Jauregui, last to draw, got the fatal black slip. The daughters of the murdered President witnessed the drawing and a great crowd waited outside the palace for news of the lottery.

The sentence was read to Jauregui yesterday. While it was being read an airplane circled overhead and the prisoner apparently forgot his fate for a short time as he looked up at the machine.

Because the army refused to lend soldiers to the task, eight policemen were assigned to execute the youthful slayer.

As he alighted from the automobile in the air field among snow-clad mountains, where the execution took place, planes were droning overhead. Jauregui embraced the Associated Press correspondent, asking him to inform the world that he was innocent. He also had kind words for the Jesuit and Franciscan brothers who consoled him.

When his feet were bound together and in full view of a great throng of persons who had taken a day off, he said: "I am speaking against my executioners, against the Judas who has brought me here."

In poetic phrases he read a speech denouncing Judge Tamayo, who sentenced him. He called on God to witness his innocence and then on the eminent spirt of Gen. Pando to be witness, to say the word saving him from death and exonerating him from the charges.

Condemned Man Speaks.

He then again invoked the Deity to punish his executioners by sacrificing them to the wild animals, as was done in ancient Rome. The public prosecutor cut him short, but Jauregui continued to speak with the apparent approval of the multitude.

The firing squad took up its position. The Prosecutor asked: "Convict Jauregui, have you for the last time in the name of the law any revelation to make?"

Almost violently Jauregui shouted: "No, I have nothing to confess, for I am innocent."

Juan Jauregui and the other convicts whom the lottery had spared the fate of Alfredo threw themselves upon the hard soil, clamoring for divine providence. His life only a matter of minutes, Alfredo exclaimed: "I am leaving this infampus world with a smile." His brother Juan shouted to him: "Laugh, brother, laugh. The world is just and sure of your innocence."

Tries to Remove Blindfold.

Alfredo was bandaged with a black handkerchief and seated in a wooden chair. The priest offered him the crucifix, the police officer unsheathed his sword ready to give the command to fire. As he was counting, the condemned man tried to tear the handkerchief from his eyes, but was prevented by his executioners.

"Ten,—Fire!"

The rifles sounded and Alfredo Jauregui fell. The throng broke through the lines to view the body, which lay for a long time until picked up by Alfredo's relatives, to be taken to the cemetery for burial.

The entire garrison which was on duty at the execution ground to prevent disorders withdrew. The people seemed deeply impressed.

TO REPLACE GERMAN STATUE

War College Took Down Image of Frederick the Great in War Days.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—World War enmities retired another step into the past today when it was disclosed that the War Department was considering restoration of the statute of Frederick the Great of Prussia to the place it formerly occupied in front of the Army War College Building here.

The statue was donated by the German Government. Just before the United States entered the war, it was taken down and stored in the basemnt of the War College to protect it from vandalism.

LACK OF OXYGEN KILLED CAPT. GRAY AT 8-MILE HEIGHT

BAROGRAPH READING SETS NEW RECORD

Effort Will Be Made to Award Posthumous Honor by Making Altitude Mark Official.

While other airmen have striven to span the oceans, Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray's ambition was to reach new heights in the air. As some of them met death in the water, so Capt. Gray lost his life in the far spaces beyond earth—suffocated for lack of oxygen.

The body of Capt. Gray, who was engineering officer at Scott Field, and who made a balloon ascent Friday afternoon in his third endeavor to break the world's official altitude record of 39,500 feet, was found early yesterday in the basket of his balloon, in a treetop near Sparta, Tenn.

His supply of oxygen, which had been estimated as sufficient for an hour and a half, had become exhausted while he was at a lofty altitude. The supposition, as told in dispatches, that Capt. Gray accidentally cut a rubber tube supplying him with oxygen while using his knife to hack away objects of ballast, was not upheld by the investigation made by Lieut. Howard Couch of Scott Field, after his arrival at Sparta last evening.

Had Broken Height Record.

He had ascended, it appeared, to a point far beyond the record altitude, and had surpassed his own achievement of last May, when he rose to 42,470 feet, more than 8 miles above the earth. That record although attested by sealed instruments and not doubted, was disallowed by the Federation International Aeronatique because Capt. Gray had been compelled to descend with a parachute.

Determined, on this flight, to remain with the balloon and attain a record which would gain official acceptance, he continued his conscious ascent, as shown by his log, to a height of 40,000 feet, at which he appears to have exhausted his supply of sand ballast. With the entry, "40,000, last sandbags," the log ends, and it remains for the barograph, the instrument registering atmospheric pressure and thus showing height attained, to tell how much farther he went.

Two barographs taken from the balloon basket with Capt. Gray's body were examined yesterday by Lieut. Bryan, sent from Scott Field in an airplane to the Tennessee town, and were found to register altitudes between 43,000 and 44,000 feet. The instruments will be sent to Washington for official inspection. Whether the pilot was alive at the highest altitude reached, it is impossible to judge.

Did Not Have Enough Oxygen.

Lieut. Couch, speaking last night by long-distance telephone from Sparta, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"There is no indication of an accident, such as was suggested in dispatches from here. Capt. Gray simply used up his supply of oxygen. Evidently he did not carry as much oxygen as proved to be needed. He took three cylinders of oxygen, 200 cubic inches in each, or 600 in all, under 1800 pounds pressure. This amount of oxygen should supply one man for about an hour and a half.

"Each of the three cylinders had a valve leading into the header line, from which the supply flowed into Capt. Gray's helmet. The cylinders were so arranged that each, when emptied, could be cut loose, after turning off the valve, and would descend with a small parachute.

"Capt. Gray had cut away one of the three cylinders, by slashing the tube and string holding it. He had turned off the valve before doing so, and thus his supply of oxygen was not affected. It is not true that he cut any vital part of his apparatus. The oxygen in the two remaining cylinders was exhausted. There was a gauge to show him the amount of oxygen on hand, but he may have overlooked this until it was too late to descend while conscious. When the supply was exhausted, at the lofty altitude he reached, a man would 'go out' right away."

Entry Shows 40,000 Feet.

The entry showing ascent to an altitude of 40,000 feet was made probably more than an hour after Capt. Gray's balloon had risen from the field near Belleville. The time

MRS. COOLIDGE FAVORS RED IN HER FALL ATTIRE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Coolidge has started a vogue for red which promises to grow as the season advances. She has for several months shown her fancy for a red hat and red shoes, and carrying a red bag of fancy design, made by veterans at Walter Reed Hospital.

At the wedding of Miss Barbara Ligh and David Charles Hayes on Wednesday she appeared in an all-red ensemble. The gown of claret red satin showed several ultra features such as a cluster of close shirrings at the lower edge of the blouse, which was cut in surplice effect, and just below it another cluster of shirrings which gave quite a full effect to the front of the skirt. A rose platlin several inches deep crossed the hemline of the skirt at the front and the tightly fitted sleeves showed draped cuffs.

Her hat was red and wide of brim, and her shoes, showing several straps, were of black satin. A handsome black fox and a beaded bag mounted in silver finished her costume.

135 WOMEN KILLED IN BUILDING CRASH

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 5.—Trapped within falling walls and crushed by debris and splintered beams, 135 of more than 500 women and children in a three-story building perished in the native quarter of Shanghai when the structure collapsed today. At least 200 more were seriously injured.

The disaster came in the midst of a meeting held on the third floor of a picture palace in the chapel district where women textile workers had gathered to form a new labor union. A local labor leader, Yen Hsin, who was attending the meeting, is the only man known to have been killed.

The workers, after discussing various problems of the new organization, had just elected their officers and were standing up to applaud them when the floor beneath their feet began to sway.

Bearing its burden of 500 or so human beings, the floor gave way and crashed down on the second floor of the structure. This floor in turn yielded under the extra strain and collapsed while the walls on every side tumbled in, showering down bricks and splintered timbers, burying the victims underneath.

As soon as word of the disaster was received, Chinese troops surrounded the area and with policemen went to work extricating the dead and injured.

CREST OF FLOOD SWEEPS DOWN ON INDUSTRIAL CITIES OF NEW ENGLAND

MORE THAN 100 LOST THEIR LIVES

Army Planes Carry Aid—Shortage of Food in Stricken Area — Boston Rations Milk.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Cold and hunger added to the sufferings tonight of those driven from home by one of the most disastrous floods in the history of New England.

Cold and some snow succeeded the hurricane accompanied by nearly 36 hours of rain that caused the flood.

More than 100 persons are known to have lost their lives in the floods in the last three days. Of these 54 have been identified. Several persons have been reported as missing and there are reports of many other deaths which have not been confirmed because of the shattering of communication lines. Rumors of loss of life running up to 200 in Montpelier, Vt., were dispelled when communication with the Vermont capital was restored after 48 hours and it was learned that there had been only one drowning there.

Mill Cities Menaced.

The crest of the flood had passed from the Vermont mountains tonight and was moving upon the great industrial centers of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Both the Connecticut and the Merrimac Rivers were at danger height and still rising.

In the Connecticut Valley the cities of Springfield, Holyoke, Northampton and other mill centers are threatened with heavy damage. In the Merrimac Valley the flood menaced Concord, Manchester and Nashua, N. H., and Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill, Mass. Railroad and highway communication between Concord and Manchester were cut off.

Army airplanes were sent into the flooded area by order of President Coolidge and planes sent out by newspapers and picture services also were in the air. Every effort was being made to reach the numerous other places cut off from wire service. Moveable radio stations proceeded toward the distressed sections in the hope of being able to send out news of the situation otherwise unobtainable.

Washouts and landslides had left the railroads in a state of confusion which cannot be straightened out for several days and in some cases weeks. A roundabout connection to Albany and the west was established but New England was still cut off from Canada and there was virtually no train service in Vermont and Northern New Hampshire. The Central Vermont railway has lost 13 bridges.

Hundreds of families were removed from their homes as flood waters surrounded them today in many sections which had escaped yesterday.

Milk Rationed in Boston.

The stopping of train service from Vermont and New York State curtailed the milk supply of Boston and other large cities. With only a limited amount of milk available authorities authorized its distribution only to families in which there are children. Other perishable food supplies were cut off by enforced railroad embargoes.

Heavy loss was entailed by the shutting down of many factories and mills in the river cities. Many places remained without electric light or power.

At Springfield, Mass., West Springfield and Agawam 10,000 persons were routed from their homes tonight by the floods. Armed guards in rowboats patrolled the stricken neighborhoods.

West Springfield dike burst, releasing flood waters into the township. Five square miles of Chicopee was reported inundated. Nearly 1500 men were engaged in a night struggle piling sandbags to save the north end of this city. Refugees began pouring into the city from the surrounding country and it was found necessary to take over the State Armory to house them.

Shortage of food and of medical

REED LAYS PLANS FOR EXCLUSION OF VARE AND SMITH

They Will Be Challenged if They Attempt to Take the Oath, Missouri Senator Declares.

HE WILL PROMOTE BIGGER BARGE LINE

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Questioned by more than a score of correspondents, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri today outlined his general program for the coming session of Congress. He refused to discuss his candidacy for the presidency, but developed in detail the measures and policies he intended to advocate.

Senator Reed's program, as elicited today, may be summarized as follows:

1. Senators-elect Smith and Vare will be challenged if they attempt to take the oath of office. Before Congress convenes, the Reed slush fund committee will draw up a plan of action. Informal conferences will be held next week.

2. Congress must enact comprehensive legislation to deal with flood control on the Mississippi River as a national problem. Navigation, water-power development, irrigation and reclamation must be given due consideration in all flood control legislation.

3. Increased appropriations for the Inland Waterways Corporation, which operates the Government owned barge lines, must be forthcoming. The present equipment should be doubled and the service extended on the Missouri and Ohio Rivers.

4. Aid must be given to the farmers, but not by the McNary-Haugen bill, so long as it contains the equalization fee, which is "neither constitutional nor right." To lessen the burden on the farmer, Congress should reduce the tariff. If the tariff cannot be reduced, study should be given the plan to issue to the farmer certificates of foreign sale permitting him to import foreign goods, duty free, in proportion to the amount of his own sales abroad. These certificates would be negotiable.

Thrusts at Hoover.

Speaking on the agricultural problem, Senator Reed repeated his often expressed denunciation of war-time price fixing of agricultural products, under Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, then food administrator, and now, like Reed, a possible candidate for President.

Carefully avoiding the use of Hoover's name, Reed placed upon the former food administrator the responsibility for refusing to allow the farmers to sell at war-time prices. This was done, the Senator said, by coercive measures without legal authority.

Relative to the Smith-Vare contest, which will engage the Senate at the outset of the coming session, Reed said that he did not think the committee would hold any hearings until before Congress convened.

"There has been an attempt to throw a cloud on the authority of the committee, and while I have no doubt that the committee exists and has existed since its creation, I think personally that it would be better to wait until the Senate convenes before we take any further action," the Senator said. "A committee can't do very much when its authority is challenged, but I believe the situation will be clarified very soon after the Senate meets."

To Challenge Smith and Vare.

Asked what would happen if Senators-elect Vare and Smith advance to the dais to take the oath of office, Senator Reed said that their right to take the oath would be immediately challenged. He declined to discuss who would do the challenging.

"The situation is one that cannot be anticipated," Reed said. "We don't know what form the problem will take."

"Have you changed your view as to whether they should be seated?" he was asked.

"Not a particle," was the reply.

Reed welcomed the request for his views on the necessity of flood control.

"The Federal Government must handle this problem in a big way," he declared. "Flood prevention is a national problem. For years the Government has claimed jurisdiction over the rivers and this has carried with it the duty to protect the people from floods. We are not violating any precedent when we consider it as a national problem.

"Years ago the Senate passed a bill to harness the Mississippi River from the gulf to the mountains. At the time, perhaps, that bill was too ambitious. The flood last summer has taught us the necessity of complete flood control, and with that we must consider the other phases of the problem. We must not only stop floods. We must make the rivers navigable, harness it, develop the water power and provide for the irrigation of arid Western lands.

"Here is a situation where the Federal Government can treat its resources with business efficiency. No great master of industry would allow these waters to be neglected.

For a Bigger Barge Line.

"The Inland Waterways Corporation has already shown one way by which the river can be used. Under the most trying conditions the Government has put the steamboat back on the river. The barge lines can't begin to haul the freight that is now offered them and they need more than double their present equipment. I will strenuously advocate increased appropriations for this equipment.

"Even now the Missouri River is not used. In the old days, steamboats used to go as far as Fort Benton, Mont. With the expenditure of a few million dollars the Missouri could be made navigable and this would vastly increase the traffic for the existing barge lines."

"Do you favor the continuance of Government operation of these barge lines?" he was asked.

"Absolutely, until they can be made real paying propositions," Reed answered. "I am in favor of extending the service. They can be made so profitable that when they are sold the Government can make a good bargain, and people of the Middle West can get the benefit of low freight rates.

"With the barge lines developed I believe that they can haul freight at 50 per cent of the present railroad rates. They do it now at 80 per cent of the rail rates. That price can be cut down.

"The barge lines have been operating under a tremendous handicap. In the first place they had to charge off heavy depreciation. They did not obtain co-operation from the railroads. Finally, the Interstate Commerce Commission tardily and lazily said that the railroads should make joint rates with the barge lines, but did not lay down the rates. These were left to negotiation. With these joint rates established, people 200, 300 and 400 miles from the river will get the benefit of the lower water transportation rates.

"By providing cheap transportation by waterways, we can help the farmer materially. We will also help the other people in the Mississippi Valley, the consumers who will pay less for the products and the manufacturers who will be able to compete with the eastern and western seaboard manufacturers who were greatly benefited by the Panama Canal.

His Farm Relief Plan.

"There is another way by which we can help the farmer. We have a law which forces the farmer to sell his goods at European prices When the farmer buys European goods at European prices he is met in the United States by a revenue collector who forces him to pay a great tax on what he has bought. The tariff game was a robber game at the start and if it wasn't at the start, it is now.

"We should go after the tariff If we can't do that, I dare some of the good men who are so deeply concerned with the plight of the farmer to come out with the plan which would give the farmer credit for the goods he has had to sell at European prices. Let us study the plan to issue to the farmer certificates of sale for the goods he has had to sell abroad, and let him bring into the United States, duty free, European goods that he bought with the money obtained from his sales. If he doesn't want to bring these goods in, let him sell the certificate to men who do want to import European goods

"The farmer has something coming to him. The United States Grain Export Corporation took at least $70,000,000 from him during the war. He is certainly entitled to that much."

Hoover and Price-Fixing.

A correspondent asked Reed for his views on the Garfield correspondence with the Kansas City Star, to the effect that a Government commission and not Herbert Hoover had set the wartime prices for farm products.

Reed replied that he had not had an opportunity to refresh his memory by looking up the records of incidents that occurred 10 years ago, but that his recollection was that Hoover had accepted the recommendations of a commission appointed to look into the matter of farm prices.

MEXICAN CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT DIES BEFORE FIRING SQUAD

GEN. ARNULFO GOMEZ.

FALL IS BETTER, DOCTOR EXPECTS HIM TO RECOVER

Former Interior Secretary, 66, Suffering From Congestion of Lungs, Able to Take Nourishment.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Having taken nourishment for the first time in many hours, Albert B. Fall was resting comfortably tonight. His physician, Dr. James J. Kilroy, said that he expected Fall gradually to regain strength unless complications set in. "He is doing nicely," said Dr. Kilroy, upon leaving the hotel room, where the former Interior Secretary has been kept to his bed since early yesterday. Fall has been suffering from throat trouble complicated recently by congestion of the lungs.

Fall's resistance is declared to have been weakened by worries over court procedure against him and Harry F. Sinclair, which recently ended in a mistrial.

"He weathered a storm somewhat like this before, however," said Dr. Kilroy today, "and so I think he may recover."

Mark B. Thompson, of Fall's counsel, said encouragement lay in the fact pneumonia had not set in.

Mrs. Fall and two daughters are nursing the 66-year-old former Cabinet member. A leading part in the nursing is being taken by Mrs. C. C. Chase, who took care of her father under a similar attack about a year ago.

stranger called at his home to ask questions concerning his personal affairs. This stranger told an aunt that he was looking for a man who had been left a legacy in St. Louis. When the aunt became inquisitive, Hoes said, the stranger left suddenly, explaining that he must return to the Mayflower Hotel to put in a long-distance telephone call.

Investigation at the Mayflower disclosed that no one had been listed there under the name the man had given. The matter was brought to the attention of counsel for Albert B. Fall, who dismissed the subject by saying the stranger undoubtedly had been acting under the orders of the Department of Justice.

Of another juror this appears: "As a boy he was pretty wild, drinking and running around with a rather tough crowd. He is quieted down a little now, but is still a sport."

One of the oldest members of the jury was referred to as one who "likes to mingle and carry on with the young folks," and as "an old Washington man who is of good-natured disposition and holds no grudge against anybody."

One of the women jurors was reported to be a "Christian woman, but not strictly so," while of the other woman there was a report from her employer that she was "broad-minded" and "would give anyone a square deal."

A transcript of what appeared to be preliminary reports by the Burns operatives on the 12 members of the jury was made public today at the District Attorney's office. Copies of these and all of the other reports seized in the raid on the detectives' headquarters at the Wardman Park Hotel were furnished today to George P. Hoover of counsel for Sinclair, at his demand.

Odd Descriptions of Jurors.

Some odd descriptions of the jurors were contained in the preliminary reports. One juror was reported to be: "A hale fellow, well met; well liked; easily termed a sporting man."

"He is quite a sport," runs the report on another. "Will go to the races whenever he can do it. Takes a drink and will take a chance on any kind of a bet."

Another was "rated as a very fine man; quiet, conservative and fair-minded."

"A big, fat, lazy chap, who takes the easy side of life and loves to fish, does a lot of loose talking and cursing and has no particular political or religious affiliations,' was the report on another juror. It added: "He takes no pride in his personal appearance."

Capt. Gray Reached Height Never Before Attained by Man, Though Unofficially

Denied Recognition on Technicality After Ascent of More Than Eight Miles in Free Balloon at Scott Field.

ALTHOUGH Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray, the Scott Field army officer who lost his life Friday in his third attempt to establish a balloon altitude record, lacked the finely-drawn, technical recognition of his mark, he ascended, on is second flight, higher than man ever had ascended.

He rose with his free balloon for 42,470 feet, more than eight miles, then brought it back to within 8000 feet of the earth only to find it was falling so fast as to imperil his life. He jumped in a parachute. His sealed records came down with his balloon safely, but the Federation Aeronatique Internationale rule his record out because his landing had not been in the balloon.

In vain were motion pictures submitted to show that he left the balloon while it was descending and that he could not have left it upon ascent. Officially, the record of Lieut. John A. Macready of the Army Air Corps, still stands at 38,704 feet, made in an airplane. The official balloon altitude record has stood at 35,433 feet, made by two Germans—Suring and Berson.

Gray Began Early This Year.

Capt. Gray began his dogged pursuit of the record early this year. On his first flight from Scott Field on March 9 he went up 27,000 feet and became unconscious, probably as much from exertion as from any atmospheric condition or any failure of his supply of oxygen.

His basket carried as ballast about two tons of sand. During his ascen he slit open with a knife the bags containing the sand and hoisted the two tons over the side, all within two hours. He was impeded by layers of clothing and his fur-lined leather flying suit. The strain was too much and he lost consciousness.

When he recovered, his bag was falling. He got it within control and brought it softly to earth in a field near Ashley, Ill., 50 miles from his starting point. Escort planes landed quickly, but a farmer was the first to reach the basket. One of the airplane officers shouted: "There's a man in there."

"And he's badly hurt—no dead," the farmer replied.

Capt. Gray opened his eyes. He said he was merely resting.

Second Attempt May 4.

The second flight was undertaken from Scott Field on May 4. A means of releasing sand through the bottom of the ballast bags was devised to relieve the labor of cutting the heavy coverings with a knife, which had soon dulled. Again Capt. Gray was thwarted with success almost within his grasp. He ascended to the 42,470 mark, into 70-degree-below-zero cold, safely and retained consciousness. He then began his descent, the record safely in his sealed barograph.

All went well with the bag and the Captain until he observed that the rate of speed in falling was sure to bring him down with a tremendous life-imperiling bump. He tried in vain to check the speed and then adopted his last recourse —over the side with his parachute. He came down safely and his balloon settled not far away near the town of Golden Gate, Ill., which is near the Indian State line. For several months he clung to the hope that the motion picture records would bring recognition of his mark, but eventually there came the word "disallowed,' and he set to work to prepare for the flight which ended in his death Friday.

Leaves Widow, Three Sons.

Capt. Gray was 38 years old, and lived with his wife and three sons at 118 Wabash avenue, Belleville. He was born in Pasco, Wash., and his father, Capt. W. P. Gray, a Columbia River steamboat pilot, now lives at Walla Walla. The father is 82 years old, and in poor health, and a dispatch says he has not been told of Capt. Gray's death. His father, W. H. Gray, was a member of the Marcus Whitman missionary party, and was killed by Indians. Capt. Gray's first military service was in the Idaho National Guard.

Capt. Gray was not a balloonist by chance, but by choice. A balloon flight instructor in 1921 at Ross Field, near Los Angeles, he later qualified as both airplane pilot and observer, but he liked the lighter-than-air work. He felt that high altitude records would eventually be held by lighter-than-air craft, and it was a bitter disappointment to him that his record mark of 42,470 feet, the highest any man has ever been, was not allowed to stand because, in descending, he had to leave the bag.

Rose From the Ranks.

Gray worked his way up from the army ranks. He enlisted in 1915 in the Medical Corps and the following year was with Pershing's punitive expedition in Mexico. He had meanwhile transferred to the Quartermaster's Corps. He acted as master of a truck train for months in Mexico. Picked as one of the non-commissioned men deserving of promotion, Gray was sent to the Parkard automobile factory for special study after the Mexican expedition. He took the examination for Quartermaster Sergeant, senior grade, engineer of motor transport, the highest non-commissioned grade in the army, a few weeks later, and passed.

He was serving in Honolulu in 1917 when the United States declared war on Germany. He had already passed an examination for Second Lieutenant, and within two months was commissioned. He asked immediate assignment to aviation, but was retained in the infantry, and ordered to France. On active service abroad he was made a temporary Captain, this rank becoming permanent in 1920, the same year that his long-desired transfer to the aviation section was effected.

In the aviation section he rose rapidly, qualifying first as a balloonist, then as a flier. He had been at Scott Field four years. He was the station's executive engineering officer—in charge of aeronautical development.

In 1926 he won second place in the international balloon race that started from Antwerp.

of his start was 2:24 p. m. and pursuing airplane observers last saw the balloon over Eldorado, Ill., where it passed above the clouds at an estimated altitude of 25,000 feet. The last time shown on an entry in Capt. Gray's log was 1:21 p. m., when he recorded a height of 30,000 feet. Entries of 32,000, 34,000, 36,000, 39,000 and finally 40,000 feet followed with no time recorded.

"Sun is bright," said the last entry but one, made at 39,000 feet. Thus it appears that, high above the clouds and in the afternoon sunlight, death came to the intrepid balloonist, whose motto, like that of Longfellow's mountain-scaling youth was "Excelsior"—Higher.

Drifting into the dusk, the balloon came down Friday evening over a hillside farm in the Cumberland Mountains of Tennessee. William Goddard, a farmer, saw the balloon at 5:15 p. m., and tried to catch the dangling rope. Vin Sparkman, a neighbor, caught the rope nearly an hour later, and tied it to an oak tree. The bag settled down over the tree. Eph Morris, climbing the tree yesterday morning, found Capt. Gray's body in the basket.

The body was taken to Sparta, and a telephone message to Nashville connected the discovery with the search then being made for the missing balloonist.

The balloon had gone nearly 310 miles from its starting place. The town of Sparta is about 80 miles east of Nashville. As the time of the flight was little more than two and on-half hours, the remarkable velocity of about 120 mile san hour, or two miles a minute, is indicated.

The body was found in a sitting position, the head leaning against one of the oxygen receptacles. Physicians said there were no indication of any external cause of death, the aeronaut's body being without bruises.

Country Too Rough to Land.

Because of the rough character of the country, landing in a balloon would hardly have been feasible, and Col. Paegelow, commandant of Scott Field, believes that if Capt. Gray had lived, he would have felt obliged to reach the ground by parachute, as he did on his previous high flight. This might have caused his record to be rejected by the International Federation authorities, as before.

Whatever Capt. Gray's barograph may show under official examination, Col. Paegelow thinks it unlikely that the record made on Friday's flight will be accepted officially as establishing the highest altitude reached by man.

"Because he did not live to complete the undertaking," the commandant said, "he will not receive the credit officially, but we may be sure that he will be honored, and the memory of his achievement will be preserved."

A Washington dispatch, however, says that the National Aeronautic Association will endeavor to give Capt. Gray official credit for his record, if it is found to establish a new altitude mark.

Of the four trailing airplanes, two landed at Henderson, Ky., and two at Madisonville, Ky., all about dusk. The pilots yesterday started, on orders from Scott Field, for Sparta, to take charge of Capt. Gray's body, and of the balloon. Only one of the four pilots found it possible to make a landing in the rough country near Sparta. He was Sergt. Samson, who was accompanied by Lieut. Bryan.

Lieut. Bryan took charge of the body and of the balloon and equipment. It was decided that the funeral would be held in Washington, and that the body should not be returned to Scott Field. Lieut. Couch, a close friend of Capt. Gray, was sent from Scott field to accompany the body from Tennessee to Washington. He took a uniform for the body and a flag for the casket. A representative of Major-General Patrick, chief of the air service, will meet the body at Washington.

News of her husband's death was taken to Mrs. Gray at her home in Belleville yesterday morning by Mrs. Paegelow, wife of the commandant, and Mrs. K. S. Axtater, wife of a brother officer. This was after reports, which at first reached Col. Paegelow in inconclusive form, had been verified by dispatches from Sparta and Nashville.

Mrs. Gray will leave today, accompanied by Mrs. Axtater, to arrive in Washington at about the same time as her husband's body. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery. The officer, who was 38 years old, is survived also by three young sons.

The flyers who were unable to land in the country near Sparta flew west to Nashville, landed there and were ordered back to Scott Field.

Had Heard Radio Music.

A radio set was included in the equipment of Capt. Gray's balloon, and in the early stages of his ascent he picked up several stations, as shown by his log. The last station shown in his log as being picked up was WFIW, at the altitude of 32,000 feet. The next entry, at 34,000 feet, said "Off antenna, no more music for me."

Entries in the log showed that temperatures were as low as 40 degrees below zero, but at the highest altitude shown the temperature was somewhat less severe, being recorded as "minus 28."

The first entries, it was noticed, were in a small and even handwriting. The later notations were in large and uneven letters.

Balloon Made Thrilling Getaway in Brisk Wind.

CAPT. GRAY made an exciting getaway from Scott Field Friday at 2:24 p. m., because of a brisk, accelerating wind.

Capt. Gray was dressed upon departure in the leather suit worn by Lieut. John A. Macready when he set the world's official airplane record of 38,704 feet in January, 1926. Under it Capt. Gray wore a full army uniform, a knitted sweater and breeches, wool underclothing and four pairs of socks. His feet were encased in fur lined moccasins and on his head he wore a combination helmet and mask to which he could fit his oxygen apparatus.

The basket itself was weighted with 2000 pounds of sand. It was equipped with recording barographs placed there by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert who witnessed the takeoff as official representative of the National Aeronautic Association. In the basket also was a radio set, an instrument [illegible] and a series of knobs by which Gray was to release his ballast.

Two improvements were made in the helmet Capt. Gray wore today over the one he used on previous altitude flights. The high altitude induced much moisture from the pilot's body to accumulate on the goggles built into the helmet on the other trip, so that vision was obscured. To overcome this, the new helmet was provided with an electric coil around the glasses, supplied with current from a storage battery in the basket. The goggles were coated with [illegible] as a further precaution against moisture. On the May flight the helmet had a zipper in back of steel, so that the Captain could dispense with it until he rose high. However, he found that in the upper air levels the intense cold caused the metal to make his head extremely uncomfortable. The zipper was eliminated this time.

The oxygen supply tank was warmed with an electric coil [illegible] by the same battery. The [illegible] was equipped with a [illegible] valves to be operated by the pilot which would furnish the appropriate amount of oxygen needed to sustain life in the succeeding lower levels.

Will Try to Give Height Data Posthumously to Capt. Gray.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The National Aeronautic Association plans to examine the barograph and other instruments of the balloon in which the late Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray, Army aviator, died near Sparta, Tenn., to determine if he broke the world's free balloon altitude record.

Porter Adams, the association president, said tonight the organization would do everything possible to award the aviator posthumous credit for the record if the instruments show definitely that previous altitude mark was eclipsed.

SOUVENIRS IN UNKNOWN'S TOMB

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Daily Mail dispatch reveals that "secretly and with fitting reverence" the unknown soldier's tomb in Westminster Abbey has been opened and many souvenirs of remembrance, which were deposited on the grave by sorrowing parents, widows, sweethearts and others, have been replaced inside the tomb.

These souvenirs included valuable trinkets, gold and silver medals and crucifixes; they were placed on the slab of the tomb as tributes to those whose fate has never been known. They have been under the care of the dean's verger, but the problem of their final disposition arose, and it was decided to bury them with the body. Accordingly some stones at the side of the tomb were removed and the tributes placed within. Since then tributes are again accumulating and it is expected that at the future adte a similar procedure will be adopted.

BONDSMAN SLAIN IN HIS HOME IN WIFE'S PRESENCE

Vincent Vitale, 37, Victim of Slayer Who Escaped After Rushing Into House and Firing Three Shots.

POLICE HUNT FOR GROCERY OWNER

Vincenzo Moncado, Accused of Crime by Widow, Had Beaten Mrs. Moncado Previously.

Vincent Vitale, 37 years old, a professional bondsman, was shot to death in his home, 1319 Blair avenue, at 2 p. m. yesterday. On the statement of his widow, Mrs. Fora Vitale, that Vincenzo Moncado of 1510 Wash street, a grocer, had slain her husband, police last night were searching for Moncado.

According to the widow's story, Moncado dashed into their home, met Vitale in the hallway and after remarking, "your brother is no good," fired with a revolver and then escaped. Vitale was shot in the right breast, right side of the neck and left shoulder. He died without making a statement.

Neighbors summoned to the Carr street station in the police investigation said there had been bad blood between Moncado and the Vitale family because the latter took the side of Mrs. Moncado in her frequent quarrels with her husband. Vitale's brother, Nick, harbored Mrs. Moncado when she left Moncado after quarrels, police were informed. They took this to explain the remark, "Your brother is no good."

Was on Bond of Slayer's Wife.

Police also were trying to establish a connection between the slaying and a recent criminal case in which Mrs. Moncado was acquitted of the killing of a Negro woman. Vitale, police said, had signed a bond for Mrs. Moncado in a previous liquor case, but was not on her bond in the murder case. An effort was made to learn of bad feeling between Vitale and Moncado following Vitale's failure to sign the woman's bond in the murder case.

Moncado's sister-in-law, Mrs. Marie Colombo, of 1022 North Fourteenth street, one of the persons questioned by police, said Moncado apparently had been drinking and was on one of his periodical rampages yesterday.

"He came into my house at 1 o'clock and looked wild-eyed because he had been drinking," police quoted her as saying. "He held his hand to his pocket as if he had a revolver there. I tried to quiet him and gave him a drink of water. He left and said he would come back tomorrow."

Beat Mrs. Moncado First.

A few minutes before the shooting police got a call from Mrs. Moncado at her home. She said her husband had been beating her with a pistol and appealed for help. Before police reached the home, Moncado had fled. It was assumed he went to the Vitale home a few blocks away.

The Moncados live at 1305 Carr street. Mrs. Moncado was acquitted of the charge of killing the Negro woman when she pleaded she shot only after the Negro had rushed at her with a knife.

Neighbors told police that Moncado was eccentric, quarreled often with his wife and went on a rampage at intervals.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Death today ended the career of 50 years in journalism of Henry Lowenthal, 74 years old, manager of the business news department of the New York Times and a former managing editor of that newspaper.

Mr. Loewenthal's first job after college was with the New York Tribune, where he formed a close friendship with Daniel Frohman that lasted all his life. Successively then, he was reporter on the Times, city editor of the New York American and managing editor of Munsey's New York Daily News from 1904 to 1908 he was general manager of the Los Angeles Examiner. Since 1914 he had been with the New York Times. A few days before his death Mr. Loewenthal joined the Roman Catholic church, of which his widow is a member.

Annual Chrysanthemum Show at Shaw's Garden

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

The peaceful sunlight of August afternoons, the cool brilliance of the summer moon and the ruddy splendor of last month's hazy sunsets have not vanished from the earth. Nature has stored them in chrysanthemums, and lavishly have they been poured out in the annual Chrysanthemum Show, which opens today at Shaw's Garden.

For at least three weeks of dull November this nature's hoard will brighten the Floral Display House, and St. Louisans may see plenty of natural color without the expense of a Mediterranean tour, or even the risk of a head cold, which sometimes mars too intimate contact with county woods in autumn.

To shift the metaphor to another motive for trips to Europe—or the county—they may see at Shaw's Garden the color of champagne in a lordly flower, the shadow-pale yellow Turners which are massed for the center of the display. Rich Ports and clarets glint and darken in varieties inadequately called "pink." Or, if they prefer a deeper gold, they may find an excellent yellow Chartreuse, so far as color goes, in more than one exhibit, for many of these varieties look so sunkissed one suspects them of being solid vitamin.

Turners Chief Variety.

But these flowers thrive on water, and they can claim attention without benefit of extraneous considerations, by right of their own magnificence. Chief among them are the Turners, white, yellow of champagne delicacy, and pink which is nearer mauve.

These make up the central beds, one circular and two triangular, of the exquisite garden in which this year's show has been arranged. Bush varieties of the dainty "caprice," white, yellow, bronze and pink, surround these taller single-stem queens of autumn, and snake's beard and asparagus fern tastefully conceal the mechanics of display. It is more like a quiet old garden than a show.

Perhaps the most striking of all the 200 varieties is the "Mrs. Lloyd George." Its blood-red petals curl up shaggily so that the under-side shows bright bronze in startling contrast. The effect on the whole, is pleasing, but so unusual it might almost be used to frighten babies.

Beside them the fluffy white and golden-hearted "Mrs. Woodrow Wilson" provides another contrast. This huge blossom has a definite resemblance to daisies, a characteristic it seems to have retained from the simple and daisy-like original chrysanthemus indicum of the Orient. And near these flowrs, each several inches in diameter, is a dime-size "midget" pompon.

Remarkable Japanese Pompon.

A most remarkable flower in the feathery fineness of its petals is a yellow Japanese pompon, as fuzzy as the artificial poms which appear on many women's hats this fall. ttractive in color are the deep pink "cosmos" varieties which are displayed in numbers along the walls of this temporary "mum" garden.

This variety also is displayed overhead in baskets suspended from the ceiling, the first time "Cosmos" has been shown as a basket type. Its branches arch upward like candelabra, instead of curving downward as in the other two basket varieties exhibited.

Visitors who wish to study individual types should do so on week days, for this show is no "quiet old garden" on Sundays. For 23 years it has averaged Sunday attendance of 10,000 and up. The garden, at Flora place and Tower Grove avenue, is on the Vandeventer car line and the Russell-Shaw bus line.

ROBBERS WITH MACHINE GUN GOT $13,000 AT NIGHT CLUB

Chicago Police Hear by Accident of Holdup Last Sunday Night by Band of Seven Men.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—A band of seven robbers, with a swaggering leader who toys with a machine gun, is finding pursuit of their "racket" profitable in night clubs in and near Chicago. Police attribute three or four deaths to their forays.

The most recent and one of the most profitable visits was to a Twenty-second street night club, where the robbers found $13,000, the club's receips of the night. The robbery occurred last Sunday, the police found, and it came to their attention only through an accident. The club owners or patrons did not report it.

The owner of this club several months ago was kidnaped for ransom, paid the money and did not inform the authorities.

SUPPORTS CENSURED BISHOP

Dean Inge Enters British 'Evolution Row.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The press attaches great importance to a letter from Dean Inge, as president of the council of the "Churchmen's Union," addressed to Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, offering him sympathy and support of the council in connection with the Archbishop of Canterbury's reproof of the Bishop on the latter's evolution theories and his utterances on the Holy Sacrament.

Dean Inge's letter says: "Since some churchmen in exalted positions have publicly associated themselves with censures upon your utterances, we wish to assure you that we support wholeheartedly the principles for which you are contending."

W. H. VANDERBILT AND WIFE LIVING TOGETHER AGAIN

Pair Make Up Differences After Mrs. Vanderbilt's Suit for Divorce in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, the former Emily Davies, who early in June filed a divorce application only to withdraw the action some time later, is living now with her husband in New York, according to friends here.

Soon after her divorce application had been filed, Mrs. Vanderbilt was followed to Paris by her husband. They made up their differences after the French Court had announced that the decree would be granted. In fact, on June 30 the newspapers published stories that they had been divorced, but later it was learned that under the French law the Court had granted them what is technically known as "reparation," and that the decree never had been made final.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—At the New York office of William H. Vanderbilt it was said yesterday that the financier was out of town, but his secretary stated that Mrs. Vanderbilt "has been here for weeks and weeks—about six weeks." The secretary said that Mrs. Vanderbilt was living at the Vanderbilt home.

Bishop Brent Quits Post.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, Episcopal Bishop of Western New York, has resigned as Bishop in charge of the Episcopal Churches in Europe, and the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, former Bishop of Massachusetts, has been appointed to succeed him. This was announced today by the Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church. The ill health of Bishop Brent was given as the reason for his resignation.

POLICE EXPLODE THEORY OF CUT BOMB FUSE

Chief of Police George Ward of University City remembered yesterday morning that when you cut a loaf of bread in two, the planes of the cut ends are parallel. He remembered this as he held in his hands two pieces of dynamite fuse—one piece burned through the center, the other piece a bit discolored where it had been fastened to a fulminate-of-mercury dynamite cap.

Chief Ward is not a geometrist, but a careful policeman with a sense of skepticism and a sharp eye—the same that led yesterday to the undoing of James Stinson, 22-year-old night watchman, who a week ago posed as a hero. What Chief Ward remembered about the loaf of bread, Stinson, in staking out his claim to heroism, forgot.

Stinson called University City police on the night of Wednesday, Oct. 26. Acting as night watchman at the home of Albert L. Woas, building contractor, just inside the gates of University City, Stinson told the police that dynamite bombers had again been active at the Woas home but that he had saved the $40,000 mansion by seizing a dynamite stick and cutting the fuse. He presented the knife; two pieces of fuse, one burned and one attached to a stick of dynamite, as evidence.

Verifies Suspicion.

Twice before the house had been bombed, so the story seemed plausible. But Chief Ward had his doubts. He thought first it would be difficult for a man to throw a stick of dynamite 100 feet from an automobile traveling eastward past the house; second, it would be difficult for a person to heave the dynamite above a group of trees at the curb; and third, it would be even more difficult for the dynamite thrower to pitch his explosive past a line of parked cars.

Stinson had mentioned the parked cars in his story, and had said also that he recognized the car as a Packard. Chief Ward pondered all these things and checked Stinson's purchases at hardware stores to find out if the youth had bought the fuse. He was unsuccessful until he thought about the load of bread yesterday.

Cut Ends Didn't Match.

Then he observed that the cut faces of the dynamite fuse did not fit together. One was cut diagonally and the other straight across. The fuse end that matched the burned piece of fuse was attached to the dynamite cap. This meant that Stinson had cut his fuse first and then stuck an end—the diagonal end, in the cap. It meant that Stinson was not a hero at all.

Chief Ward called Stinson and showed him the ends of the two pieces of fuse. Stinson insisted on his bravery for a few minutes, but finally admitted he wasn't a hero at all.

"Why did you do it?" Ward asked.

A possible reward from his employer and recognition as a brave man—these were the reasons he gave.

The youth, who is married, will have a hearing Nov. 8 before a University City Justice of the Peace. Any one of several charges may be preferred against him—from peace disturbance to public nuisance.

WAITRESS ENDS HER LIFE

"Everything Goes Wrong With Me," Mildred Coleman Wrote.

Miss Mildred Coleman, 24 years old, a waitress, committed suicide last night by drinking poison in her room at 1202 Chambers street.

A note found near her body, beside a bottle which had contained poison read: "I am very tried of living and I think this is a cruel world. Everything goes wrong with me. Tonight I am going to end it all."

Zinc Drops to $35 a Ton.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 5.—Zinc slumped $2 to a base of $35 a ton, the lowest it has been since June, 1923, in the tri-State zinc and lead field, during the week which ended today. Lead remained unchanged at $80, with producers resisting the low price. Sales for the week were reported at $140 tons. Some mines have been forced to close due to the low prices and others are expected to shut down during the coming week.

SHORT-WEIGHT CASE QUASHED BY ROSECAN

Police Judge Dismisses Man Who Three Times Failed to Appear in Court.

An appeal from the action of Police Judge Rosecan in trying Hyman Polinsky, butcher and grocer of 2246 Clark avenue, by default on a charge of giving short weight and discharging him yesterday, will be taken by Inspector of Weights and Measures Haley, whose office lodged the complaint against Polinsky.

Judge Rosecan granted three continuances to Polinsky, his first hearing having been set for Sept. 14. Each time Polinsky failed to appear in court. On the insistence of Arthur Ruedi, chief clerk in Inspector Haley's office, and a witness against Polinsky, Judge Rosecan heard the case yesterday and announced he would discharge Polinsky on the ground the evidence had not shown that a sale of short-weighted goods had been consummated.

Ruedi, with a Negro boy, Wiley Ruffins of 2010 Market street, went to Polinsky's store last Aug. 31. Ruedi sent the boy in to buy six pounds of neckbones, two pounds of lard and two pounds of pork chops. When the goods had been put in parcels, Ruedi entered and weighed the packages. He asserted the neckbones weighed only five pounds, the lard one and a half pounds and the chops were an ounce light. On this evidence an information was obtained against Polinsky.

The city ordinance specifies, Inspector Haley contends, that either "selling or offering for sale" short weight goods. He asserts Polinsky was guilty of offering for sale the articles ordered by young Ruffins and will move to have the Court of Criminal Correction bring Polinsky to trial.

THREE MEN IN CLOSED AUTO ROB THREE FILLING STATIONS

A short time later the same men stole $150 from a station at 1100 South Grand boulevard after obtaining gasoline and oil from the owner, Henry F. Mueller.

Another station at 1033 McCausland avenue was visited a little later and $30 taken from the cash register. N. C. Lane, the attendant, was locked in a washroom.

WEST END DRUG STORE HELD UP

A robber held up three men in a drug store operated by Julius Sager at 5801 Page boulevard last night and escaped with $215. He ordered Irwin Olean, a clerk, and Charles Steinkemeyer, 5917A Minerva avenue, a customer, to the rear of the store and took $5 from Olean and $10 from Steinkemeyer, binding them with bath hose.

Sager, who was in the rear, was forced to open the cash register from which the robber took $200. He fled after firing a shot at the feet of the three men.

New England Floods Menace Mill Cities

The states affected by the flood are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. Eastern Quebec, Canada, is flooded. At Albany, N. Y., the Hudson River is 12 feet higher than normal.

First News From Montpelier.

One man was drowned and property loss estimated at $2,000,000 was caused by a flood which invaded Montpelier from the rise of the Winooski River Thursday and Friday. For the first time since Thursday night telephone service with the outside world was reestablished tonight. The single casualty was Myron Nelson, who walked out of a store in the downtown district last night and sank in the torrent that flooded the street.

The Winooski River after 24 hours of continuous rain rose 38 feet above its normal level. It reached the peak last midnight. On Thursday afternoon the dam at Worcester on the north branch of the river was carried away, adding millions of gallons to the freshet. The rise of the river, however, was so gradual that the residents of Montpelier were able to escape to higher levels.

All rail communication, as well as telephone and telegraph services have been disrupted in Montpelier, but electric light and power were re-established tonight. Only one bakery and two or three small groceries are open in the city. Food stocks are low and there was urgent need of medicines in the imminent danger of a typhoid outbreak. None of the banks has opened since the flood.

Lieutenant-Governor Drowned.

That seven persons, including Lieut.-Gov. S. Hollister Jackson, had lost their lives in Barre, Vt., was reported in a radio message from the Barre Times to the Associated Press, which was picked up by an amateur in New Bedford, Mass.; later word was that 13 others were drowned in the Winooski River. The Lieutenant-Governor fell into a pool in Potash Brook when trying to reach his home yesterday and was drowned. His body was recovered yesterday afternoon. The message said the damage in the city of Barre amounted to $2,000,000. Later dispatches put the death toll at Barre at 25.

Altogether 61 are known to be dead in the Winooski River Valley between Montpelier and Burlington. The greatest loss of life was in Waterbury where there are 26 bodies in the morgue. In Bolton, the next town, 25 are reported dead. In Richmond, six bodies have been recovered and four other persons are reported dead.

Self-imposed martial law was in effect in all the towns of the valley.

Seventeen of 18 employes of the Highway Department, trapped in a frame boarding house at Bolton were drowned Thursday night. Fred May living near Richmond saw his wife and three children swept away and drowned wher the flood struck his farm house.

Doomed Man Waves Goodby.

May, after the drowning of his wife and three children, climbed to the roof of his farmhouse and waved goodby to neighbors, who watched helplessly on distant banks as the structure went careening down the raging Winooski River, carrying him to his death.

W. J. Newcomb arrived in Burlington from Waterbury tonight. He said in many places along the highway bodies had been recovered from the flood and lay by the roadside. He reported that Waterbury was in need of food.

Virtually every home in Waterbury was damaged and the inhabitants have set up common kitchens in churches and public buildings to provide meals. The food supply was seriously affected.

Railroad tracks were twisted in corkscrew fashion at about every 25 feet for miles near Waterbury. One woman found her henhouse floating to land two miles from where it first stood with 200 chickens in it all alive.

Pittsford dam, near Rutland, Vt., cracked, but repairs hastily made are expected to keep it from breaking.

Other Loss of Life.

The only message to get through from St. Albans, Vt., told of efforts to verify reports of "big loss of life" in the Missisquoi Valley in Northern Vermont.

Pittsfield, Mass., Isolated.

Pittsfield, Mass., is the largest city to be entirely isolated, as railways and highways are blocked.

In Maine, Northern Vermont and New Hampshire troops and civilian volunteers worked to check the spread of the torrents that swept from swollen rivers. Bridges were carried away and buildings ripped from their foundations.

Maine dispatches say that large areas of famous hunting ground have been isolated by the flood, with the fate of sportsmen therein unreported.

The bursting of a large reservoir north of St. Johnsbury, Vt., sent a wall of water upon that town, but did only minor damage.

Fifty passengers on two trains on the Rutland Railroad have been marooned since Thursday, one at Mount Holly and the other at Cuttingsville, east of Rutland, Vt.

In Eastern Quebec, Canada, tributaries of the St. Lawrence flooded the country, wiping out railroad service and wrecking telephone and telegraph lines. No estimate of losses could be given. It is thought that railroad service will not be resumed for several days.

Coolidge Homestead Out of Reach of Flood.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Awakening this morning to be confronted with unconfirmed reports that his homestead at Plymouth was in the path of the flood and that Mrs. Sargent, wife of the Attorney-General was in danger at Ludlow, President Coolidge spent several uneasy hours until he learned that both rumors were unfounded. While the flood waters are near the President's homestead, it is said to be in no danger because the farm house is on high ground.

MARCELINE, ONCE BEST PAID CLOWN, ENDS LIFE

Former Hippodrome and Circus Fun Maker Sends Bullet Into Brain.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Marceline, once the highest paid clown in the world, who brought laughter to untold numbers, ended his life today by shooting himself through the temple with a revolver in a rooming house.

His body was found in a kneeling position at the side of his bed. Scattered over the spread were photographs of himself in his makeup as chief funmaker for years at the Hippodrome. A maid saw the body at noon and thought he was praying. Hours later she returned and when she saw him in the same position she called a patrolman.

A ticket showed that he had pawned a diamond ring for $15 yesterday. He had $6 left.

Born in Madrid, Marceline, whose last name was Orbes, and who was the son of a Spanish architect, made his debut at three, when he was carried into the bull ring on the shoulders of a veteran clown. For years he pranked and pantomimed at the London Hippodrome and then came to this country, being an attraction at the New York Hippodrome from 1905 to 1914.

There he teamed with another clown, known as Slivers. Marceline left the stage some years ago to open a restaurant and hotel. A short time later Slivers committed suicide.

Marceline, who was known as an "august," a clown who drew laughs without resort to the conventional clown attire, also was with Barnum & Bailey and Ringling Brothers' circuses several seasons. He was 55 years old.

DEFICIT IN COMMUNITY FUND CAMPAIGN LIKELY

On Basis of Latest Tabulations Gifts Will Fall Short $60,000 of Goal.

Last efforts by Community Fund workers yesterday made only a slight gap in the deficit of $75,000 needed to reach the goal of $1,850,000, the amount required for the work in 1928 of 50 charitable and social welfare agencies in the city and county.

On the basis of latest tabulations in his office, Alfred Fairbank, chairman of the campaign, said the deficit would be between $60,000 and $70,000. With the best possible clean-up to the campaign, and all quotas in from each division, a deficit was likely to remain, Fairbank said.

"The number of individual subscriptions has passed last year's figure of 130,241," Fairbank added. "But many of the new subscriptions were in small amounts. Several large gifts, also, were lost to us by death. But the good will and regard for the Community Fund represented by the increased number of givers is invaluable."

Community Fund workers will not disband their organizations for several days, although the search for "new money" has ended. They will check on all pledges in their divisions.

DRY AGENTS TURN LITERARY CRITICS; SEIZE 1000 BOOKS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The book hunters in the city hall would have been deeply interested could they have obtained possession of 1000 volumes shipped by the International Book Exchange of Kansas City to the Wells Book Exchange of Chicago. The books were designed for the holiday trade. They were large folios, bound in metal with metal clasps and traces of tooling on the borders. Several of the volumes were damaged, which led to a tragic fate for the whole consignment.

Critics, who were present to review them, pronounced the books of the modern realistic school. It was their opinion that they averaged a gallon to the volume. The damaged volumes dripped information and odor through a Rock Island freight car S, penetrating was the odor that switchmen dropped their switches and the whole yard's force gathered about the car anxious to read the books. Soon the prohibition agents, whose literary tastes are abnormal, came along and confiscated the library of 1000 gallons.

The two book exchanges are being investigated.

WET MAYOR STIRS ANTI-PROHIBITION FIGHT IN DETROIT

Seeking Re-election, He Renews Charges Law Cannot Be Enforced Without Corruption.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 5.—"Prohibition is the cloak of hypocrisy, a sham, a tragic joke."

With this as his battle cry, Mayor John W. Smith has converted a tame, issueless mayoralty campaign into a stirring controversy over prohibition enforcement. Detroit will make its decision at the municipal election Tuesday.

John C. Lodge, a grand uncle of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, is opposing Mayor Smith for re-election. Lodge has come to be known as the "silent candidate." Violating all known rules of political strategy by refusing to make speeches or issue campaign promises, Lodge led a seven-cornered field by more than 20,000 votes in the October primaries.

Both Smith and Lodge are Republicans.

Lodge's overwhelming victory at the primaries where, as a drafted candidate, he was nominated for Mayor with approximately 70,000 votes, as against 40,000 for Smith, was believed to be a pronounced expression in favor of a dry Detroit as against "liberal and common sense enforcement of all laws," as advocated by Smith.

Says Prohibition Is Unfair.

In a post-primary statement Mayor Smith said: "While it is true that less than one-third of the registered voters of the city expressed themselves in Tuesday's balloting, if this be the desire of the people of Detroit as expressed in the November election I shall cheerfully accept the verdict. My own belief is that the prohibition law is an unjust statute and the thought that it is wrong for the man in the factory to have a glass of beer in a saloon and the right for the gentlemen in the Yondotega Club to have their daily cocktail and highball is repugnant to my sense of justice."

Lodge is a member of the Yondotega Club, an exclusive East Side organization whose members number 114 select persons.

With Lodge refraining from public comment and not a single major issue to command the attention of the voters, veteran observers predicted the regular election campaign would resemble a polite tea party.

Smith Admits He Is "Wet."

One week after the primaries Mayor Smith threw a verbal bombshell into the campaign, however, in an open statement that he was "wet" and also convinced that the prohibition law could not be enforced in great cities like Detroit, Chicago or New York.

"It is about time the people of the United States realized that any attempt to enforce the prohibition laws in any large city will result in the breeding of hypocrisy, corruption of the agencies that attempt to enforce it and the employment of the meanest of tactics. The whole thing is a tragic joke," he declared.

The startling statement drew from leaders in all walks of life comments both adverse and favorable. Many Detroiters agreed in the main with the Mayor's statement, while others were perplexed as to how he reconciled his oath of office with his attitude.

Mayor Explains His Views.

In an interview today Mayor Smith explained his views as a citizen and as an official of the city toward the liquor situation.

"When I said 'I am wet' I was speaking of myself as an individual," he began,

"I wanted to reveal myself just as I am to the public. I wanted it to know what I thought of the prohibition law and its enforcement.

"The ballots of Detroit citizens for several years past have revealed they are not in favor of prohibition. They were not in favor of it before I became Mayor and they are not in favor of it now.

"As a public official I have tried to enforce in a reasonable and sane way the prohibition law. It was on the statute books and for that reason I supported it. But I have not insisted on wild measures of enforcement.

Enforcement Impossible.

"There is no police department in the world that can enforce the prohibition law in a sane way, if the people do not want that law. The people of Detroit do not want the law; they do not want it enforced, and I am not going to shake the equilibrium of the city in an endeavor to enforce it for the appeasement of certain dry fanatics.

"As Mayor I am sworn to enforce to the best of my ability the constitution and laws of the state and Nation. Under many or under any human official who has lived since the days of Adam that cannot mean 100 per cent enforcement.

"I have always said that the first duty of police officers is to protect life and property. After that comes the duty to proceed in orderly fashion to enforce all the laws on the statute books. And from that I do not exclude prohibition.

Rights of Individuals.

"I believe that every man has the right to live in his home; every person has a right to occupy his place of business without such unreasonable search and seizure as was forbidden by the constitution of the United States long before liquor was forbidden. I believe that the right to individual liberty has not passed.

"The Police Commissioner has at his call 3000 men. He has never received from me orders or suggestions to refrain from enforcement of any law, but the police department must prevent murder and robbery, and must regulate traffic to prevent death and injury from careless users of the street. Its 3000 men must cover a city of 140 square miles 24 hours a day. As Mayor, my policy has been to suggest that the major duty of the police department is to prevent major crime."

Breeding Army of Snoopers.

Discussing his own views as a private citizen, Mayor Smith declared that if the use of alcoholic liquors is morally wrong, the drying up of the nation lies with fathers and mothers, preachers and teachers. This declaration followed his assertion that he did not believe the temperate use of liquor to be morally wrong.

"Let me tell you the only way that prohibition can be enforced and it is the way the fanatical leaders of that cause are now seeking to make possible. Prohibition can only be enforced by an army of unpaid, unofficial snoopers who peer in your windows and peer in mine, who at the first suspicion of neighborhood gossip break down doors of homes which should be the owners' castles. * * *

"I have expressed the belief that experience has shown that prohibition cannot be enforced. I have expressed the belief that prohibition brings corruption. I now desire to express what I believe is stronger argument against it because it is an argument that goes to the heart rather than to outward show. Prohibition is the cloak of hypocrisy.

"There are a few individuals like Bishop Nicholson (pres... of the Antisaloon League) ... practice prohibition because ... believe in it and who would ... tice it if there were no such ... But I believe prohibition ... in its ranks far more that are ... sincere than it does who are ... cere. All I ask of the voters ... day is that they vote as ... drink."

FRANCE REFUNDS LOAN WITH MATCH MONOPOLY

Swedish Concern and Subsidiary in U. S. to Buy $75,000,000 Issue at 5 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Retirement, on March 15, 1928, of the entire issue of French 8 per cent bonds outstanding in this country will be effected through an agreement, reported in detail from exceptionally well-informed financial sources here whereby the Poincare Government will sell to the Swedish Match Co. a new issue of $75,000,000 40-year 5 per cent bonds. Two-thirds of this new issue will be taken over by the International Match Corporation, an American subsidiary, while the remaining $25,000,000 will remain in the treasury of the Swedish Match Co.

Unofficial advices from Paris said the Finance Ministry had denied consummation of the arrangement but Wall street was inclined to classify the denial as "diplomatic."

To finance its portion of the transaction, the International Match Corporation will issue around par, probably on Monday, $50,000,000 of its own 5 per cent debentures. The terms of the issue, which is to be handled by Lee, Higginson & Co., are understood to include a 20-year limit and a substantial sinking fund arrangement

Given Trade Monopoly.

In return for the financing of the new loan, the French Government has made an arrangement whereby the Swedish Match Co. will have the exclusive right to "co-operate" with the French state match monopoly. The terms of the agreement have not been revealed, but it is understood to cover the supplying of match machinery and raw materials to the French match monopoly over a long term of years.

A great saving to the French Government in interest charges is brought about by the refunding operation. A 5 per cent rate is considerably lower than the Government would have been able to obtain on a direct flotation of its own, even if the United States State Department's attitude toward loans by countries which have not yet funded their war debts, were overcome. This is asserted to be the first time in financial history that a French Government had obtained a long term loan of formidable proportions from a foreign private concern.

Floated $100,000,000 in U. S.

The original issue of the French 8 per cent bonds, aggregating $100,000,000, was floated in this country in 1920 by a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. About $70,000,000 of them remain outstanding, and they are callable at 110, being the only French dollar issue which can be redeemed before maturity. Two other French issues are outstanding in this country.

The International Match Corporation, with its parent concern, the Swedish Match Co., have been dominant factors in the world's match trade. Resources run into the hundreds of millions of dollars, and the parent corporation holds important monopolies in Poland, Greece, Peru and various other countries. Plants are situated in 35 countries.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL APPROVES PAROLE OF DANIEL A. O'NEIL

St. Louisan Was Sentenced to 15 Months for Part in Jack Daniel Whisky Plot.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The parole of Daniel A. O'Neil of St. Louis, who was sentenced to Leavenworth penitentiary in connection with the Jack Daniel liquor conspiracy case, was approved today by Attorney-General Sargent.

O'Neil, a former Deputy Constable of St. Louis, was sentenced to 15 months and fined $500 for his part in the conspiracy, the evidence indicating that he joined other St. Louisans in putting up money with George Remus, Cincinnati bootlegger, with which to purchase the distillery, from which 30,000 gallons of whisky was illegally removed for bootleg purposes.

The remaining St. Louisans in Leavenworth Penitentiary for whom parole has been recommended in this case are Michael J. Whalen, Democratic City Committeeman; Morris Multin, whisky dealer, and Harry (Fat) Levine, former Deputy Constable.

'DARK STRANGLER' CONVICTED

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Nov. 5.—A death sentence was imposed today on Earle Nelson, alleged "dark strangler." Nelson was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 13, after his conviction of the murder of Mrs. Emily Patterson, mother of two children. The jury deliberated only a short while. "I am not guilty," was the only statement Nelson made before sentence was pronounced.

Police of Pacific Coast States and in the Middle West and East said Nelson was suspected of a series of murders of women.

Railway Clerks' Pay Increased.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Wage increases were granted today to 8000 clerks and freight handlers of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad by a Federal Board of Arbitration. The clerks who have received $4.40 a day were granted a 7 per cent increase and the freight handlers paid by the hour at a rate of 47 cents, were given 4 per cent more. The award is effective as of Nov. 1.

FOUND BOUND, GAGGED, HURT

Eugeen Fetch, 24, Says Two Men Beat and Robbed Him.

Eugene Fetch, 24 years old, a mechanic, 3217A Pennsylvania avenue, was found bound, gagged and in a serious condition from seven scalp wounds beside Gravois road, near Fenton, Friday night by a passing motorist.

Upon being released and taken to a physician's office for treatment Fetch related that he was attacked by two men, who jumped on the running board of his car, beat him with a revolver, tied and gagged him and, after taking $10 from his pockets, drove away in his expensive roadster.

Magruder Succeeded by Latimer.

By the Associated Press.

Royal Wedding at Naples Attended by Kings of Spain and Italy With Retinues.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Italy, Nov. 5.—While two kings and numerous Princes and members of Europes nobility looked on, Princess Anne of France, daughter of the Duke of Guise, pretender to the throne of France, and Prince Amedeo of Savoy, Duke of Apulia, a cousin once removed of the King of Italy, were married here today.

The wedding, with all its pomp of Royal splendor, brought back to Naples memory of the days when it was once the capital of a kingdom, and the streets were once more filled with the clatter of royal escorts and the picturesque spectacle of royalty and nobility in colorful dress.

The royal couple were married first by a civil ceremony at the royal palace here and then by a religious ceremony in the church of San Francesco di Paula.

Procession of Royalty.

King Victor Emanuel of Italy and King Alfonso, of Spain headed the long list of distinguished guests at the wedding by which two historical houses, those of Bourbon and Savoy, were joined.

Under a bright blue sky and to the cheers of the people of Naples who lined the route, the couple rode through the center of the city in a coach followed by a long line of equipages bearing the distinguished guests. King Vitcor Emmanuel and various princes and princesses of the houses of Savoy, Bourbon and Orleans followed the couple in the midst of the clatter of the escort of royal horse Carabineers.

Behind the carriages of the Italian King and the bridal couple came the Duke and Duchess of Aosta and the Duke and Duchess of Guise, parents of the bridegroom and bride respectively, then followed the Duke and Duchess of Genoa, the Duke of Abruzzi, Duke of Spoleto, the Count of Turin and al the other Princess of the House of Savoy.

Crowds in Street Cheer.

The people of Naples lined the route and cheered the young couple as they passed.

King Alphonso and others of the guests joined the procession at the Royal Palace where the civil ceremony was performed.

Monsignor Becceria, Italian court chaplain, performed the religious ceremony at the church. Cardinal Ascalesi was to have performed the ceremony, but at the last minute was indisposed.

When the bridal couple and the Kings of Italy and Spain arrived at the church portal at the conclusion of the brief civil ceremony at the palace, Canon Atonicca waited to sprinkle them with holy water. He then conducted them up the center aisle to the main altar beside which the tribune of honor had been erected for them.

The nave of the great church rapidly filled with a gathering of titled personages such as are seldom seen in any land together at one time. Pretty Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, who had not witnessed such splendor since her brother, Crown Prince Leopold married Princess Astrid of Sweden almost a year ago in Brussels, was there.

Ambassadors Present.

Silence pervaded the church as the tall young bride clad in priceless white lace from Brussels and carrying a bouquet of orange blossoms entered on the arm of her even taller father.

A necklace of brilliants and sapphires, which once graced the neck of the ill-fated Marie Antoinette, worn by her mother, the Duchess of Guise, attracted the universal attention of the wedding guests.

The bride herself wore the wedding veil of her mother-in-law.

Behind them came the bridegroom in the full uniform of a Lieutenant-Colonel of the Royal Artillery, wearing his many decorations, chief of which were the Order of Annunciata and the Order of Malta. He gave his arm to his mother, the Duchess of Aosta.

Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, Princess Giovanna, Prince Philip of Hesse, husband of Princess Mafalda, and other Princes and Princesses of royal blood followed. Then came the Ambassadors and high ministers of state.

As the ceremony progressed an orchestra composed of professors of the Naples Academy of Music played a series of selections from the greatest of the French and Italian composers.

After imparting the nuptial benediction, Mgr. Becceria delivered a brief homily to the newlyweds, rejoicing at the union of the scions of two such illustrious houses, the graceful Princess from the north and the soldier Prince of the south.

The machine was wrecked. First reports said five injured were taken to a hospital.

MURDERED GIRL FOUND IN RIVER

Milwaukee Young Woman Left Home Oct. 16.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 5.—The body of Lillian Graef, 19 years old, who left home the night of Oct. 11 to keep an appointment, was recovered today from the Fox River near Waukesha. Evidence indicated that she had been murdered. A scarf was tied around her neck and her right temple bore marks of a blunt weapon.

The girl left home to keep an apointment with a friend of her sister known only as "Jack."

NEW WELL IN SEMINOLE FIELD

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., Nov. 5.—Another oil well was brought in today one and three-quarters miles north of the Bowlegs pool. This is the second wildcat strike in the Seminole area in two days.

Operators of the district meeting here Thursday, decided not to lift restrictions against new wells outside established pools. Under the agreement these wells must be pinched in to produce not more than 100 barrels a day.

Father Macelwane to Conference.

The Rev. James B. Macelwane, S. J., professor of Geophysics at St. Louis University, left St. Louis yesterday to attend the meeting of a technical committee of the National Research Council in Washington. The committee will draw plans for the publication of a bulletin descriptive of the interior of the earth. FLOOD CONTROL BILL DRAFTED BY SENATOR HAWES

Measure Calls for Expenditure of $1,000,000,000 at Rate of $100,000,000 a Year.

COMPREHENSIVE PLAN IS OUTLINED

Money to Be Raised by Bond Issue if Treasury Is Unable to Provide the Funds.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Senator Harry B. Hawes has completed the draft of a bill embodying what has become known as the "Missouri plan" for flood control, improvement of navigation and conservation of timber and wild animal life in the Mississippi basin. The non-partisan character of the measure, Hawes said, would be emphasized by its introduction in the Senate by Senator Reed and himself, both Democrats, and in the House by Representatives Dyer and Niedringhaus, both St. Louis Republicans.

In drafting the plan, Hawes had the assistance of Harold M. Bixby, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, and a group of other St. Louisans, including Thomas N. Dysart, Benjamin Charles, Eugene Angert and Kelton White. The bill has been approved by the heads of various St. Louis civic organizations.

The "Missouri plan" calls for the expenditure of a billion dollars, at the rate of $100,000,000 a year, for flood control and other purposes named in the measure. To the extent that the Treasury could not provide the necessary sums out of current revenues, the money would be raised by a bond issue.

New Commission Proposed.

The bill would create and give broad powers to an agency to be known as the Mississippi Valley Waters Control Commission. This would supplant the present Mississippi River Commission and all other agencies having to do with flood control in the Valley. It would consist of five members to be chosen by the President, two of them to be Army engineers, two civilian engineers and one "an individual of experienced executive ability." The chairman, to be named by the President, would receive a salary of $30,000 a year and the other members $25,000 each.

In declaring that the Federal Government should assume entire charge of flood control on the Mississippi, the bill is similar to the recommendations recently made by a special committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

A distinguishing feature of the measure provides that the commission shall carry on its work of flood control and channel improvement with due regard to "the necessity for promoting reforestation and providing sanctuaries and refuges for birds, game and fish." The commission would be authorized to take over the levees and other flood control works now under the jurisdiction of any state or other local agency, if requested by the agency so to do, and to assume the outstanding indebtedness on local projects. It would be empowered to build levees, spillways, floodways and reservoirs—in short, to use any means necessary to control the flood waters of the Mississippi and its tributaries. The commission would be directed to give immediate consideration to the prevention of overflows along the lower reaches of the river.

Other Rights of Commission.

The right would be given the commission to modify any river improvement project heretofore authorized for the Mississippi Valley by Congress and to begin new projects without getting the prior approval of Congress. Nothing in the proposed act, however, could be interpreted as amending or interfering with the transportation act, the water power act or the inland waterways corporation act, under which the Government barge line is conducted on the Mississippi. Similarly, the bill is declared to be without effect upon the upper Mississippi River wild life and fish and refuge act, which Hawes successfully sponsored in the last Congress.

"What this bill proposes to do," explained Hawes, "is to give broad and exclusive powers, with ample money, to a commission reporting to the President and Congress. It deals comprehensively with the whole problem of flood control, channel improvement and conservation of natural resources in the Mississippi Valley.

"Twenty-seven states are drained by the Mississippi and its tributaries. The problem concerns all of them—concerns, indeed, the whole country. Manifestly, we cannot reach an adequate solution through the scattered efforts of the states, but must look to the Federal Government."

LEGION COMMANDER TO VISIT ST. LOUIS

E. E. Spafford of New York to Take Part in Armistice Day Program.

Edward E. Spafford, a New York lawyer and national commander of the American Legion, will visit St. Louis for the Armistice day ceremonies arranged by State and city legionnaires, next Friday. He will speak at a luncheon at the Annex Hotel and will attend all other functions arranged on the program for the day.

One of the chief features of this year's Armistice day celebration will be a parade at 2 p. m. for which about 1500 legionnaires are expected to turn out. The Sixth Infantry from Jefferson Barracks, National Guard companies, the Naval Reserve detachment and veterans' organizations will be in line. The parade will start at Twentieth street and Washington avenue, proceeding east on Washington to Broadway, south on Broadway to Chestnut, west on Chestnut to Twelfth boulevard and south to the City Hall plaza.

There State Commander Dan M. Nee will give citations to legionnaires for their work during the tornado relief period. Mayor Miller and other city officials are to take part in exercises at the City Hall.

In the evening the legionnaires will attend a concert at the Odeon at which James Hagney, tenor, a St. Louisan and a legionnaire, will be solo artist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Emil Oberhoffer, guest conductor at the regular Symphony concerts, will direct.

NEW EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OF CIVIC UNION OF ST. LOUIS

Mrs. Mabel K. Alt of Minneapolis Succeeds Mrs. Maynard M. Hart in Post.

Mrs. Mabel K. Alt, former organization secretary of the Women's Community Council of Minneapolis, Minn., has succeeded Mrs. Maynard M. Hart as executive secretary of the Civic Union of St. Louis, organized two years ago to combat the circulation of indecent literature, particularly among children, and to encourage wholesome reading and recreation. Mrs. Hart resigned to enter business.

Mrs. Alt's first efforts in St. Louis will be to enlist fuller co-operation of various organizations in a quiet but persistent campaign to eliminate salacious magazines. This campaign will be educational, rather than coersive, although she has been assured the full co-operation of the police, she said today.

She is planning a city-wide meeting of organization heads in the near future to discuss the work of the union.

75 PITTSBURG BUSINESS MEN TO VISIT ST. LOUIS

They Will Be on Tour in Interests of Developing Mississippi and Ohio Rivers.

A delegation of 75 Pittsburg business men will visit St. Louis on Armistice Day, in the interests of developing the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers as effective inland waterways. They will be entertained by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

The party will leave Pittsburg Nov. 9, embarking on a nine-day itinerary calling for stopovers in Louisville, St. Louis, Memphis, Houston, New Orleans, Birmingham (Ala.), and Cincinnati.

"The purpose of the tour," said a statement, "is directly related to the fact that after many years the Government is nearing completion of Ohio River improvements, which will give all-the-year-round navigation the entire length of the Ohio and the lower Mississippi, resulting in a tremendous impetus to the commerce of all the cities joined by these great river systems."

GOOD UNDERCURRENT TO LONDON MARKETS

Special Wireless to Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review, says:

"The undercurrent of the markets has been good in the sense that the public is disposed to invest and speculate, but the political and monetary uncertainties are unusually pronounced.

"Undoubtedly the recent fairly comfortable conditions have been because New York and London have been so conserving resources through co-operation as to prevent any undue stringency and to make possible the further flotations of foreign countries in which fresh capital or credits for monetary stabilization are desirable for the advancement of general interests.

"There is no reason why such co-operation should not continue, but both America and Britain have their respective problems to handle and both, if possible, have to prevent excessive speculation. Our special problems include a future fusion of treasury notes with Bank of England notes, which, when consummated, will make the proportion of gold to bank notes look less strong.

"Moreover, with France owing huge credits on both sides of the Atlantic, the political and financial developments in that country are naturally being watched closely, especially in view of next year's elections.

"Both New York and London are now in a sense embarrassed by the extent of foreign credits deposited, but America's enormous gold accumulations make the embarrassment less in the United States than here.

"Speaking broadly, the confidence in banking experts on both sides of the Atlantic is such that it is believed the policy of maintaining steadiness without acute stringency may proceed successfully.

What Germany Is Doing.

"A dispatch from the Morning Post's Essen correspondent indicates Germany is increasing challenge to the world's market, particularly in the heavy industries, which is the result of her policy of nationalization and of sacrificing the independent interests to success of industry as a whole.

"The remarks of the chairman of the Anglo-Persian Oil Co. on the oil situation have attracted considerable attention, especially his references to prices and future supplies of oil. Referring to the United States, he said:

"How to conserve that country's oil reserves without slinting the present generation is perhaps the greatest and most complicated economic problem the United States authorities have ever been called upon to face."

WHEAT SELLS HIGHER ON CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—Argentine reports of rust led to a quick steep rise today in wheat prices here. The Chicago advance accompanied an upturn of 2⅜ to 3½c per cwt. in wheat values at Rosario, Argentina. Early buyers in Chicago, however, became progressive sellers on the bulge, and considerable reaction from top prices ensued.

Unexpected strength of wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with adverse crop comment from Argentine, gave an early upward swing to the wheat market here.

Opening unchanged to ⅛c higher, Chicago wheat soon advanced all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firmer, corn starting unchanged to ⅜c up and subsequently hardening a little more.

An opening brisk advance in wheat prices at Buenos Aires today tended to bear out reports of unfavorable crop conditions over parts of Argentina, especially talk of damage by rust in section to the north. Bulls took note also of word that a heavy snowfall had occurred in the Canadian Northwest, a circumstance likely to hinder the movement of new wheat there.

According to some authorities, practically all overnight offerings of United States winter wheat and of Canadian wheat to Liverpool were accepted. On the other hand, British estimates of Australia's yield were raised to a material extent. The upward revision of Australia's production figures was ascribed to confirmation of news that further useful moisture had been received in Australia where needed.

Corn and oats ranged higher, owing to sympathy with wheat. Country offerings of corn to Chicago were small, and temperatures were expected to be under normal early in the coming week.

Lard was somewhat firmer, responsive to the action of grain and cotton. Ribs, however, were lower.

COTTON TRADE QUIET, PRICE RANGE NARROW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The cotton market was quiet today, with the price movement correspondingly narrow. January contracts ranked from 20.81 to 20.94, closing at 20.84. The general market closed steady, net 2 points lower to 5 points higher.

The opening was steady on an advance of 3 points to a decline of 3 points, and the market worked up a few points in early trading on weekend covering and a little buying promoted by steady cables and prospects for freezing weather in parts of Arkansas and Oklahoma.

The relatively steady showing of Liverpool appeared to offset the effects of unfavorable Manchester trade advices and there may have been a little buying early on reports that one of the statistical authorities estimated the world's consumption of American lint cotton for the first nine months of this season at 3,600,000 bales, compared with about 3,400,000 for the corresponding period last year.

The very moderate demand was supplied on net advances of 6 to 10 points, however, and after selling 15 to 20 off for December and 21.08 for March, the market eased under scattered realizing. This was supplemented by Southern selling in late trading and last prices showed depression of about 10 to 10 points from the best on the winter and spring months. Later positions were relatively steady, July closing 6 points net lower.

Owing to the holiday on Tuesday, there will be only one more full trading day in the local market, before the Government crop report is published at 11 o'clock on Wednesday, and the greater part of the day's business was attributed to further speculation of outstanding accounts.

Private cables said hedging and liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling, covering and continental buying in Liverpool, but complained that offers for cotton cloths from India were mostly unworkable.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of July for the week was estimated at 120,000 bales, compared with 160,000 last year.

WAITING MOOD IN MARKETS CONTINUES

Advent of November Brings Something of Calm Both in Industry and Security Markets—Action by Mellon and Ford Awaited.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"The advent of November has brought something of a calm both in industry and in the security markets. Those who follow such matters are waiting for the weather vane to tell them what the next breeze will kick up, confident, however, of smooth sailing just ahead. Throughout the business world the announcement of the new Ford line is expected to restore the stimulus to trade that was lost when the manufacture of Ford cars ceased earlier in the year. In the financial world Secretary Mellon's announcement of the Government's financing plans, expected on Monday," is awaited for whatever inspiration it will bring to the markets. The flow of business even in the last two months and the ready absorption of securities at record levels have been satisfactory, but when long accustomed to sensations leaders become disturbed sometimes when performance drops to normal.

Ford Shutdown Factor.

"Three months from now it should be evident how much of a business upturn the Ford operations will produce. That the shutdown of the plant, which employs around 70,000 workers, extended over a period of six months, tended to unsettle business must be obvious. By the same token, it would be reasonable to suppose that the opening of the new Ford line, if successful, should speed up trade. It is even possible that it may give 1928 so strong a start that the first six months of the year will reveal a record motor output. At least it is natural to find so many business men now pinning their hopes for a faster pace in trade on what Henry Ford is promising to do very soon. In the long run the moderation of business activity noted this fall probably will be found not to have been as serious as now appears. The agricultural regions have used their funds to pay for back debts. The result is that the farmer is in stronger position than at any time since his post-war troubles began, than which no better sign for the future could be asked.

Year's Bond Flotations Larger.

"The bond market has taken with remarkable absorptive powers everything offered since its mid-summer glut, but here and there may be seen evidences of free h congestion. It is next to impossible for the wholesale houses to maintain perpetually the delicate balance between supply and demand for issues of a certain type. Capital flotations during October reached a new high for the year at $848,000,000 and the volume for November to date far exceeds that of a year ago. The total flotation for the year to date reached the $6,101,000,000 mark this week, which is 27 per cent more than the $4,460,000,000 that had been offered up to this time in the very active year of 1926. A surprising part of this gain over last year has been made through the heavy offerings since mid-summer. Fundamentally the bond market is in excellent position and can absorb without difficulty a still larger flow, provided time is allowed for digestion, and provided those with funds to invest in this country are educated up to the advantages of a strong box well filled.

Await Government Plans.

"Secretary Mellon's announcement on Monday and the Nov. 15 refunding operation will help the bond market, but probably not so much as the investment bankers expect. Roughly $750,000,000 in second Liberty 4¼s still are outstanding, but the call for these bonds on Nov. 15 will not immediately inject $750,000,000 into the security markets. Perhaps a more than half of this amount will be turned in at once. And not even all of the $325,000,000 paid out on that day by the Government, if the above estimate is correct, will revert to the bond market. Most of it represents money that will go to small investors not accustomed to fixed investments, and who will prefer automobiles. In connection with its refunding operation the Government probably will offer new securities, but the presumption is that these would be taken primarily by the bankers. Whatever may be the distant trend in affairs the evidence is that money will remain easy relatively for the remainder of this year, allowing, of course, for some holiday tightening, and that the 1927 Christmas trade will be large.

EVENTS OF WEEK AND EFFECTS ON TREND OF PRICES

France Proposes Retirement of 8 Per Cent Bonds With 5 Per Cent Issue to Match Company —$36,000,000 Gold Going to Brazil.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The irregular recovery in stock prices, the easing of money rates, the drop in wheat, followed by rebound for net gain prices, the shipment of $36,000,000 in gold to Brazil and the proposed retirement of the French Government 8 per cent bonds with the proceeds of a $75,000,000 5 per cent issue sold to the Swedish Match Company and its American subsidiary dividend financial and speculative interest in this week's markets.

Short Covering.

Short covering and traders' buying undoubtedly played a large part in the rally in stock prices, which, temporarily, at least, had fallen too low. Although business conditions continued spotty, enough improvement was shown by the copper, oil, drug and tobacco industries to attract fresh buying into these shares, several of which attained record high levels. Steel, sugar, motor and rubber shares were held back by unfavorable trade developments. Rails, after an early period of sluggishness, pressed forward under the leadership of the high-grade investment shares.

Cotton fluctuated rather erratically pending publication of the new Government crop estimate, but the active positions gained about $2 a bale during the week. Wheat declined 1¼ to 2 cents a bushel in reflection of the poor export demand and better crop condition and other grains reacted in sympathy. But week-end spurt resulted in net gain. Sugar prices softened on indications of a large European crop, but coffee prices were slightly firmer.

Call Money Lowered.

Call money was lowered to 3½ per cent when the first of the month demands had been disposed of, and funds were available in the "outside market" as low as 3 per cent. The longer maturities held steady.

In the foreign exchange market, a further recession took place in sterling and Dutch guilde..s mounted to a new high level for the year.

Some surprise was expressed at the increase in brokers' loans covering a period of declining stock prices, but this was explained by the heavy temporary financing in connection with new bond flotations.

The rise in the steel shares was checked by disappointing trade news, particularly the weakening commodity price tendency in recent weeks. The spectre of Ford competition was again brought forward to stimulate selling of the motors although a few strong spots developed in that group.

Export Copper Price Up.

The rise in coppers was accelerated by an increase in the export price of copper and lower domestic stocks, Calumet & Arizona being the individual feature. Declining crude oil production and heavy gasoline consumption provided the groundwork for the advance in the oils.

Tobaccos were helped by reports of large cigaret sales, and prospects of good holiday trade. Despite reported official denials of reports of an early stock split-up, American tobacco issues soared to record high levels.

Strength Among Specialties.

Special strength also developed in a number of specialties such as American Home Products, Adams Express, American Railways Express, American Linseed, Radio Corporation, United Drug, Christie Brown and American Can, all of which registered new peak prices for the year. On the other hand, American Piano, Electric Refrigeration, Foundation Co., Remington-Rand and Cuban American Sugar went to new 1927 low levels. Rubbers turned heavy on the announcement of price cuts on certain tires.

Establishment of a new record high for all time by Southern Railway and brisk recoveries in some of the recently weak low priced issues such as Wabash and Missouri Pacific featured the railroad group.

CLEARINGS, MONEY AND SILVER

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for Nov. 5, 1927, $19,500,000; corresponding day last year, $19,600,000; this year, $6,534,800,000; corresponding period last year, $6,382,700,000. Reports of debits for Nov. 3, 1927, were: Debits to individual accounts, $26,700,000; total to date, $7,450,000,000; debits to bank and bankers' accounts, $18,400,000; total to date, $4,693,200,000; combined debits were $212,042,000,000; total to date for individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $45,100,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Bar silver, 57c; Mexican dollars, 43¾c.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Bar silver 23 5-16d per ounce. Money 2¾ per cent. Discount rates short bills 3 per cent; three months bills 4 5-16@4¼ per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Prices were steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent rentes 54 francs 60 centimes. Exchange on London 124 francs 34 centimes. Five per cent loan, 73 francs 90 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 25 francs 47 centimes.

Drygoods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Cotton goods trading was quiet today with gray goods factors awaiting results of the Government cotton report next Wednesday. Additional lines of low count, wide sheetings have been advanced to a basis of 4¾ cents to 10-4 bleached goods. More inquiry was reported on fine fabrics and other automobiles fabrics. Raw silk was steady. Linen handkerchiefs and dress linens sold well, but household staple lines were dull.

RAILROAD SHARES LEAD ADVANCE IN WEEK-END MARKET

Usual Evening Up of Speculative Accounts Causes Some Irregularity Early—Trade Unusually Heavy for Short Session.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength in today's brief session. Some irregularity developed at the opening as a result of the usual evening-up of speculative accounts, but a sudden demand for the investment railroad shares soon turned the course of general prices upward. Trading was unusually heavy for a half holiday session, total sales running above 1,000,000 shares.

Except for the announcement after the market closed that the French Government had contracted to sell $75,000,000 of 5 per cent 25-year bonds to the Swedish Match Co and use the proceeds to retire the outstanding 8 per cent bonds in this country, and that $36,000,000 in gold would be shipped to Brazil beginning today, there was little financial interest in the day's news. Directors of the Safety Cable Co. declared a special dividend of $9.58 preparatory to entering the new cable company merger.

Steel Shares Rise.

Despite a further cut of 50 cents a ton in steel scrap prices, steel shares displayed outstanding strength. U. S. Steel common advanced more than two points to 134½, widening the spread between that issue and General Motors common, which closed 1¼ points higher at 131, to more than five points as against 1½ a few days ago. Bethlehem and Gulf States Steel each advanced about two points and Crucible one.

Fresh buying appeared in the mercantile shares. R. H. Macy soared 12 points to 220, S. H. Kress jumped 7¾, Abraham and Straus and Outlet Company 5½ each and Gimbel Bros., 2. Strong spots also developed in a number of the baking, can, copper, drug and insurance shares, about a dozen of which attained record high prices.

Profit-taking temporarily halted the advance in some of the public utility, chemical and tobacco issues, but the losses were not large.

Strength of the rails was rather surprising in view of the poor earnings and traffic statement recently published, although winter prospects are reported to be fairly good, particularly for the northwestern carriers. Northern Pacific crossed 97 to a new peak price for the year. Delaware & Hudson jumped 7½ points to 186, but reacted to 184¼ on realizing, and Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Chicago & Eastern Illinois common and preferred, Lehigh Valley, Pittsburg & West Virginia, St. Louis Southwestern and Western Maryland closed 2 to nearly 5 points higher.

Foreign Exchange Irregular.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular. Demand sterling was slightly firmer around $4.86 11-16 and French francs were again quoted above 3.92½ cents. Dutch guilders held firm around the year's high and Polish zlotys advanced 5 points to 11.25 cents. Japanese yen dropped 18 points to 46.22 cents.

The weekly clearing house statement showed excess reserve of $7,512,640, a drop of $22,028,820 below that of last week. The detailed statement of actual condition this day showed gains in most of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments increased $77,152,000; cash in own vaults, $485,000; net demand deposits, $87,940,000, and time deposits, $6,821,000. The reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank dropped $16,644,000.

Foreign Exchange

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Trading all week in foreign exchange was unusually orderly, although some rates went to new highs in intervals of strength. The market was interested by the observance abroad of All Saints day on Tuesday, when the only business transacted was that originating here.

Dealings in sterling were almost evenly balanced, bids and offers being made in large volume at the same price at the same time, creating a peculiar condition. A slight excess of supply caused a recession in the first half of the week, when earlier cables yielded to $4.86⅝. That low was recovered, though, in the last few days, when cables held close to $4.87.

Movements in French and Italian continued narrow and were directed by the operations of Government agents with the object of stabilizing the market.

Lire maintained a strong tone the greater part of the week, cables yesterday showing 3.91, close to the peak of the year. Dealings in Dutch exchange were in large blocks many transactions of $50,000 guilders being made.

Belga showed an easier tone and yielded slightly on moderate dealings. Scandinavians were also in moderate supply. Swedish kroner and Norwegian about the same as the English declined, German, after falling to 23.85, rallied to 23.89 and then yielded again.

The usual wide fluctuations occurred in Canadian exchange, pesetas falling to 17.04 on cables and then rallying.

Japanese exchange was heavy in tone all week. Chinese exchanges were exceptionally strong, both Hongkong and Shanghai having sharp advances and Shanghai moving up above 68.25. Indian exchange was also strong.

Uruguayan made a new high for the year at 103.50.

Mexican advanced steadily all week as the result of Ambassador Morrow's arrival, the gold peso gaining 20 points to 47.85. Cuban made a slight advance.

Safety Cable Dividend of $9.58.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 5.—Directors of Safety Cable Company, recently merged with various other wire and cable companies into the newly organized General Cable Corporation, today declared a dividend of $9.58 a share, payable Nov. 15, to holders of record Nov. 14.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Total transactions in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $5,208,000; previous day sales, $10,043,000; week ago, $5,055,000; year ago, $7,936,000. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $2,528,152,000, compared with $2,486,132,000 same period year ago and $3,030,029,000 same period two years ago.

Quotations on Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar: that is, for instance, a sale printed $99.24 means $99 and twenty-four thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24.

Sane Fat Reduction

Excessive fat is unsightly, unhealthy and unnecessary. Common sense and willpower used in your diet; the proper amount of exercise, together with a sufficient amount of Rite-Wate Fat Reducer, should give you a trim, healthy figure with added vitality—with renewed youth. One envied and admired by all.

It stands to reason, that lazy persons eating improper foods to excess, will not feel right nor look right. Don't expect Rite-Wate to perform miracles, but when sane judgment is exercised you can expect Rite-Wate to help you attain your normal weight, and a neat, healthy figure.

Rite-Wate is a strictly vegetable compound in tablet form. A Doctor's prescription used for eleven years. Many have benefited and told others of the good results. Be fair to yourself. Try it now. (The larger size is more economical).

NEPHEW IDENTIFIES MAN HURT BY AUTO

Meyer Scissors Found in Hospital by Robert Scissors After Six Days' Search.

After spending six days in the city hospital unconscious and unidentified, Meyer Scissors, 68 years old, a charge of the Jewish Orthodox Home, was found early yesterday by his nephew, Robert Scissors, of 6475 San Bonita avenue.

The nephew had been searching for the elder man since Tuesday when authorities at the home, 1438 Fast Grand avenue, reported to police that Scissors had disappeared mysteriously Sunday night.

Meyer Scissors, who is deaf and dumb, was taken to the hospital unconscious Sunday night after he had been knocked down by an automobile in front of 1107 North Grand boulevard. The driver of the car was Erwin Reuter of 4828 Lee avenue. Although the injured man carried in his pockets several of Robert Scissor's business cards bearing the name of the Scissors-March Shoe Co., 1327 Washington avenue, the nephew was not notified and the elder man was placed in Ward 15 of the hospital as unidentified. Twice during his search, Robert Scisors visited the hospital and once even examined a deaf and dumb patient in a ward adjoining that occupied by his uncle.

The identification resulted from investigation begun Friday night when a nurse in his ward read a Post-Dispatch item concerning Meyer Scissors' disappearance and observed his description tallied with that of one of her patients. She notified the hospital Social Service Bureau which, in turn, notified the Jewish home. The home then communicated with the nephew.

Robbers Get $200 at Herrin.

HERRIN, Ill., Nov. 5.—Two masked robbers last night held up the Brown & Colombo store here and escaped with about $200. They entered just at closing time and compelled the cashier to turn over the day's receipts.

$1000 GIVEN TO CAPTAIN OF SHIP THAT SAVED RUTH ELDER

Master of Dutch Tanker Accepts It As Token and Will Turn It Over to Seamen's Relief Fund.

By the Associated Press.

BAYTOWN, Tex., Nov. 5.—"The rule of the sea," as he explained it, caused Capt. T. Goos, master of the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, to hesitate here about receiving through the agency of the Associated Press a token of $1000 from Wheeling, W. Va., citizens in gratitude for saving the lives of the Atlantic flyers, Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, at sea near the Azores Oct. 13.

The Associated Press was asked to deliver the purse to the tanker's crew. A check for the $1000 was delivered to the Associated Press in New York and the money immediately was transferred through banking channels to Houston, where a representative of the news association arranged the formal presentation yesterday.

Finally the captain said he would take it as a token, not a reward, and would donate it to a Dutch fund for the relief of seamen's widows and orphans.

The fund was in three checks, one to the captain for $400, another for $100 for the commander of the lifeboat which rescued Miss Elder and a third for $500 for the Barendrecht's crew.

Only one word of warning; the above advice is true of genuine Castoria.* The kind called Fletcher's, bearing Fletcher's signature is genuine—and does not contain opiates or any other drug that can harm your baby. Other preparations may be just as free from harm; the writer does not know as to that, but does know one family whose children will never make the experiment!

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

TO SURVEY ROAD FROM ST. CHARLES AS TO WIDENING

Funds Lacking to Make 18-Foot Pavement 36 Feet Wide, but Preliminary Work Will Be Done.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—A survey of the St. Charles road, the first link out of St. Louis on the St. Louis-Kansas City Air Line Highway, No. 40, will be started soon by the State Highway Department to determine the cost of widening the concrete paving from 18 to 36 feet, and what right-of-way will be necessary for a widening project.

An inspection of the road by highway officials will precede the survey. The time for beginning the survey has not been set, but the work will be started in a few weeks, it was said.

This is the first definite move by the Department toward widening the road, to meet the increasing congestion that has slowed down traffic and increased the hazards of travel on the route.

No money is available for immediate widening work, but the survey will give the Department definite data on which to work, and may expedite the project. The problem now confronting the State Highway Commission, according to Chief Highway Engineer T. H. Cutler, is whether the road should be widened at once, or other stretches of primary roads that have not been hard surfaced be paved and taken "out of the mud" before existing paved roads are widened.

Tentative estimates have been made of the cost of widening the 12.7 miles of No. 40 between the St. Louis City limits and the St. Charles bridge over the Missouri River, but they were made without a survey. These estimates range from $500,000 to $600,000 for grading, paving, culverts, drainage and other construction work, exclusive of right-of-way.

The Department likely would expect the right-of-way to be furnished by local interests, as the general policy with the State system has not provided for purchasing right-of-way for State highways.

BATTERY RUNS ELECTRIC AUTO 600 MILES ON ONE CHARGE

New Invention, Accredited to Jesuit Priest, Described as Revolution in Science.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—An electric automobile that will run 600 miles on a charge that can be put into it in an hour, is announced as an accomplished fact by Jean Cabrerets, a technical writer.

A new electric battery—a "real revolution in science"—he says, has proved its worth and the right to make it has been acquired by French, English and German firms, whose names are kept secret. A Spanish Jesuit priest, Father Almeida, is credited with the invention. Cabrerets says the battery, compared with present types, has 10 times the capacity, weight for weight, and five times the capacity, size for size. It can be charged, he asserts, in one-twenty-fifth the time of ordinary types.

Picturing current models of electric cars, he says, the new battery would propel one 600 miles as compared with 120 miles, but with a saving of 450 pounds, while if space were found to carry a new battery of the same weight as the old one, the range of action would be 1200 miles. Best of all the charge could be renewed completely during the lunch hour.

The chemical action is said to be similar to present practice, through the decomposition of two electrodes, one of which is of silver or heavily silvered.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE IN CASE OF MAN ACCUSED OF MURDER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAYETTE, Mo., Nov. 5.—The jury in the trial of Alfred Jackson, on a charge of murdering Marshall Dougherty July 24 was discharged by Circuit Judge Westhues here tonight after it had failed to reach a verdict. It had been out 24 hours. Dougherty, 19 years old, was shot and killed after a long period of enmity between him and Jackson.

Jackson is a grandnephew of Missouri's Civil War Governor, Claiborne F. Jackson. Dougherty was a pupil of Jackson when the latter was Superintendent of Schools at Harrisburg, this county.

The shooting occurred on the Marshall-Harrisburg road. Dougherty, who the defense said had been drinking, had passed Jackson in an automobile shortly before the killing.

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

GEBERT AND LEARY LEAD ATTACK ON BILLIKEN LINE IN LONG SCORING DRIVES

Local Team Outclassed After Pointless First Period—Lintzenich Stars for St. Louis Eleven—First Decisive Setback of Season for Bob Mathews' Men.

By Jack Alexander.

Marquette's "Golden Avalanche" was a piledriver that battered St. Louis University into submission yesterday at Sportsman's Park before 7000 fans. The score was 26 to 0.

Once it got under way, the Milwaukee football team just smashed and smashed away at the Billiken line and the line gave and gave—until it had yielded four touchdowns.

The story of the game as flying feet wrote it into the charts was that of "Swede" Gebert and Joe Leary. What doesn't show on the charts is the work of the Marquette line, averging 12 pounds heavier than the Billikens, which crushed the St. Louis defense out of the way and blazed the trail for the man who lugged the ball. In the last period, when the St. Louis linemen were weary from the socking, the gaps opened by the visitors seemed almost big enough for the Marquette band to march through.

Gebert, Then Leary.

Marquette wasn't a passing team, yesterday. It was just a crusher and a batterer. Gebert would flash through a hole for 15 yards, or perhaps he would be stopped at eight, and then Leary, crouching low and hugging the ball with both arms, would plunge across to complete the first down. There seemed to be no way of stopping either one.

It is to the credit of the Billiken secondary defense that neither Marquette back got away for a long run. In fact, there wasn't what could be termed a long run throughout, although the game was a good one to watch.

82 Yards on Line Smashes.

The first quarter, in which the St. Louis team had the edge over the visitors, proved misleading as a criterion about midway in the second quarter. Here the Marquette team, apparently at a disadvantage and in possession of the ball on its own 18-yard line, suddenly found itself and, with Leary and Gebert as spearheads, exhibited its tremendous power by driving 82 yards for its first touchdown. All this gain was through the line, not a pass being thrown.

The Billikens set about to overcome this lead in the third period by taking to the air, but passes intercepted in their own territory gave Marquette its second and third touchdowns. After Daubner had leaped into the air and caught a 15-yard heave from Jordan and another pass had been grounded, Leary intercepted one and carried it to the Billiken 38-yard line. One of Marquette's few passes, Corbett to Crowley, was good for 18 yards and Leary plunged the rest of the way to the goal.

Another Pass Intercepted.

The same thing followed the next kickoff. Lintzenich caught one from Jordan, another fell to the ground and O'Neill intercepted the third just inside St. Louis territory at midfield. In the face of a 15-yard penalty, Marquette drove to its third score, Gebert carrying the ball almost all the way.

The fourth touchdown, in the final period, came more in the manner of the first. It was Leary and Gebert again, starting at midfield and slashing, pushing and hurdling red sweaters until Leary was across in the end zone.

That's the entire story. Newspapermen accompanying the Marquette team say that it has finally struck its true stride—did so, in fact, last week in crushing Grinnell. Next Saturday the "Golden Avalanche" will try its strength against Holy Cross, undefeated except by Harvard. The game will take place at Milwaukee.

School bands furnished more than enough diversion between the halves. Marquette's 60-piece outfit outnumbered the Billiken or-

Walter Hagen Defeats Turnesa 1 Up; Wins "Pro" Golf Title for Fifth Time

Champion Trails New Yorker Until Thirty-First Green of Final Round Match, Then Goes Ahead and Halves Remaining Holes to Win.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 5.—Walter Hagen, veteran of many classic struggles of the links, came from behind today to shake off the challenge of youth and successfully defend his title of champion of the Professional Golfers' Association.

Joe Turnesa, handsome 25-year-old pro from Elmsford, N. Y., played a versatile game and led the old master most of the way, but cracked for a moment on the last six holes and lost the match, one down on the thirty-sixth green.

In winning the title, Hagen added the professional crown to his winter wardrobe of fancy headgear for the fourth consecutive year and for the fifth time in his career. Ten P. G. A. tournaments have been held and Hagen has won half of them, in addition to being runner-up in 1916. He first won the coveted championship in 1921, after which Gene Sarazen of New York ruled for two years, but Hagen came back in 1924 and has occupied the throne since that time.

Crowd of 50,000 Fans Sees Undefeated Elevens Keep Slates Clean.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 5.—The famed offensive of the University of Pittsburg football team failed to function against the heavier Washington and Jefferson line and the two teams battled to a scoreless tie in their annual clash at Pitt Stadium today, duplicating the result of last year's game. Fifty thousand fans shivered through four quarters of fierce, dogged fighting which produced but few spectacular plays.

MISSOURI WINS 13 TO 0, FROM WEST VIRGINIA

Mehrle's 63-Yard Run High Light of Tigers' Victory Over Mountaineers — 15,000 See Contest.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 5.—East bowed before the Middle West in football here today, when the Mountaineers of the University of West Virginia were defeated, 13 to 0, by the Tigers of the University of Missouri.

Held scoreless in first half, Missouri came back in the third period and scored two touchdowns in rapid succession, one the direct result of an intercepted pass and a 63-yard run by Mehrle. Missouri's first touchdown was scored early in the period, when Gorman passed to Brown over the goal line.

Brown, giant Missouri end, added the extra point after the second touchdown, but failed in his first place kick attempt.

Missouri's injured trio of star backs, Capt. Flamank, Bert Clark, quarterback, and Charley Tuttle, watched from the side lines, but gained a much-needed convalescence from their wounds of previous battles. The Missouri Valley Conference leading Tigers, worn from a three-game intersectional schedule which was concluded here today, suffered only minor additional injuries in the affray and appeared in good shape to finish the last conference game of their schedule undefeated in the valley.

Tiger Reserves Star.

The same reserve backs, who have virtually become regulars because of injuries to stars and who defeated Northwestern last Saturday, carried the burden of attack in the Missouri bowl. And reserve Tiger line men bore up under the offensive in good shape. John Waldorf, reserve center, burst the Mountaineer line repeatedly to break up lateral passes and other elaborately planned West Virginia tricks. His tackling behind the opposing line was a feature for the parent spectators.

In first downs, West Virginia was supreme, having gained 18, which netted 240 yards at scrim-

Touchdown Made by Niemic in First Quarter—Gopher Points Counted on Pass, Joesting to Walsh, in Final Minutes of Play.

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Nov. 5.—Converting each other's errors in the scoring zone into a touchdown each, Notre Dame and Minnesota battled to a 7-7 tie in a wintry blizzard on historic Cartier Field, today.

Undefeated in 22 years on the home gridiron, Notre Dame made a touchdown out of its only real opportunity in the first period, and stopped the furious drives of Minnesota until the last few minutes of the game. Then, from the 14-yard line, where one of the numerous Notre Dame fumbles was grabbed up, Captain Herb Joesting, who had failed to smash through for a touchdown, tossed the ball across the Rockne goal to Walsh to even the score. Art Pharmer was called from the bench to kick the extra point that ended the battle with honors even.

Bronko Nagurski, the alert Minnesota end, who grabbed the Notre Dame fumble in the closing moments, shared honors of the day with Johnny Niemic, the Notre Dame halfback, who circled the Minnesota end for 17 yards and a touchdown early in the first period.

Experiment Proves Costly.

Nagurski's feat in the waning moments of the game brought to a tie for Dr. C. W. Spears, Gopher coach, a game that for three periods and a half appeared to have been lost by his experimentation in the sensational gesture of starting a seconud team.

The Gopher second-stringers, who started against a half and half Irish eleven, first-team line and substitute backs, held their own until Hovde, quarterback, muffed a punt after 10 minutes of play and Capt. John Smith of Notre Dame recovered. On the first play Nieskirted the Gopher left wing for a 17-yard run for a touchdown.

Spears thereupon quit experimenting and sent in a first team that provided Notre Dame with a large measure of stout battling the rest of the way.

With fingers stiff from the penetrating cold that caused a half dozen fumbles early in the game, both teams kicked frequently. Barnhart did a remarkable job of punting, but even his lofty kicks, which sailed over the head of the Notre Dame safety men, failed to outdistance substantially the re-

Jack Agrees Conditionally to a Match—Paulino Must Meet Others First.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Talk of a match between Jack Dempsey and Paulino Uzcudun, the Basque woodchopper, was in the air today after the boxers conferred here with Tex Rickard.

The former heavyweight champion agreed conditionally, to meet Paulino while Paulino expressed a willingness for the tilt if given assurance that he would be the man eventually to decide if Dempsey is qualified for a third meeting with Gene Tunney, the champion in the division.

BEAR LINE CRUMBLES BEFORE OKLAHOMA AND SOONERS WIN, 28-7

Comstock's Recovery Of Fumble Enables Washington to Score

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NORMAN, Ok., Nov. 5.—Washington University had no Ray Lecrone, no Roy Lecrone, no Marty Brown and no Bus Haskins this afternoon, and the Oklahoma Sooners, using a double criss-cross play and putting the Bears on the defensive early, finished on the long end of a 28 to 7 score in a Missouri Valley contest, which was not as uneven as that count would indicate.

There were flashes of brilliance to the Washington play. If there had been a shrewd general to direct the attack and if there had been two experienced and hard-tackling ends in green jerseys there might have been a different story to tell. But the double criss-cross, a quarter-to-halfback-to-halfback play smoothly executed without a fumble, fooled the Washington wings and enabled the Sooners to carry the ball deep into Washington territory in the first and third quarters, in which the four Oklahoma touchdowns were scored.

In the second and third quarters the Bears outplayed the Sooners and in the third period Comstock covered a Sooner fumble on the enemy's 13-yard line and two line bucks and a wild forward pass, Bickel to McCarroll, netted the only Washington score. There were other opportunities for the Bears, but the attack was not well directed. Bickel made mistakes and so did the other men assigned to the task of calling the signals.

Whittler Plays Fine Game.

McCarroll, Scheib and Whittler did their share, but their efforts were not enough. Whittler, sulking with the third string since Tuesday afternoon when he was chased to the showers for making a childish play, appeared to have loud himself. He was a devil on the attack and on the defense. He nailed his man time and again to stop Sooner attacks, and when the Bears had the ball he sent his opponent sprawling. But some of the other Bears did not do their parts in the team job of making a hole for the ball carrier and the hard-riding Oklahoma linesmen broke through and forced the Bears to punt and punt and punt.

Scheib played his usual perfect game at center. His passing was wonderful. He is one of the best passers Washington has had in years and he stood out as a star. McCarroll also played like a captain should play, except that he, too, was deceived by the baffling criss-cross plays and was pulled out of position time and again, lured to the inside of the line only to have the criss-cross send the ball carrier sweeping around his wing for substantial gains. But he made tackle after tackle to bring down a Sooner back behind the line of scrimmage.

Ray Lecrone, "freight train" they call him, was not to be stopped consistently, however. He dashed off tackle or plunged through the line with the reckless abandon that makes a great football player. When he was not carrying the ball it was Bus Haskins, 155 pounds of dashing, squirming dynamite. These two men alone gained enough ground to give the Sooners victory.

Wind Aids Sooner Punts.

The first break of the game came early in the first quarter. The Sooners had a stiff wind at their back and it was easy by an exchange of punts to put the ball deep in Washington territory. The Bears had had the ball on their 22-yard line. Two bucks at the line failed and a 15-yard penalty for holding put the ball on their 12-yard mark. Rawdon punted and the ball rolled out of bounds, 32 yards from the Washington goal line.

Haskins dashed around left end for nine yards and Ray Lecrone smashed through center for four and a first down. Haskins made four through the line, and "Freight Train" added eight more for another first down. A touchdown was only six yards away now, and Ted Whittler was sent in to stop the drive, replacing Axe at fullback. Ray Lecrone made a yard and Haskins another. Crider was thrown for a two-yard loss, and then came an aerial thrust.

McCarroll Grabs Forward Pass From Bickel for Washington Touchdown

Haskins ran back and flipped the ball to Crider and Crider lunged over the line for a touchdown. Churchill missed his attempt to kick the extra point, but it was awarded because the Bears were offside, and the Sooners had the upper hand, 7 to 0, and the wind was still at their back and blowing strong.

Washington received the kickoff and failed to gain through the line or in the air, and Haskins took Rawdon's punt and made a spectacular 35-yard return, placing the ball on the Bears' 20-yard line. Ray Lecrone made three yards through the line and, when the Bears piled up to stop the expected thrusts through the forward wall, Marty Brown dashed around from right end, circled the other wing and dashed down the side line 17 yards for the second touchdown and, when Churchill kicked the extra point from placement, the Sooners were out in front, 14 to 0.

Washington found itself in the second quarter and stopped the plunges of Ray Lecrone and the sweeping end runs of Bus Haskins, but there was no continuity to the Bears' attack and though they gained occasionally, they were forced to punt long before they could advance within striking distance of the Sooner goal. In the third period it was much the same. The Sooner backs were being nailed behind the line. The Washington wings were breaking up the end runs and keeping the runners inside.

Pass Gives Bears Score.

But there was not sufficient power to the Bear attack, and it took an Oklahoma fumble to give Coach Higgins' machine an opening that led to the one St. Louis score. The Bears, acting on orders, were taking advantage of the wind, exchanging punts, when with the ball on the Oklahoma 19-yard line Kidd made a wild pass and the ball sailed over Ray Lecrone's head. Comstock fell on the ball and after Whittler made four yards in two bucks and the third was stopped, Bickel passed to McCarroll, who leaped into the air for the ball, making the catch behind the goal line. Whittler kicked the extra point and the Sooners were only 7 points ahead.

Before the Bears could overtake the enemy the quarter ended and once more the Sooners had the wind behind them and once more they took the offensive. It was in this quarter that the double criss-cross baffled the Bears, and before the Washington ends knew what was happening Oklahoma had made its lead commanding.

Crider alternated with Ray Lecrone and Haskins in this period in smashing through the line and circling the ends on the baffling criss-cross and when Haskins' knee was wrenched and he was forced out of the game Mooney took his place and helped maul the Bears. On the first play Mooney made 10 through the line and added another yard on a similar play, putting the ball on the Bears' three-yard line. Once more the Bears massed to repel a line attack and this time Roy Lecrone swept from his end and circled the other side of the line for the remaining three yards and a touchdown. Once more Churchill's boot accounted for the extra point.

Criss-Crossed to Death.

There as only one smart thing to do with th ewinds to their backs and a 14-point lead and that was to punt into the Bears' territory and wait for a break and that's what the Sooners did. Mooney punted over the Washington goal line and when the Bears, playing from their 20-yard mark, tried a forward pass, Short, who replaced Ray Lecrone, intercepted Bickel's toss and downed the ball on the 20-yard mark. Mooney then made six through the line and after Short fumbled and recovered after a three-yard loss, the double criss-cross was used once more and Carmen swept around left end for 17 yards and the fourth Oklahoma touchdown.

Jim Gould of West Point, field judge, said the score of the game did not show the excellent fight that was waged by the Bears. He commended the work of Scheib, Whittler and McCarroll and said the outcome might have been different if the Washington machine could have repelled the attack of the Sooners in the early minutes of the fray.

Coach Higgins, of course, was disappointed. He probably would be glad to trade some of the excess beef on his squad for one good quarterback a field general of the type of Al Hayes. If Hayes had been at quarter this afternoon all the work of the Lecrones and the Haskins and the Criders might have been for nought. But there was no Al Hayes. And there was a Ray Lacrone, a Haskins, a Crider, a Marty Brown and a criss-cross such as made the Washington wing dizzy.

WISCONSIN'S RESERVES EASILY DEFEAT GRINNELL, 20 TO 2

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 5.—Wisconsin's reserves defeated Grinnell today 20 to 2. The pioneers only tally was a safety made in the first period.

Wisconsin scored in the initial period, but during the second and third was unable to get across Grinnell's goal line, the Pioneers fighting gamely, in their own territory most of the time.

In the fourth period Rebholz, Badger first string fullback, went across for two touchdowns. After Rebholz's first tally, Hayes' kick for goal was good, but his attempt after the second touchdown was blocked.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Miraculous If True.

WILLIAM BUSCH of Boston has just finished an amazing performance, crossing the Continent from Los Angeles to New York, 3900 miles, in 65 days. An average of 52 miles per day and a high daily record of 130 miles were among his achievements.

We are accepting the young man's word for it that he has done all the things he claims, since there was no supervision by responsible persons to render the records official.

The favorite for C. C. Pyle's transcontinental event is already assured, if Busch enters—and he says he will.

Beats 45-Year-Old Record.

ONE feature interests us. It is Busch's statement that he ran 130 miles in one day, as his best performance of the trip. Considering that this run was achieved on roads with necessary delays from traffic, not to mention hills to be surmounted, this feat is little short of remarkable.

The nearest record the writer could find was made by J. Saunders of New York City in 1882. In that year Saunders, running in a 24-hour race, on a track and under perfect conditions, ran 120 miles in 22 hours, 47 minutes and 23 seconds. In that race either Saunders was unable to finish the 24 hours at this pace or his opponent quit, for the record of the event stops 275 yards further on, without the 24 hours having been finished.

Busch not only ran the 120 miles, but went 10 miles further within the 24-hour period and this after having run the day before, and under the necessity of running again the next day or at most the day after. Busch, too, was not running on a track, but was taking the roads and the country as he found them with all the delays incident to cross-country travel.

It will be seen, then, that 130 miles in 24 hours completely smashes the best performance in athletic history.

He's At It Again.

WRESTLING will come back to the Coliseum next Tuesday. Mr. Ed Lewis and a lithe young wrestler calling himself Paul Jones, a familiar figure here, will be on display.

Lewis is making it easy for himself, in his opening engagement. In fact, Lewis seldom makes it hard for himself, as was shown when he forfeited $5000 rather than go through with a match against Stecher at Los Angeles last December.

In picking on Jones, Lewis acts advisedly. Jones was thrown last Wednesday night at Houston, Texas, by Rudy Dusek who is not rated in the upper ten of our best wrestling set.

Previously (within the last three months), Lewis twice wrestled Jones in Houston, Tex., winning two falls out of three the first time, and two straight falls on the second occasion, the Post-Dispatch's correspondent at Houston writes.

The Lewis and Stecher circuits are now synchronizing nicely. Unless some one of the stars becomes so unclubby as to try to throw the other without warning, a nice and profitable season will be had by all.

Midnight Golf.

JACK REDMOND, master of eccentric golf who is so funny with a driver he can make a clothes-horse whinny, will try one at the expense of St. Louis, if some local country club will lend him its links and its moral support.

Redmond, who will do his stuff at the Orpheum theater, next week, wants to play nine holes of golf at night time, with his only aid a flashlight, which he uses to locate the ball after playing his shots.

Redmond tried the stunt in Chicago, recently, starting at 11 o'clock, playing nine holes in one hour. He played the nine holes in par and lost only two balls!

What's all this stuff about keeping your eye on the ball?

Merry England Slipping.

SHADES of Robin Hood! England, the home of the longbow and where marksmanship with bow and arrow for centuries has been the theme of minstrel, poet and historian, is now second to the United States in archery.

There is no wiggling out of it—facts and figures tell the story. They are supplied by the result of the annual championship tournaments in the rival countries, this year.

This was when Locksley split a willow wand, from which the bark had been peeled, at thirty ells (about 101 feet) and brought down birds on the wing.

But today, the leading man in the British archery championship would have finished fifth in number of hits and fourth in score, had he taken part in the American championship.

Our St. Louis expert, A. W. Lambert, who finished second in the York Round in America, would have led England's best man by 23 hits and 63 points, had he participated in the British tourney with the same score he made in America.

The York round is the same in both countries, so that the comparison is fair.

Blue and White Trails Until Last Quarter When Lane Carries Ball Across for Touchdown.

The Webster Groves High School football team, displaying strength and speed, scored an upset yesterday afternoon by holding the undefeated Maplewood team to a 7-7 tie in a game at Webster Field. The contest was one of the best played and hardest fought in the county this season.

Neither team could get within striking distance of the goal during the first quarter but in the second period, a pass, Buchanan to Miller, that put the ball on the 10-yard mark paved the way for Webster's touchdown. Miller hit center for four yards and Salveter went over for the score. Nesbit kicked the extra point.

Lane of Maplewood featured the third quarter with several long runs and Wahlbrink's team had advanced to the 10-yard line when the period ended. Webster held for three down as the last quarter opened but on the fourth, Lane skirted right end for the touchdown. Childers tied the score with a place kick for the added point.

HAGEN RETAINS "PRO" GOLF TITLE

betrayed no emotion as hole after hole wore away with Turnesa still in the lead and playing consistently.

The crucial break finally came at the thirty-first green. Hagen had won the twenty-ninth to square the match, when Turnesa's ball hung on the edge of the cup and forced him to take a four. Turnesa's irons, which had been steady most of the day, wavered for a moment at the thirty-first.

His second missed the green and his third was 25 feet over the pin. Hagen got down an easy four but Turnesa took a six and was one down for the first time since the sixth hole.

Turnesa Plays Steadily.

The two then halved every remaining hole. Turnesa did not break under the strain, but Hagen gave him no opportunity to recoup. A putt that would have halved the match on the final green hung on the lip when Turnesa failed to give it the extra fraction of an ounce it needed to sink.

Turnesa apparently was in for a drubbing as the match got under way. He dropped an approach in a trap at the first green and overshot the third to go two down. That was the biggest lead Hagen ever obtained, however, as Turnesa took the sixth, seventh and eighth to go one up. Hagen was two down when the half-way mark was reached and turned into the last nine still one down. Each had a medal score of 148 for the 36 holes.

Turnesa took his defeat graciously, wringing Hagen's hand over the thirty-sixth cup, where his putt for a win was still hanging on the lip. The two then walked to the locker room shoulder to shoulder, where Hagen was handed a check for his capital prize of $1000 and Turnesa a check for the runner-up position which amounted to $600.

Wolverines' Passing Team Functions Well and Rich Plows Through Maroon Line.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—With their backfield ace, Louis Gilbert, returned to the lineup and furnishing the fireworks, the Wolverines came back today to serve notice on the football world that they still must be considered as a championship possibility of the Western Conference.

The fighting Michigan eleven, beaten a week ago by Illinois, with Gilbert wrapped in gloom and blankets on the sidelines, crushed "old man" Stagg's Maroons, 14 to 0, before a record-smashing crowd of 57,000 shivering spectators.

It was the greatest football crowd to witness a game in Chicago, with the single exception of the 110,000 throng for the Army-Navy spectacle on Soldier Field a year ago.

Passing Team Works Perfectly.

The speed, deception and punch of the Wolverines was so convincing today with Gilbert in the backfield that the result was never in doubt after Michigan started scoring. The famous passing combination of Bennie Oosterbaan, Michigan's All-America end, to Louie Gilbert, and Gilbert to Oosterbaan, worked to perfection.

Sharing the glory was George Rich, a rough fullback of Lakewood, O., who ripped the Chicago line to shreds almost every time he tucked the ball under his arm.

Oosterbaan and Gilbert scored the touchdowns with their thrilling passing, but Rich lugged the ball down the field to the point where their passes resulted in touchdowns. Rich, on the march preceding the first touchdown, carried the ball eight successive times, finally winding up at Chicago's one-yard line. Nothing apparently could stop him and he left the bruised and battered crew of Maroons strewn on the turf in his wake.

ILLINOIS KEEPS RECORD CLEAN, BEATING IOWA

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 5.—A hard charging fullback, F. Humbert of Geneseo, Ill., proved much for Iowa today and Coach Bob Zuppke's fighting Illini romped away with a 14 to 0 victory over the team coached by his former assistant, Burt Ingwersen, in the annual homecoming gridiron classic.

The victory gave the Illini an unblemished conference record, the green Hawkeye team going down to its third Big Ten defeat.

Although Humbert proved to be the irresistible force of the game, F. H. Walker of Urbana, a 170-pound sophomore substitute halfback, also tallied for the Illini, when he broke through the Iowa left tackle, cut back against the field, eluded the Iowa safety man and completed a 53-yard sprint for the second of Illinois' two touchdowns.

Walker's performance came after the start of the third period and followed an exhibition of line plunging by Fullback Humbert.

Central High Also Victim of an Upset, Beaumont Tying, 0-0

Favorites for High School League Title Are Stopped by Lesser Teams—First Game Halted Before Full Time.

By Gerald Holland

James Cook's Soldan High football team, counted out of the Public High School League race after last Saturday's unimpressive showing in a scoreless tie against Beaumont, regained its status as a title contender yesterday at the new stadium by scoring a 6-6 tie against Roosevelt, heavily favored to win. Beaumont provided a second upset by playing Central to an 0-0 decision.

A crowd of 7500 persons saw the problem of deciding this year's champion further complicated by two more tie games. Had the favored teams won, the matter would have been reduced to two teams, Central and Roosevelt. Now, Soldan has a slight chance of winning and a very good one to tie for the title.

Soldan can take the Yale Bowl for the fourth time by beating Central and Cleveland, providing Central can trim Roosevelt. Cook's team can tie by beating Central and Cleveland, but only if the former loses to Roosevelt. Roosevelt must beat Central while Soldan loses to either Cleveland or Central to gain a clear title to the championship. Central's chance at the title lies in gaining victories over Soldan and Roosevelt. Beaumont and Cleveland are out.

Schumitzky, Soldan Star.

In the first game, Soldan scored the touchdown in the opening minutes. It was the first scored against Roosevelt this season. The Rough Riders' only score came late in the final period.

Abe Schumitzky, all-star end of last season, shifted to quarterback, crossed the line with the West End Team's touchdown after receiving Johanningmeier's long pass on the 10-yard line. Johanningmeier's place kick was wide. Roosevelt had fumbled the kickoff, giving Soldan the ball on the 25-yard line at the outset. The backs plunged for a first down, were thrown for a loss, gained again, and drew a 15-yard penalty. Johanningmeier's pass from the 23-yard mark followed.

Roosevelt threatened to score twice subsequently during the period. A good gain by Sauselle gave the Rough Riders a first down on the 12-yard mark. Soldan grounded an enemy pass, threw the opposition for two successive losses, stopped another pass, and took the ball to punt out of danger. Late in the period a fumble within two yard of the goal-robbed Roosevelt of a touchdown. Schumitzky scooped up the ball behind the line for a touchback.

Soldan held the favorites for downs again in the second quarter after the Rough Riders had advanced to the 5-yard line. Johanningmeier's excellent punts averted further threats in that period. Neither team was able to get past the other's 25-yard mark during the third quarter, although Roosevelt outgained Soldan considerably.

Game Started Too Late.

Sauselle and Savage of Roosevelt led two long drives in the final period. The first was good for a touchdown; the second was stopped on the 6-yard mark when the game was called 3 minutes early because of the league rule which halts the first game at 3 p. m.

On the first march down the field, eight plays brought the ball to the 2-yard mark where Barnes, Roosevelt fullback, hit center for the score. Savage's place kick was wide. Sauselle and Savage had carried the ball 54 yards on plays when the whistle blew.

Roosevelt appeared certain to score and observers believed that with the 3 minutes remaining, it might have won. Observers, as observer will, advised that the final game start at 1 p. m. instead of 1:10.

In the first game Beaumont showed remarkable strength near its own goal line. Central threatened to score in every period but in each occasion found the line that had been weak at midfield, a stone wall near the point where the shadows of the goal posts used to fall.

Central tried a pass at the 7-yard line in the first period but it was grounded. A Beaumont punt was blocked on the play following but the alert North Siders recovered. The entire second quarter was played in Beaumont territory and Central had a first down on the 16-yard line but couldn't push the ball over. Walker's team got within 3 yards of the goal line in the next period to meet the same opposition. Central was held for downs on Beaumont's 15-yard line in the last period and it never came closer afterward.

Chart of St. Louis U.-Marquette Game

Jayhawkers Outweighed and Outclassed by Cornhuskers' Speed.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 5.—The University of Nebraska Cornhuskers, primed for their intersectional clash with Pittsburg at the "Smoky City" next week-end, passed and smashed their way to a 47 to 13 victory over the University of Kansas Jayhawkers before a homecoming crowd of 14,000 persons here today.

Kansas, although unable to penetrate the Huskers' beefy forward wall with any consistency in the first half, got a "break" when Cooper, substitute for Lyman, grabbed a 20-yard pass from Lawrence, substitute for Aash, and ran 56 yards through an open field to a touchdown. Half time found the score 13 to 7 in Nebraska's favor.

In the second half both elevens threw caution to the winds and launched aerial attacks interspersed with flashy plunging and broken field running.

The feature of the game came in the final period when Sloan, substitute for Presnell, took Schmidt's kick-off and ran 90 yards through the Kansas team for a touchdown.

Mixing passes with line plunging, Nebraska scored four touchdowns in quick succession in the third period, at the same time keeping its goal line uncrossed. One of the counters came when James caught a pass from Presnell which had been partially blocked and sped across the goal line. Coach Bearg sent in his reserves toward the close of the third period.

Scattering the Nebraska line in the final quarter, the Jayhawkers marched down the field to the one-foot line and Hamilton went over for the touchdown. Schmidt's place-kick was blocked.

Minnesota Team Ties Notre Dame, 7-7

Outside of the break by which Niemic scored, play was desultory in the first half, only a looming thrust by the Gophers after a Rockne fumble in midfield, altering the monotony. This came early in the first period. Two passes rushed the ball inside the Notre Dame 15-yard line, but a third toss grounded over the goal line and from then on neither team could develop a punch that carried it into scoring territory.

More Spears Strategy.

Spears changed tactics in the second half. He deliberately handed the Irish the offensive by kicking time and again on first down, but Rockne's versatile carriers, except for occasional flashes by Flanagan, Collins, Dahman and Niemic could not penetrate beyond midfield. The Gophers hovered over the play waiting for a break. Late in the period they took the offensive and marched down the field, holding the ball inside the Notre Dame 10-yard line when the period ended. Resuming the drive in the final lap, the ball was carried to the three-yard line. There it halted when a Notre Dame lineman broke through and mussed up Joesting, giving Notre Dame the ball.

Another Gopher offense was started but it lacked the power of its predecessor and the South Bend again took the ball, only to fumble on an attempted kick that permitted Nagurski to make his decisive recovery. Two smashes penetrated the Notre Dame line and then Joesting passed to Walsh and Pharmer, sent into the game, made the score-tying kick.

Desperate Passing Effort.

Having kept their aerial game under cover in the hope it could be saved for future games, Notre Dame cut loose and attempted a desperate passing rally. Two tosses grounded far beyond the outstretched arms of receivers. Another was incomplete, but the gain was allowed for interference with the receiver. A fourth toss never even left the hands of the passer, Niemic being tackled 10 yards back of his line of scrimmage by Haycraft, Gopher end, as the gun cracked.

The Notre Dame line throughout the game matched the play of the Gopher forward, gains by rushing being about equal. Minnesota had a shade the better of the air game, which Notre Dame was reluctant to use except in the last minute or two. The crowd packed the wooden stadium, being estimated at 25,000.

MISSOURI TRIUMPHS OVER WEST VIRGINIA

mage, while Missouri drove over for 14 and 181 scrimmage yardage. In the air, also, the Mountaineers carried supremacy. They completed four tosses for 48 yards, and Missouri three for 26.

Ten Mountaineer passes went afoul and four for Missouri. Each team intercepted one pass, but Mehrle's interception directly paved the way for a Tiger counter.

Missouri's ten punts averaged 39 yards each, while the Mountaineer punter essayed seven and his average was 36½ yards. Penalties debited the Missouri squad 50 yards, and West Virginia suffered 15 yards loss by this route.

Substitution Numerous.

Substitutions on both teams were numerous, and Tiger Coach Gwinn Henry worked virtually all of his 30 first string men.

Keefer's twisting, hurdling and execution of spin plays all but baffled the Tiger front wall, but the second defense always caught him, often when the tackler was the last obstacle between the West Virginian and the goal line.

Mehrle's spectacular 63-yard dash with the intercepted pass was nearly matched in brilliance by Larue's 33-yard end run for the Mountaineers. Kennedy, reserve Tiger back, reeled through the line, after first stumbling and gained 28 yards as the game neared its close. The last period found a Tiger team composed principally of reserves and play see-sawed the length of the field, with Missouri on the advantageous end.

ganization but the half-frozen crowd found both to its liking.

St. Louis U. plays Detroit U. here next Friday, Armistice Day, for the world at large and Homecoming day for the Billiken alumni. Detroit trimmed the Haskell Indians yesterday 38 to 7. That ain't such good news.

The crowd thought the Billikens deserved a touchdown in the first quarter of yesterday's game. Receiving the kickoff, the Billikens reeled off two first downs and carried the ball to Marquette's 2-yard line in a jiffy, where the visitors held. On the fourth down, Lintzenich tried a drop kick, which was low. The safety man, made a grab for it and the ball appeared to have been touched by him as it went through his legs. A St. Louis man recovered the ball across the goal line for a seeming touchdown, but the officials ruled that the safety man had not touched the ball.

STANFORD PROFITS BY WASHINGTON FUMBLES AND WINS, 13 TO 7

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 5.—Stanford University defeated Washington 13 to 7 in a fiercely contested football game today. Preston and Harder put over the Cardinals' scores and Carroll scored for Washington. The game was featured by close play throughout, with the ball see-sawing from one end of the field to the other. Fumbles brought about Washington's downfall. About 40,000 saw the game.

MORGANS LOSE SERVICES OF STAR CENTER FORWARD

Eddie Flavin Departs for Atlanta—Ben Millers Oppose Wellston in First Game Today.

By Dent McSkimming.

Fortune is frowning on the efforts of Harry McCarthy to build up a winning combination in the Morgan team of the St. Louis Soccer League. Injuries deprived him of the services of Joe Hand and Charley Oster last Sunday and now he has lost his star center forward, Eddie Flavin.

Flavin has been employed by the Ramona Kennel Club and with many others of the personnel he has departed for Atlanta, Georgia, where a new track is being opened. He will be missing from St. Louis soccer for three weeks or more and possibly for several months.

In the absence of Flavin, Manager McCarthy will probably use Joe Hand at center forward today against the Tablers in the second game of the league double header at Sportsman's Park. Hand has recovered from the effects of a strained ankle. Oster is also ready to return to his halfback position so that the defense will be somewhat stronger than it was last Sunday against the Ben Millers.

Other changes will be made in the lineup of the Wellstons, who oppose the Ben Millers in the opening game.

Harvard a Poor Match for Penn

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—The "gun that wasn't loaded"—a Pennsylvania eleven with a death grip defense and supposedly little offense—blew up in the face of Harvard today in the first football meeting of these ancient trials in 22 years.

While 60,000 frenzied fans looked down from the broad reaches of the Franklin Field horseshoe, the Red and Blue team that had bowed to Chicago, Penn State and Navy on successive Saturdays kicked the "dope bucket" all over the field to trounce a stubborn Crimson eleven, 24 to 0.

The Harvard offense dropped into high gear only in spots in the first, third and final quarters.

Otherwise the game was a display of Pennsylvania's crushing line power and new found ability to take advantage of every "break" offered. Only once did Penn march to a score unassisted by Harvard lapses and then the Red and Blue drive from its own 44-yard line, aided by a 21-yard forward pass from Wascolonia to Paul Scull, ended in the latter kicking a 17-yard field goal in the second period.

Penn scored two touchdowns in the third period, the first when Ed Hake, giant tackle, blocked French's punt and raced 25 yards for the score. A few moments later, Paul Scull intercepted a pass on Harvard's 36-yard line and in three plays Shober dented the Crimson goal.

PROSECUTOR TO QUESTION FIGHT COMMISSIONERS

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—Removal from office of members of the California Athletic Commission may be asked by the City Prosecutor for their alleged failure to protect the interests of fight fans who paid more than $70,000 but failed to see Joe Dundee defend his welterweight crown against Ace Hudkins last Thursday night.

Turning toward the commission after causing the arrests of the champion, his manager, Max Waxman, and Promoter Dick Donald, the prosecutor announced he had ordered the three commissioners to appear at his office Monday and explain what they knew of the fight scandal.

If they could not satisfactorily answer three questions he would put to them, the prosecutor, Dr. E. J. Lickley, said he would make them parties to the "gigantic fight fraud" and ask Gov. C. C. Young to remove them from office.

Dundee and Waxman succeeded in delaying their pleas to charges of false advertising until Monday but Donald pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for next Monday. Bail for both Dundee and Waxman was increased to $2500 in view of the delayed pleadings.

The Three Questions.

Lickley said he would ask the commissioners, Seth W. P. Strelinger of Hollywood, Louis Almgren of San Diego, chairman, and Frank Traung of San Francisco the following questions:

1. Did the commission have any knowledge of the fact that Waxman had a secret contract with Promoter Dick Donald calling for a $60,000 guarantee to be paid in advance?

2. Did the commission have knowledge that any part of this advance guarantee had been paid to Waxman prior to the evening of the fight? And if so, what did they have to say about it in the face of their own la. that no money is to be paid fighters in advance?

3. Why did not the commission, which was present on the evening of the fight, and aware of the fact that no fight was going on take place, at once order the refund of money to the $2.20 seat purchasers who were given no stubs to show for the money paid?

Governor Lends Support.

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 5.—Promising gubernatorial investigation, Gov. C. C. Young today advised City Prosecutor E. J. Lickley of Los Angeles to carry the prosecution to such length as he may deem necessary as a result of the Dundee-Hudkins boxing fiasco, Nov. 3.

The Governor's action, outlined in a letter dispatched to Lickley tonight, was in answer to a telegram from Lickley in which the Los Angeles prosecutor declared the State Athletic Commission was negligent, possibly actually violators of the law, and that it might be necessary to prosecute them.

"You need have no hesitation as far as the State is concerned in instituting such prosecution as you may deem proper," said the Governor's letter.

The Governor added that he would get in touch with the secretary of the commission on Monday and endeavor to ascertain the facts in the matter.

Peoria Eleven Outweighs Blues For Game Today

The Peoria, Ill., Independents will outweigh the St. Louis Blues 9 or 10 pounds to the man in their scheduled professional football game this afternoon, at Stars Park, Compton avenue and Market street.

Three linesmen who tip the beam at 200 pounds each and a fullback of the same weight are named in the starting lineup for the visitors. Peoria will average close to 185 pounds, against 175 for the St. Louis aggregation.

Most of the Peoria players are from Illinois colleges, but of their three stars, Tackle Hornbaker, halfback Sawers and Halfback Egan, the first-named is from Minnesota.

Peoria has won four of five games played previously this season.

The Blues, led by Al Hayes, gained a victory in their only contest to date. That was before Pete Jackson, the former Missouri U. star, joined the local team.

Starting time is 2:30 o'clock.

JOCKEY GUILTY OF WILFUL FOUL STEWARDS RULE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—While most of the country's racing followers were stunned by the action of the Maryland Racing Commission today upholding the Maryland Jockey Club in suspending Jockey Earl Sande and revoking his license, thus barring him from all tracks until the ban is lifted, many of the old-timers merely grinned and looked wise.

Especially was this so among the jockeys and racehorse trainers familiar with Sande's riding history. According to these Sande, whose riding ordinarily is called "daring," has been getting away with "murder" because of his reputation and the desperate chances he takes.

"There's few tricks of the trade Sande doesn't know and few that he hasn't pulled in races," one jockey commented today.

Sande, who was hauled on the carpet yesterday for his ride in the Pimlico Futurity, when he crossed in front of Reigh Count while riding Bateau, causing the favorite to pull up and lose the race wept when he appeared before the stewards. He complained bitterly that Jockey Lang on Reigh Count, not himself, was to blame. Sande charged that Lang had taken hold of him and thereby forced him and his mount to swerve to the rail ahead of Reigh Count.

Patrol Judge's Story Different.

The patrol judge told a different story and described Sande as deliberately pulling across his rival and jamming him into the rail.

The stewards termed Sande's offense a "wilful foul" and Sande was immediately stripped of his badge and ordered from the grounds. He left weeping.

Joseph E. Widener, for whom Sande rides, came to Baltimore today to intercede for the boy, pleading with the Racing Commission to reinstate him. However, the racing powers here are determined to stamp out foul and rough riding and they will go to the limit to accomplish their end.

Sande for several years has been esteemed the country's greatest rider. Until yesterday his record has been clean although fellow-riders have questioned his sportsmanship at times.

Sande's Banner Year, 1923.

In 1923 Sande reached his greatest season, winning $444,000 for owners of his mounts. He rode the Kentucky Derby winner Zev and he also piloted Zev in his race against Papyrus for $100,000. Only twice during the 1923 season were his mounts beaten.

In 1924 a fall during a race at Saratoga resulted in an injury which, it was thought, would keep him out of the saddle for all time. He pulled a marvelous comeback, however, and was riding in his old time for a year or two later.

Vashon, the new Negro high school, won its third consecutive football contest yesterday, defeating the Lincoln high school Tigers of Kansas City, Mo., 6 to 0 at Star's Park.

A lateral pass and a left end run by Pearson, who crossed the line for a touchdown in the second period were responsible for the locals' victory. In the last three minutes of play in the fourth quarter, Graves and Hayes of the visitors completed five forward passes, but got only as close as the 15-yard line.

The Tigers made six first downs, while Vashon made five.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—William Busch of Boston, the 21-year-old athlete who yesterday set a new transcontinental running record from Los Angeles to New York, will continue his run from here to Boston, where he will conclude his journey next week early.

Despite his long grind, which lasted 65 days, Busch is in good condition and hard as nails despite the fact that he dropped in weight from 151 pounds at Los Angeles to 129 pounds in New York on his arrival yesterday—a loss of 22 pounds.

Busch's performance, it is said, beats the old record for the 3900-mile distance by more than 12 days. The record is 77 days, 8 hours, according to athletic authorities.

Busch's run averaged 52 miles each 24 hours and he says that he ran every step of the way. His best one-day performance, he declares, was 130 miles from Zanesville, O., to Pittsburg.

Swam Rivers En Route.

Busch passed through St. Louis en route to New York. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he covered every step of the route without accepting any sort of aid. He said that he swam many rivers and creeks and crossed others on railroad trestles. His route was mapped out carefully and he was able to maintain his schedule with few exceptions.

Lewis Works Out At National Gym

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former wrestling champion, arrived in St. Louis last night to conclude training for his match with Paul Jones, of Nebraska, which is to headline the mat program at the New Coliseum Tuesday night. Jones is expected to reach the city today.

Training headquarters have been established by the Headlock artist at the National Gymnasium, where he will work out at 2:30 this afternoon with a staff of partners including Lloyd Carter, Joe Gonzales, Tommy Marvin and Frank Nelson.

Jones' practice partners have already been arranged at the National Gymnasium. George Tragos and Joe Sanderson will aid him in his workouts.

Joe Malewicz, the "Utica Panther," who meets Jim McCluchstock, Indian champion, in the semi-final of Tuesday night's card, has wired Promoter Tom Packs that he will reach the city tomorrow. His opponent is also looked for Monday.

George Tragos, 1920 Olympic light-heavyweight champion, and Tommy Marvin, Dallas flash, are already in training here for their set-to in the first bout on the Coliseum A. C. program.

LIZARD SHOWS FINE FORM IN JUMPING RACE

Widener's Great Steeplechaser Wins by 10 Lengths in Manly Memorial Hurdle Event.

By the Associated Press.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 5. — J. E. Widener, the Philadelphia sportsman, added another gold cup and $8500 to his 1927 earnings, when his horse, Lizard, scored by 10 lengths in a common gallop in winning the Manly Memorial Steeplechase, run over the trying course of two and a half miles here today.

It was really no contest, as Lizard jumped in his best form, simply made a show of his field, leading all the way and winning under stout restraint. Lizard was heavily played, and paid $5.50. Madrigal II was second and Elder, the imported jumper, third. Lamarsa was fourth. Mantonian fell and Danopi pulled up.

Harry Payne Whitney's Pandera, under 115 pounds, scored in a romp in winning the fifth race, a six-furlong sprint. She was a hot favorite and won as her rider pleased.

Sagamore Stable's Star Gold, paying $24.40 for a $2 ticket, won the first race by a nose over the well-played first choice, Angry Mood, with Memora third. Fly Fairy jumped away to the lead but around the turn Angry Mood moved up and into the lead, but Star Gold, which was on the inside, held on gamely to win by a nose. Angry Mood took the place by two lengths.

Black Beetle Shows Stamina.

E. R. Bradley's Black Beetle was a handy winner of the third race, in which 2-year-olds were asked to run a mile and 70 yards. He led all the way and won by a length from the fast closing Bridegroom, with Friar's Hope third.

Principia Wins Over Cleveland

Dingee Registers Both Touchdowns for Cadets' 12-0 Victory—Cleveland Seconds Win.

The Principia Academy football team defeated the Cleveland High eleven, 12 to 0, at Taylor Field, yesterday afternoon. Coach Marquard's players scored early in the opening period and again in the third quarter. With the exception of the fourth quarter the Cleveland team was mostly on the defensive.

Cleveland received the kick-off, but after the first play fumbled the ball and Scott, Principia fullback, recovered. Two end runs put the Academy squad in scoring position. Quarterback Dingee made the first touchdown on an end run. McLaren's kick was blocked.

Neither team appeared able to gain much ground at the start of the second quarter. Near the end, however, Principia advanced to the Cleveland seven-yard line. A bad pass caused Principia an eight-yard loss. Cleveland then held for downs.

The feature of the third quarter was Dingee's 52-yard run, which put the ball on Cleveland's 18-yard line. Dingee caught a forward pass from Mueller to make the gain. Two more gains by Dingee put the ball across the Cleveland goal line for the second touchdown. Power missed goal. Cleveland then began to make some gains due to brilliant runs by Covington, the tall halfback.

BUCKEYES ARE OUTPLAYED FOR THREE PERIODS

All Three Tiger Touchdowns Scored by Wittmer—Game Played Under Adverse Weather Conditions.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 5.—Ohio State's battling but disorganized Buckeyes invaded the Tiger lair today and emerged badly battered and torn after a one-sided fray on a watersoaked gridiron. Princeton's flashy eleven, exhibiting a stonewall defense as well as a sharp, hard-hitting attack, swept the Ohioans off their feet and won by the decisive score of 20 to 0.

While the chilled crowd of close to 40,000 spectators looked on, Princeton's brilliant sophomore halfback, Ed. Wittmer of Pittsburg, scored all three of the Tiger touchdowns with one of the year's greatest exhibitions of ball carrying. Wittmer's slashing, plunging drives were the outstanding features of a game that kept Princeton's unbeaten slate clean and gave the East its biggest intersectional win so far in the 1927 campaign.

Outplayed by a wide margin for three periods, kept out of the reach of the Tiger goal and forced back constantly on the defensive by a succession of line battering thrusts, Ohio State cut loose with its only scoring threat in the closing few minutes of the game.

Eby Stars for Ohio State.

In this last desperate charge, led by the twisting dashes of Byron Eby, Ohio's forces swept down the field from their own 18-yard line to Princeton's three-yard line, where Eby made it first down. Four plays were unable to budge the Orange and Black wall, and the last bid, a completed pass, resulted in a yard's loss. The Tigers took the ball on downs as the final whistle blew.

Ohio State's slashing finish, with Eby tearing off a beautiful dash for 24 yards and piercing the Tiger line repeatedly until he got within striking distance of the goal was merely a desperate finishing gesture by a team that was badly outplayed from the start by a Tiger eleven that had speed, power, alertness and a brilliant defense.

Princeton profited greatly by the "breaks." The Tigers got two of their touchdowns as the direct result of blocked kicks, but the other was the product of a sustained 70-yard march. Wittmer, ably supported by Mike Miles and Jack Norman, furnished the scoring punch each time.

In the first period he climaxed a 40-yard advance by a touchdown, but the Tigers were offside on the play.

Two touchdowns in the second period clinched the game. The first came when Capt. Moeser blocked Fouch's punt and fell on it on Ohio's two-yard line. One smash at center sent Wittmer over. Taking up the attack shortly afterward, Princeton swept 70 yards to tally again, Wittmer gaining 38 yards at one clip on a pass from Earl Baruch and dashing eight yards around end for the score.

In the third quarter Lawler swept through to ward off Grim's kick and Jack French recovering it on Ohio's nine-yard line. Four smashes by Wittmer put the ball over.

Frisbie Almost Proposes to a Mermaid

—But Remembers His Duty to the Public

No. 23—A Fighter's Letters to His Manager

"MISS BUTTLE". I SAID, WHAT YOU NEED IS A GOOD HUSBAND WHO CAN BACK YOU UP WITH ENOUGH JACK TOSEE THAT YOU GET A SQUARE DEAL

By Walter Davenport

DEAR PATSY: I guess you have heard of Myra Buttle, but it will be a big surprise to you to know that she would marry me in a minute if it wasn't that as a promising young heavyweight I owe something to the public which you cannot do if you are married.

Miss Buttle is a big swimmer who would of swum the channel six or eight times if it wasn't that she has enemies. Every time she was swimming the channel somebody got next to her trainers who were riding like a lot of saps in a tug boat and they would not steer the boat straight across to England, but would keep turning north so that Miss Buttle would give up in disgust when she found she was swimming toward the North Pole and not toward England like the rest. She would sue the big crooks only she has not get any jack which is where I would come in if I wanted to and did not have my duty to the public.

I met Miss Buttle for the first time last night in a newspaper office where I was being interviewed by the editor who wants to tie me up to write stories the minute I win the championship.

"This is Miss Myra Buttle who is training to swim the Mississippi River," the editor said.

"Is she going to swim across it or up it," I said

"Up and down it, he said. "I said she was going to swim, not wade. Miss Buttle, this is Mr Frisbie."

"Well," she said, "who would of thought that poor little me would get the breaks like this."

"What do you mean," I said.

"It isn't very often a girl who has had all the bad luck I have meets a big man like you."

A Slicker on Looks.

PATSY I am a rassler if this little girl did not begin to cry and I do not mind saying that she got me for about a minute because I have seen them all and Miss Myra Buttle has it all over them all like a slicker when it comes to looks. She was still holding my hand from shaking hands with me and while I am always on my guard for stuff like that still in all this was something different if I do say so.

"Oh, I don't know," I said. "I guess I am big enough but that's nothing. How about having an oyster stew on me this time."

"Well," she said. "I hardly know you but as long as you are such a big man I guess there is no use of my saying anything."

Patsy it would of got you if you could of heard this little girl's story. She used to be a stenographer but took up swimming for the sake of her old mother who lives in Manayunk, Pa., on a pension. She swum from Buffalo to Detroit once but it happened the day Lindbergh got home and nobody noticed it. Also when she was a little girl she swum to Catalina Island not knowing that the World War was going to end that day which attracted so much attention that the newspapers forgot all about mentioning her feet. Also she would of swum from New York to Albany if she had not got struck by a tug boat at Yonkers which gave her a cramp.

K. O. Frisbie Thinks.

AS she was telling me about her self like this I got to thinking. So I decided I would kid her a little to get her in a good humor. I would not of thought of doing so if I did not think she was a fine girl with a sense of humor and would understand that I was just trying to make her feel good. Also as I have said she would make all the girls in Hollywood, Cal., look as if they have been sleeping in a coal wagon.

"Miss Buttle," I said, "what you need is a good husband who can back you up with enough jack to see that you get a square deal."

"Mr. Frisbie," she said beginning to cry again, "if I thought you were the sort of man to make fun of a poor little swimmer I would of said no when you invited me out to eat with you."

"I am not kidding you," I said, "but I am serious. Suppose you was to marry the champion."

"What champion of what?" she said.

"The champion heavyweight fighter of the world." I said.

"Who, Gene Tunney," she said.

"No," I said.

"Well then Jack Dempsey," she said. "With them fighting every night or so I can't keep track of them. All I can think of is how I get gypped every time I go swimming."

"No, Miss Buttle," I said, "it ain't Jack Dempsey either. I am the champion by rights and while I could not marry you or anybody else for that matter it will do no harm to answer my question."

"Mr. Frisbie," she said, "are you a boxer or are you just having a little more fun with a little girl?"

A Proposition for Frisbie

WELL, Patsy, the funniest feeling came over me when she said that. I guess it must of been something I eat. But I sure was feeling like I was going to be sick. Also I could see that while Miss Buttle was a fine looking girl and all still she was pretty dumb which would never do if she and I was to be pals.

So I said good night. Before going she told me that a big millionaire in Baltimore has a son she knows who is willing to bet fifty thousand dollars that she could not swim Lake Michigan.

"It is like telling me I can't take a sponge bath without getting drowned," she said. "If I had $5000 for training and seeing that my old mother in Manayunk was comfortable I could take that fifty thousand like a bucket shop. This is a business proposition. You put up the five grand and I will split fifty fifty and let you steer the boat because you will be honest and keep the boat going straight and not have me swimming around the world because it will be to your inteerst to see that I do not have to swim any more than the length of Lake Michigan."

"Well, Miss Buttle," I said, "I will have to ask my manager, Patsy O'Brien."

So she began to cry again and I left. I am quitting my job as trainer for the football team here at Wawa University where I am boxing instructor also. I had words with Hep Crispin, the football coach. He tried to have some with me, too. He ought to know it never gets anybody much to talk to a boy who has the old killer instinct, not that you need worry about me. Hep will be all right in a day or so.

Yours truly,
K. O. FRISBIE.

Patsy Is Surprised.

DEAR FRISBIE: I am surprised to hear you did not slip that deep water dame the five grand she needed. If somebody else had told me the story and asked me to guess what happened I would of bet five to three that you had slipped her the dough. You ain't the Frisbie I used to know. When I first knew you you would of given her the jack even if she offered to prove that there wasn't any millionaire in Baltimore with a son who wanted to give her fifty thousand to swim Lake Michigan. It is too bad in a way to see you getting so wise. Don't get too wise. Don't pay attention to the guys who try to tell you that the Santa Claus business is the bunk. Everybody's got to be a sucker in some way. See you soon. Don't let any of those automobile driving women give you a lift. They'd take advantage of a traffic cop, those dames.

Your manager,
PATSY.

EVENTS RECITED IN PREVIOUS LETTERS

HARVEY (K. D.) FRISBIE, boxer, chauffeur and lady-killer, managed by Patsy O'Brien, secures a summer job as life saver at Belgravia Beach. Various adventures follow at the beach. The season is culminated by Harvey being offered a job as personal chaperon to Ralph Alps, known as the hurdling half-wit, a college boy who takes his drinking seriously. Old man Alps asks Frisbie to keep Ralph out of trouble. Harvey takes the job and when the fall term at Wawa University starts, Alps takes his guardian along with him. Frisbie is soon appointed boxing instructor and trainer for the football team.

Golfer to Play Night Exhibition

In an effort to prove his contention that a fairly good golfer can play as well after nightfall as in the daylight, Jack Redmond, golf professional and fancy shot expert, will play nine holes on the Sunset Hill course, starting at 11 o'clock Tuesday night. His only light will be that of the moon, a small pocket flashlight and a lantern, which a caddy will hold near the pin to which he is shooting.

Redmond, former golf coach at Yale University, who will be at the Orpheum all week, starting today, giving an exhibition of trick shots, asserts that a person's game can be better at night than at day, adding that a golfer's greatest faults are lifting the head to see where the ball is going and pressing to get a tremendous distance. When it is dark, Redmond declares, the player knows he, or she, cannot see the flight of the ball and consequently concentrates on hitting the ball clean and following through to insure accuracy, thus avoiding the commission of the two errors.

At the Sunset Hill Country Club Redmond will have a caddy reflect a small pocket flashlight on the ball when he takes his stance and swings. Several hundred yards down the fairway two other caddies will be stationed to hear where the ball falls, and at the pin will be a fourth caddy with a lantern.

COHEN MEETS WEBER IN 5-GAME MATCH

Ben Cohen of the Witters and Ollie Weber will meet in a five-game match on the Congress Alleys, Ninth and Washington, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. This will be the first individual match of the season in which Cohen has rolled. He has been bowling well in two different leagues this season, however. Weber is at the top of his game at present. He won the Congress Handicap Individual Tournament last Sunday, with a scratch total of 660.

1927 LACKS OUTSTANDING 3-YEAR-OLD

Whiskery, Brown Bud and Bostonian Have Been Beaten Many Times Since Early Spring.

By Clement Glaub.

With the end of the 1927 fall racing season near at hand, no outstanding 3-year-old has been developed in the East or West. This year's crop of racers has been below the average. Eight thoroughbreds lay claim to the 3-year-old championship, the best of which are Whiskery, Brown Bud and Bostonian. The other claimants are Osmand, Rolled Stocking, Buddy Bauer, Handy Mandy and Sir Harry.

Although all of the above thoroughbreds have won stake races and handicaps, they have been beaten many times by other horses.

Whiskery's qualifications for the title are victories in the Kentucky Derby renewal and the Stanley Produce Stakes. Brown Bud's triumphs were in the Maryland Handicap and Jockey Club Gold Cup, while Bostonian's greatest achievements were the winning of the Preakness Stakes early in the spring and the Riggs Handicap.

Osmand, Joseph E. Widener's crack gelding, was rated as the best 3-year-old in training in the spring, but did not show any class at distances over a mile, in the summer and fall. Most of his victories came in races at six furlongs and one mile.

Whiskery a Busy Racer.

Whiskery has been commuting between New York, Maryland and Kentucky since his victory in the Kentucky Derby. After the running of that stake he was sent to New York. At Saratoga he was beaten by Montferrat and then defeated Kiev, Rip Rap and Bewithus. In the Manhattan Handicap at Belmont, Whiskery lost to Valorous, then his stablemate, Kiev, and Osmand. He won the Twin City Handicap a few days later, beating Display and Peanuts. He was then shipped to Havre de Grace and finished second to Jock in the Potomac Handicap. After that he went to Woodbine Park and participated in the Stanley Produce Stakes and Toronto Cup Handicap. He won the former, but was beaten by Gallisman, Display and Edisto in the Toronto Cup race.

Following those races Whiskery was sent to Laurel for the Maryland Handicap. He started in that race and finished second to Brown Bud. His next start was at Latonia in the Championship Stakes. Only five horses started in this race and Whiskery finished last, tiring during the last half mile. He was beaten by Rolled Stocking, Wooldridge, Royal Julian and Brown Bud.

Brown Bud a Late Arrival.

Brown Bud, owned by Frederick Johnson, who raced the good horse Quatrain at New Orleans a few seasons ago, did not come into prominence until late in the summer. He has been the most consistent 3-year-old in the country. During the spring he was campaigned at Pimlico and Laurel and when the Belmont season opened was shipped there.

In September he defeated Jefferson Livingston's Recreation in a two-horse race. In the Lawrence Realization at Belmont, Brown Bud finished second to Nimba, owned by Marshall Field. On Sept. 17, he defeated Chance Play, Crusader, Black Maria and a few other 4-year-old stars, in the Jockey Club Gold Cup, but was disqualified when his rider permitted him to swerve in the stretch and interfere with other runners.

Brown Bud did not start in another race until Oct. 22 when he faced the barrier in the Maryland Handicap at Laurel. In this event he took the measure of Whiskery, Jock, Sir Harry and Buddy Bauer and earned $26,050 for his owner.

He ran such a fine race in the Maryland Handicap that Johnson decided to send him to Latonia for the Championship Stakes. He shipped well and went to the post the public's choice to win. He got off to a fair start, but the best he could do was third to Roled Stocking and Wooldridge.

Brown Bud came out of the Latonia Championship in sore condition and owner Johnson decided to retire the Brown Prince II colt for the winter. Brown Bud is now at Johnson's Scarlet Gate Farm, near Lexington.

Bostonian Much Beaten.

Bostonian, Whitney's other good 3-year-old, has won only a few races since his victory in the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico, in which he defeated all the good 3-year-olds.

Since winning the historic 3-year-old stake, Bostonian has been beaten by Display, Black Maria, Mars, Crusader, Chance Play and Nimba. He was defeated twice each by Brown Bud and Display. The others defeated him once.

When he was beaten by Crusader he was in receipt of 14 pounds. Chance Play also gave the colt the same edge. Display, in beating Bostonian twice gave him two pounds in one race and nine in another. When he met Brown Bud the first time, Bostonian gave the Johnson racer six pounds. In the late race the weights were shifted and Bostonian was given four pounds less than Brown Bud.

Handy Mandy's only claim for the 3-year-old title lies in her victory in the Latonia Derby, in which she broke Man o' War's record for a mile and a half. Her time of 2:28 3-5 clipped one-fifth of a second off the old American mark. Handy Mandy has not won many races and has been beaten by Laurel Hall, only a fair handicap horse; Yeddo and other ordinary handicap horses.

Bobby Jones Favors a Golf Ball That Will Shorten Drive Of Expert But Not Hurt Duffer

By Bobby Jones

National Amateur, British Open and Southern Open Golf Champion.

IT SEEMS now, in the light of some things I have read, that upon returning from Britain this summer I allowed myself to be quoted, with regard to the desired adoption of a standard ball, before I was ready or qualified to say anything of a definite nature. I remember talking, and writing, with some enthusiasm about certain experiments which were being made in England with a solid gutta percha golf ball. I tried to avoid the expression of any definite opinion as to just what we ought to do or what ball we ought to adopt. Apparently I did not do so.

I have just read in London Golf Illustrated a very well considered article which points out the great danger to the popularity of golf of any legislation which will make the game difficult beyond the capacity of the average player to enjoy it. Such an action, I agree, would mean the ruin of the support of the so-called average golfer, who, after all, is the backbone of the sport. Golf truly is not a science. It was never meant to be measured by scientific standards. It is a game for recreation and enjoyment. And it is a great game for recreation and enjoyment. And it is a great game mainly because it is not necessary to play it well to enjoy it.

JONES

I think we may find a middle ground that will bring back into competitive golf the versatility and all-around skill which to a great measure have been made unnecessary by the driving power of the present ball.

Gutta Percha Out of Question.

OBVIOUSLY, the gutta percha ball is out of the question. True, it behaves very nicely for the pitches and around the green. It is more easy to control than the modern ball within 100 yards of the hole. But on the long shots, to one brought up on the rubber ball, it has a most unpleasant bound and feel off the club.

The floater is better mainly because it is rubber and yields to the club more in the manner of our accustomed ball. But it, too, I think, is too short for our long courses.

The present ball has a diameter of 1.62 inches, and the floater one of 1.72 inches. The proposed standard, I believe, is 1.68 inches in diameter, with a specific gravity of 1.10, just enough to make it sink in water. The claim is that the resiliency can be controlled so that the driving power may be regulated accurately within certain limits. The proposal is to take 20 yards off the normal drive of the long hitter, reducing it from say 250 yards to 230 yards.

Would Add Interest to Game.

First, let us see just what effect the change would have upon the game of the expert championship contender. Using a ball which he can drive 250 yards and more, the long driver or the average professional can reach the green in two shots on any hole up to 500 yards, and with favoring wind and roll, he is able to do the same on holes somewhat longer. Now, suppose we take 20 yards off each stroke, he can cover only 460 yards in two fine shots, and is still left with a pitch of 40 or 50 yards, which is the play for which the hole is designed. Similarly, on the 440 and 450-yard holes, the limit par fours, the iron must give place to the wood for the second shot, and only holes under 350 will be played with the drive and pitch or mashie.

What about the average player? How will this affect him? Not very much, I think. I have always contended that it was a great mistake for a man who cannot drive over 200 yards to use the small, heavy ball which is made primarily for expert play. The tremendous power of the ball is due largely to a tight winding. It is therefore hard and it needs the crashing blow of a powerful hitter to extract from it its full potential distance.

All these considerations go far to make up for any loss of distance which the new ball might entail. But we must not lose sight of the fact that a decrease in resiliency which will take 20 yards off a drive of 250 yards, will not reduce a drive of 175 yards by the same amount, nor even proportionately. If my understanding is correct, the reduction will be made by a looser winding around the center of the ball, and the softer core will necessarily respond more readily to a lighter blow, so that I should think at the most it would mean a sacrifice of five yards for the shorter drivers, which is very little to give in exchange for a ball which in all other respects would be much easier to play.

BETHLEHEM LOSES, 2-1, TO NEW YORK NATIONALS

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 5.—The Bethlehem soccer team, American League champions, suffered a costly defeat today when forced to bow to the recently revamped New York Nationals in a league game here today by the score of 2 goals to 1. The defeat was the second for the Steelmen this season and the first defeat on the home grounds.

YALE DEFEATS MARYLAND, 30 TO 6; SNYDER RUNS 91 YARDS TO SCORE

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 5.—Showing a brilliant aerial attack, Yale smothered the old liners of the University of Maryland in the bowl here this afternoon, 30 to 6. The blue regulars remained in the game only through the first half, being relieved, after they had piled up five touchdowns, by the second team. The seconds had difficulty in playing the Marylanders on even terms.

The feature of the day was provided by Gerald Snyder of Maryland who ran a Yale kick-off back 91 yards for a touchdown, showing some of the most spectacular open field running seen in the bowl this year. The play came after Yale had scored her third touchdown in the second quarter.

FOREST PARK, UNION ELECTRIC LEAGUE.

Electric vs. County, 2 p. m.; Office vs. Steam, 3:30 p. m. Referee—J. H. Cradock.

Today's schedule of games in the Municipal Soccer League provides an opportunity in several instances for the lower club to lighten the division race by defeating the leader. At Sherman Park this is very likely to happen for the Finans, in third place, meet the Yellow Cabs, who are leading the race.

It is possible that three clubs will be tied with 4 points each after the Sherman Park doubleheader, for the Finans are expected to win from the Yellow Cabs and the Geraghtys are likely to defeat Phil Kavanaugh's Y. M. H. A. eleven, all of which would result in a triple tie. Dick Wall, one of the best Municipal Soccer League referees, will have charge of the double-header.

Brandts Threaten to Climb.

At Carondelet Park, the leading German Sports Club team may lose its advantage through idleness, having drawn a bye. The Brandts can assume the lead if they turn back the Spanish Club but St. Thomas also has an opportunity to forge ahead in playing Uncle's Place. The Brandts again appear to be one of the strongest clubs in the amateur league and the race will probably be reduced to a battle between the German Sports Club and the Brandts with the Spanish Club not far off.

If the St. Matthews are going to be a strong factor in the race at Ground Two at Fairground Park they will have to win from the Angelicas today. The latter club, composed largely of the Morgan players of last season, has won one game and tied another, whereas the Matthews have lost one and tied one.

Andy Hack to Play Today.

Manager Maurice Dalton announced last night that his St. Matthew team will line up as follows: O'Connell, goal; Hack and Anderson, fullbacks; Meyer, Schemel and Schmidt, halfbacks; Brannigan, McCarthy, Ratican, O'Hara and Burns, forwards.

Managers Meet Tomorrow.

All team managers of the Municipal Soccer League will meet at Sherman Park tomorrow evening to discuss with the newly appointed coaching staff plans for the selection of players who will compose the St. Louis Olympic team squad. The coaches who will also attend are Paul McSweeney, Dick Jarrett, Billy Klostermann, John Finnegan, John Amman and Richard Brannigan.

The Call of the Outdoors

By ALEC MERMOD

AS THE opening of the quail season is near it may be of interest to the readers of this column to know a little about the many species of the partridge family, commonly known as "quail."

Ornithologists tell us that "bob-white" and other members of the family are not quail, but should be classed as partridges, for the true quail is only found in the Old World. Be that as it may, the sportsmen of the Middle West are going to continue calling "bob-white," quail till the end of time.

Mr. D. G. Elliot, in his book entitled "Game Birds of North America" names four different families of the Bob-White, though, from his description and from the writer's personal observation there is not a great deal of difference, except, possibly the "Masked Bob White" which is enough different to be noticed by any observing hunter.

Mr. Elliot describes the "Bob White," the Florida Bob White, the Texan, and the Masked Bob White. The Florida bird is described as being darker than the Northern, or as is commonly known in the Southern Atlantic States, as the Virginia Partridge, and in addition to this difference in the color of the plumage the Florida bird is somewhat smaller.

Habits and Calls Similar.

THE Texas bird is the same in all respects except the plumage is a bit lighter in color than the Northern bird, and the male bird has a pale cinnamon chest band beneath the black collar. The habits, calls and food of these three birds are similar, and I frankly admit that I have never noticed the difference between the Texas bird and the ones I have killed in this section and in most of the Southern states except Florida.

The "Masked Bob White" is quite different in color marking from any of the others mentioned above, but his mating call is exactly the same. This member of the family is not abundant in the United States, in fact is not found in any other State than Arizona, and is not plentiful there, for his natural habitat is Sonora, Mexico.

The next in line are the quail commonly classed as California quail, and Mr. Elliot names six varieties which differ somewhat in the color markings and habits. The names and short description of each follows:

The Mountain Partridge.

THE mountain partridge is found on the Western slope of the coast range in California and Oregon, and has been introduced into the State of Washington where it has thrived wonderfully well. This is a handsome bird, marked very differently from our Bob White, and a bit larger, and in addition to these both the cock and hen have a crest of two black feathers which slope back from the top of the head, and with the exception that these crest feathers are shorter on the hen there is very little difference between the male and female. The mountain partridge lies fairly well to the dog, though in this respect does not lie nearly as close as the different members of the Bob White family.

The plumed partridge is so nearly like the mountain partridge that it is only by very close observance that anyone can distinguish any difference, and I am inclined to believe that there should be no distinction between the two.

The San Pedro partridge is restricted in Lower California, and is found from the foothills to the tops of the highest peaks, estimated t over 12,000 feet in height. The call notes are soft and can be heard for quite a distance. The call sounds like "chay chay" and resembles a flute in sweetness. In color markings this fird is different from the Mountain Partridge, having more slate colored feathers blending with brown.

Not a "Sporty" Bird.

THE California partridge is found in the coast region of California as far north as Vancouver's Island, and while not originally found north of Oregon, was introduced into the State of Washington a number of years since and for some time did wonderfully well. These birds are found in enormous flocks, as if many broods had united, and when found in these large flocks the birds are very wary, and depend on running rather than flying to escape the hunter, are not a very sporty bird. The crest consists of a small bunch of black feathers held closely together, and bend forward instead of backward as is the case with the Mountain bird. This bird will not lie to the dog.

Gambell's Partridge, another member of the socalled quail family, is the handsomest of them all, and very much resembles the others in general appearance, except the crest which bends forward and branches out into four plumes. His range extends from Western Texas, through New Mexico and Arizona to California. Like all the rest of the Western birds it is almost impossible to make this bird take wing, and I believe is the most aggravating bird to hunt, and there is very little sport in shooting them.

Gambel's Partridge seems to be able to stand extremes of temperature, seeming to be as comfortable where the thermometer registers 100 in the shade as in the mountains at an elevation of 9000 feet where the air is quite cool.

The Sealed Partridge.

THIS bird has several local names, as "Blue Quail," "White Top-Knot," "Crested Quail" and "Cactus Quail." He ranges from Western Texas through New Mexico and Arizona and into Northern Mexico, and like the California Partridge runs in very large flocks —I have seen as many as 100 in a single flock.

The color of the Scaled Partridge is a slatey blue, each feather bordered with black, giving the plumage a scaly appearance. The top-knot consists of a ruffled bunch of feathers very like the top-knot of our bluejay.

Paris Night Club Setting for Debut Of Elise Whittemore

Country Club Transformed Into Boulevard Cafe and Cabaret — Leon Errol Master of Ceremonies for Show.

A REAL night club proprietor in his wildest flights of imagination could not have conceived more brilliant colorings, bizarre decorations and sumptuous entertainment than did youthful Miss Elise Whittemore, owner of "Elise's Night Club," brought perhaps from La Place Pigalle on the Montmartre of Paris, which opened for a single performance at the St. Louis Country Club Friday night as the setting for her debut party. It was a corner of gay Paris in one of her most frivolous moments and the result was one of the most elaborate parties ever given in St. Louis.

Once inside the front door of the Country Club, the guests found themselves in a boulevard cafe of the French capital, with tables and chairs attractively arranged, inviting occupancy, lighted by curious lanterns shaded by carnival-hued globes upon which balloons were painted.

The incessant squawks of an automobile horn directed attention to the entrance of "Elise's", her name emblazoned in colored incandescent lights over the door and the opening blocked by a florid taxicab trimmed with yellow and lined with blue, disgorging passengers, while a corpulent driver, equally florid, sat behind the wheel, dressed in red and green duster, silk hat and checkered necktie, announcing each newcomer with a blast from his horn as they climbed through his ardent vehicle, now stalled in the doorway. Being thus precipitated somewhat suddenly into the foyer of the "night club," one found one's self in a luxurious hexagonal room, the corners cut off into tiny sitting rooms by gilded pillars which appeared at intervals and held in place orchid and white satin draperies covering the walls from ceiling to floor. On each pillar was fastened a French doll head, framed in silken puffs of the tri-colors of France, with long satin streamers. One side of the room represented the window of a dancing club, a marked dancer silhouetted against the pane, and a prism of light above her head. At another side, next to the tea garden, was a pergola of gilded posts and satin, the aperture banked with baskets of flowers and here Miss Whittemore and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Levering Whittemore, received their guests.

As one walked through the "club" the decorative colors changed. In the middle room the lavender was combined with blue and futuristic paintings adorned the satin walls. An orchestra stall was elevated from the floor and partly inclosed in draperies with flared fans held to the pillars.

In the main dining room the riot of color reached a climax. Broad stripes of red, yellow, and white satin lined the walls and there were paintings that might have been done in some studio in the Latin Quarter. Here a fencing girl showed her skill with a foil; there a lonesome swain twanged a banjo on the beach or a hideous gargoyle grinned. Balloon painted shades inclosed the lights, connected by a lace work of tinsel. From the cool green depths of the East room one could see the reflections of vari-colored balls thrown on the screen by a great revolving mirrored sphere, the effect produced by red and green searchlights.

Miss Whittemore presided over the debutante table of 37 guests, surrounded by smaller ones for the remainder of the 420. At a signal imported rockets and cotton balls began to sail through the air, and the guests donned gorgeous Parisian headdresses of crepe paper, and tinsel trimmed with plumes and jewels of every conceivable shape, and the carnival was on.

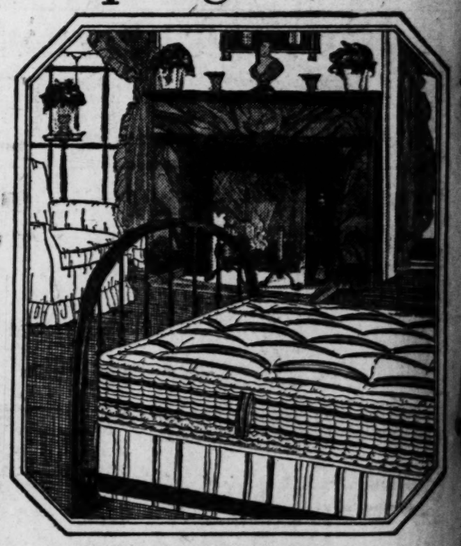
THIS perfected new open coil bed spring—the "Ace"—is the achievement of Simmons, largest makers of beds, springs, mattresses. As Mrs. J. Borden Harriman says, "It is the last word in luxury."

The "Ace" is built throughout of the finest steel. Its scientific, sturdy construction assures not only comfort but lifetime wear. The trim tailored banding finishing the upper edge is an important new feature—exclusive with Simmons.

In furniture and department stores. Other Simmons Springs, $7 to $60; Beds, $10 to $60; Mattresses, $10 to $100. Look for the name "Simmons." Our local branch serves your dealer promptly. The Simmons Company, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco.



Mrs. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN'S guest room

Note the new Tailored Banding

YOUR ST. LOUIS
How Well Do You Know It?
COLUMBIA TERMINALS COMPANY

THE COLUMBIA TERMINALS COMPANY provides for the shippers and receivers of freight in St. Louis a freight transfer service which, because of its modern methods and equipment, is outstanding in its field. Other large cities frequently send representatives to St. Louis to study Columbia operations.

Beginning in 1902 with a few teams and wagons, the company has grown into the operator of a fleet of 103 tractors and 430 Lapeer Semi-Trailers, supplemented by a number of trucks. The working organization includes 750 persons.

It is not out of the ordinary for the COLUMBIA TERMINALS COMPANY to handle more than 7,500,000 pounds of freight in a single day, including every imaginable variety of less-than-carload shipments.

The fundamental principle upon which the COLUMBIA TERMINALS COMPANY has built its growth is recognition of the fact that accurate and prompt freight transfer is vitally essential to the business success and progress of St. Louis. Columbia methods have been aimed to give St. Louis business the greatest possible advantage in its commercial competition with other cities.

Columbia Service has been aptly described as motorized railroad service operating into the industrial heart of St. Louis. It is the largest and most modern enterprise of its kind in America.

Every day this space will be devoted to some one particular manufacturing plant or industry which is contributing to the dynamic growth of St. Louis.

Acid Scalp

How many carefully coiffured heads can stand the test of eyes only inches away, and reveal not a speck of dandruff? How many women can warm to the dance, and know their hair will have no taint for the partner who holds them close?

If you even suspect this acid condition of the scalp, it is time for Danderine. This scientific preparation will neutralize any acidity; and dissolve all dandruff if there is any. And it always gives the hair itself a lovely softness and sheen. It will wave better, hold a wave longer, and behave better all the time if you just occasionally apply a few drops of Danderine. Try it! Every drugstore has this perfect conditioner of the scalp and hair, and a thirty-five cent bottle lasts for weeks

"'Tis Sweet to Be Remembered"

The "milk of human kindness" is sweet—but it can easily be turned sour by ingratitude.

Favors — kindness—assistance are oft repaid by "thank you"—"much obliged"—"it's so kind of you"—all too soon forgotten.

Mere words are but scant appreciation for the thoughtfulness shown us by others. Bear in mind the deed—strive to repay in a befitting manner.

You will then have established ANOTHER GOLDEN RULE—by DOING UNTO OTHERS AS THEY HAVE DONE UNTO YOU.

Movie Stars Rely on FARR'S

Movie stars must stay young and slim or lose their jobs.

So they slenderize and rely on Farr's as the safest way to restore the natural, original color whenever a gray spear appears.

Farr's is a common sight in the dressing rooms at the studios. It is freely used because they have proved it to be absolutely harmless, perfectly clear and clean, not sticky and will not rub off nor stain the scalp.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then organs clean, thus often avoiding to help keep the kidneys and urinary serious kidney disorders.

Fight for Maine Hydro-Electric Power

Insull Interests Beaten at Every Turn

By Defeating Effort to Repeal Primary Law, Citizens Keep Control of Natural Resources in Their Own Hands, Thwarting Efforts to Make Possible Sale of Electricity Outside of State.

By Raymond P. Brandt.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 5.

BY defeating at a popular referendum the move to repeal the direct primary law, Maine preserved, for a few years at least, the sole right to use all the hydro-electric power generated within the State. Had the primary law been rejected instead of retained, by a 2 to 1 vote, the industrial future of Maine would have been in the hands of Samuel Insull of Chicago and his New England power group.

Credit for the retention of the primary law must go to Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, former Gov. Percival P. Baxter and the Portland Evening News, a liberal newspaper started just two weeks before the referendum election.

On the surface, the referendum election was a political fight between Gov. Brewster, who is somewhat of a progressive, and the Republican old guard, that wants to go back to the convention system of selecting candidates. Underneath, however, there was a continuation of a hydro-electric power fight which began in 1909 when Baxter, then a member of the State Legislature, put through the so-called Fernald law, prohibiting corporations from exporting hydro-electric power from the State.

Power Group Close to Insull Interests.

The leaders of the power group, known now in Maine as the Insull interests, were Walter S. Wyman, president of the Central Maine Power Co., an Insull subsidiary; Guy Gannett, owner of four influential Maine newspapers, a director of the Fidelity Trust Co., of which Wyman is president, and a former stockholder in the Central Maine Power Co.; Mrs. Guy Gannett, Republican National Committeewoman for Maine, vice president of the Antiprimary Committee; former Gov. William T. Cobb, president of the Antiprimary Committee, now associated with the Rumford Falls Power Co., and in 1917 leader of 16 associated industries which Dunbar of Machias, vice chairman of the repeal committee and a paid registered lobbyist for the Central Maine Power Co., and Leonard A. Pierce of Portland, attorney for the power company and a member of the executive committee of the repeal group.

When the charge was made that the Insull interests were concerned about the referendum, Ernest Gruening, editor of the News, telegraphed Samuel Insull for a statement. Insull made the following reply:

"Your telegram asking whether I favor repeal of primary in coming Maine election on Oct. 18 received. I know nothing about the primary law of Maine or its repeal and have no interest directly or indirectly in the matter."

Both Gov. Brewster and his predecessor, former Gov. Baxter, were inclined to accept the statement as sincere. They pointed out, however, that Samuel Insull had not to their knowledge been in Maine recently and might not know the interests of his companies here. A denial similar to Insull's was made to the writer by Col. F. H. Farnum, Wyman's representative in Augusta.

Proof of Insull Link Admittedly Lacking.

History and logic do not bear out these denials, according to the leaders for the primary, who contend the Insull interests had millions at stake in the referendum. These same leaders admitted, however, that there was no positive proof that the power group directly managed the election for repeal of the law.

"If the primary law had been rejected, Maine would be governed by a group of men you could put within the boundaries of this carpet," former Gov. Baxter declared. "Those men would represent the Insull power companies, the Fidelity Trust Co. of Portland and the Gannett newspapers. They would see to it that the Fernald law was repealed, that power generated in Maine would be sold in New Hampshire and Massachusetts to the injury of Maine industries.

"Had the old guard been successful in defeating the primary, I haven't the slightest doubt that the next objective would have been a repeal of the referendum law, the only instrument the voters have had to check the maneuvers of those who are out to get whatever they can lay their hands on.

"To understand the political and industrial situation here, one must realize that water power, now called hydro-electric power, is the chief natural resource of Maine. Whoever controls the water power controls the industrial life of the State. The history of the fight for control goes back to the Colonial days, when power sites were sought as lumber and grain mills and textile centers.

Defeats Power Interests

GOV. RALPH O. BREWSTER OF MAINE

Power Brings Maine to Fore in Industry.

With the recent development of hydro-electric power, Maine has loomed large as an industrial State. Already the State leads in par capita consumption of electrical energy, with .66 horsepower per person. The developed resources generate more than 500,000 horsepower, and it is estimated another 500,000 horsepower still is waiting to be tapped.

Now almost all the profitable power sites have been gobbled up by private interests. The problem has been how power shall be supervised so the natural resources of the State shall not be exploited for the benefit of a few. As a member of the State Legislature, Baxter saw the trend of modern industry and the increasing use of hydro-electric power. He decided to safeguard Maine industries by prohibiting the transmission of Maine hydro-electric power outside the State.

In 1909 Baxter succeeded in having the Legislature enact his bill to the effect that no corporation should be permitted to ship power over the State borders. Bert M. Fernald, later United States Senator, was Governor at the time. The Baxter bill became known as the Fernald law. Since 1909 this measure has been the stone wall which has turned back the power interests wishing to sell Maine power to the neighboring States.

Big Industries Try to Repeal Measure.

The first attack against the law came in 1918, when hydro-electric power was generally being recognized as the cheapest motive power. William T. Cobb, president of the late Antiprimary Committee, formed a group of 16 large industries, representing $150,000,000, with the avowed purpose of repealing the Fernald law. The Central Maine Power Co., as yet unabsorbed by the Insull interests, was a leader in the fight. The strategy was to defeat Baxter and his associates. Baxter won and the power question was quiescent for a number of years.

In 1924 Brewster succeeded Baxter as Governor. Brewster, then only 36 years old, had helped Baxter in his water power fight and was known to be irrevocably pledged to the Fernald law. Like Baxter, he had had the support of the State Grange, the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Ku Klux Klan, and was not looked on favorably by the old "machine." It may have been for this reason that in 1924 the first petition for a referendum on the primary law was circulated. When it was presented to the Legislature with 12,000 names attached, the Legislature ordered an election.

Brewster, the new Governor, ordered an investigation of the signatures. More than 3000 names were found to have been fraudulently acquired. The Governor refused to order the election.

A backward glimpse of the exposure was given this year when the second referendum petition was being circulated. This was contained in a confidential letter sent by Judge Benjamin F. Cleaves, former chairman of the Work of Gov. Brewster and Friends Continuing Battle Begun in 1909, Gives Lease on Life to Local Industries —Next Object of Interests Would Have Been to Kill Referendum, Says Ex-Gov. Baxter.

The confidential letter was significant because it shows the tie-up between the industries of the State, which were then fighting for repeal of the Fernald law and the primary referendum. The first part of the letter was devoted entirely to arguments for repeal of the power law. This was followed by the following resume of the referendum situation:

It really looks as though the matter of the repeal of our primary law would go to the people for settlement. Petitions aggregating about 14,000 signatures were seasonably filed with the Secretary of State and are now being investigated by the Committee on Judiciary.

I have seen some of the petitions, have talked with the man responsible for their circulation and filing, and he tells me that this time he is absolutely sure his petitions are correct. The man who has been responsible for their circulation is J. Fred O'Connell of Bangor.

Two years ago petitions were filed, but evidently many of the people who circulated them for Mr. O'Connell double-crossed him and sent in petitions which were not genuine. The result was that Mr. O'Connell spent quite a bit of money for which he got no return and was suspected (unjustly, I believe) of personally trying to "put something over" on the people.

Asks for Financial Aid Toward Petitions.

This time he seems to have been not only persistent but careful and the general impression is that he has an ample margin of names so that the matter in some form will go to the people for their decision.

Incidentally, Mr. O'Connell has spent a lot of his time, quite a bit of his money and stands to lose unless he gets some financial help. He is about $400 in the hole at the present moment and would appreciate any small contribution toward his actual expenses which anyone sees fit to make. I am merely passing this along to you as a suggestion which I heard made by several of our members.

The repeal of the Fernald law, to which Cleaves referred in the first part of his letter, was concerning the hottest fight the Maine Legislature has seen for years.

The Insull interests openly had come into the Maine hydro-electric field in July, 1926, by announcing the purchase of the Central Power Co., heretofore controlled by Walter S. Wyman, Guy Gannett and a small group of Maine capitalists. This power company in itself represented the consolidation of 30 or 40 small companies. The Insull group, represented by Martin Insull, paid $140 a share for the common stock, which a short time before had been quoted on the stock market at 40 and 45 and had been valued for income tax purposes at $25 a share.

It also was known that Insull was interested in the Twin State Gas & Electric Co., which supplied power to cities bordering on Maine and New Hampshire. He had acquired control of this smaller company by purchase into the National Light, Heat & Power Co., a holding organization of New York.

Since his purchase of the Central Maine company, he has acquired control of the Cumberland Power & Light Co., a large operating company on the East Coast, and the Western Maine Power Co., which has been acquiring sites in Western Maine. All except the Cumberland company have been absorbed by the New England Public Service Co., which also has holdings in New Hampshire and Vermont.

According to Baxter, this New England Public Service Co. gives a key to the Insull strategy in Maine. Maine has power and the Insull companies in New Hampshire, Vermont and even Massachusetts want it, according to Baxter and Brewster. The question is, shall the neighboring States be given this power when Maine industries are growing? Shall New Hampshire and Vermont grow at

There Never Will Be a Foolproof Plane, He Thinks, but Dangers From Mechanical Breakdown Will Be Eliminated.

THIS is the second of a series of interviews with three of the outstanding transoceanic aviators who have made 1927 the most spectacular year in aeronautical history. The series is designed to show what progress was made in aviation this year, what the successes and failures demonstrated, and what may be expected in the future. An interview with Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, who, with Albert F. Hegenberger, made the first flight from California to the Hawaiian Islands, was published Oct. 23. An interview with Clarence D. Chamberlin, who flew from the United States to Germany, will appear in the near future.

By a Staff Correspondent.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.

AMONG the few aviators qualified to discuss the problems of trans-oceanic flying, Commander Richard E. Byrd is pre-eminent. In the first place he is a sailor of the sea as well as of the air. He is a scientifically minded, serious student of aviation and is the inventor of several navigating devices. Finally, he has flown to the North Pole, flown from the United States to the coast of France, and will probably be the first man to fly to the South Pole.

"This year's trans-oceanic flights, the spectacular successes and the tragic failures have proved many things," Commander Byrd said. "The successes demonstrated the reliability of modern airplane motors, the necessity of constant radio communication and the value of long preparation.

Reasons for Failures.

"The failures have proved that the science of aerial navigation must be developed and simplified to a point where it can be utilized, after a little study, by any aviator. They proved furthermore, that instruments must be invented which will permit flying, entirely by instruments, in any sort of weather. I am convinced in my own mind that some of the trans-oceanic flyers went down in a tailspin in a fog because they could not fly by instruments, and I am just as sure that some of the Hawaiian flyers missed their objective and flew beyond the islands because they could not navigate.

"The instruments most needed now are a wind-drift indicator which will function in fog and at night when land, sea or celestial observations are impossible, and a more reliable earth inductor compass. The inductor compass is the coming instrument and is based on the correct principle. It must be made, however, to function perfectly at all times."

"Can navigation be simplified so that one who is not a seaman can get practical results?" was asked.

"I am working on that now," he replied. "I think that I will be able to offer some understandable short cuts which, with a little study, will enable a novice to use the correct methods. In my own flights I was able to use these cuts."

What a Flyer Must Know.

"Before air travel is safe," Byrd continued, "the flyers must learn to navigate and know where they are every minute of the time. On the North Pole flight, I made observations every three minutes. On the trans-Atlantic flight, conditions were not so favorable for there were hours when we could not see the sky, ocean or land. Observations were impossible. At that time our radio saved us. We were able to plot our position from advices sent to us from ships. As trans-oceanic flying continues, this service from ships will be extended, and, with the proper navigation, flyers will be as sure of their position as sailors at sea.

"I understand that a radio sending apparatus has been installed at Le Bourget Field as a result of the American flights. This will be a valuable aid to flyers."

Asked for a brief resume of what he thought his North Pole and trans-Atlantic flight had accomplished and what he expected from the South Pole attempt, Commander Byrd said:

"The North Pole flight was made after long study of conditions and a thorough investigation for the right kind of equipment. It demonstrated the practicability of the three-motor plane for long distance flights and it proved the worth of the air-cooled motor. It proved that accurate navigation would take a plane to a remote objective, one not even on the map, and that no place in the world was inaccessible. To the world, it showed our confidence in the airplane.

"Then there were some incidental discoveries, resulting from local conditions. We found that we could take off from the snow. That was a terrific job, but we were able to do it. We also found that—barring fog—we could fly in any sort of weather.

"The trans-Atlantic hop was a different proposition. We were out for scientific data. Again we chose the three-motor plane. We found that by increasing the wing area we could take up 4000 pounds more, even though our objective was much farther away. It may be that the wing area cannot be increased much more than we had on the America, but that is a point to be studied.

"The North Pole flight was made by two persons, Floyd Bennett and myself. The trans-Atlantic flight called for a crew of four—myself, Acosta, Noville and Balchen. Besides this we had a pay load of 700 to 800 pounds made up of mail, gifts and the like.

Flying Fields Inadequate.

"Our difficulties on this side proved the inadequacy of American flying fields. They must be improved if lives are not to be needlessly endangered. We proved that a heavy, three-motor plane could take off heavily loaded. Up to that time, the attempts had resulted in 100 per cent failures. There were the Noel Davis tragedy and the Rene Fonck attempt, and we had our own smash-up at Teterboro. But we finally made the take-off with a full load.

"We believed then and I believe now that the America is the type of the future airplane. With our equipment, we could have flown to any point in the civilized world. We were able to fly through rain and fog and still keep to our course, except when we reached France. There our inductor compass stuck and we circled over the country. I am sure that we covered at least 4200 miles on that trip.

Plans for South Pole Flight.

"On our South Pole trip, we will be much better prepared than we were on the other two ventures. We know more about our equipment and we have learned much about flying at different altitudes. As on the North Pole trip, we will be flying under the most adverse weather conditions. If we can conquer the South Pole, we shall have proved that the airplane can go anywhere."

"Next to the South Pole flight, what do you think should be the next objective of aviation?" was asked.

"It doesn't make so much difference," he replied, "but we must get away from mere daredevil exploits. Aviation can only

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I NOTE in your Jefferson City correspondence of Oct. 30 a statement indicating that two of the present members of the Missouri State Highway Commission are either opposed to another State road bond issue or are in doubt as to its feasibility; also that Theodore Gary, ex-chairman of said commission, is quoted as being opposed to such bond issue and in favor of a pay-as-you-go plan.

I am wondering whether the question has ever occurred to Mr. Gary and those other commissioners as to where Missouri would be now in the road improvement program had that pay-as-you-go idea prevailed in 1920? Those of us who campaigned the State that year on behalf of the $60,000,000 State road bond proposition know that a herculean effort was required to put it over, that its approval did not "just happen" but was the result of earnest, persistent Statewide effort.

The 7640 miles of highway planned for construction with that bond money, augmented by Federal and other funds, will provide Missouri with the nucleus of a wonderfully practical and valuble system—when completed. But it is yet far from completion and there are more than 100,000 miles of additional public roads in the State urgently needing improvement. Missouri made a heroic and praiseworthy start in 1920 to lift herself out of the mud—why stop now by adopting the dilly-daily pay-as-you-go tactics and thereby slide back into the mud again? New York, Pennsylvania, California and Illinois did not follow that method—why should Missouri do so?

Certainly another State road bond issue will require the payment of interest, but at a much lower rate than individuals or small municipalities can secure money. But the use of the improved roads which that bond money will provide will far more than offset the interest cost, and the ability of the State Highway Commission to contract large mileage construction will not only enable it to secure lower bids than it could with the piecemeal pay-as-you-go plan, but also to retain and utilize the present efficient organization it has built up.

If improved 365-day roads are needed and worth their cost when honestly and efficiently constructed—as every intelligent citizen of the State will now concede—why delay getting them until a large part of the present population is dead? M. V. CARROLL.

And Superpatriots.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE League of Nations was repudiated because we want no entangling foreign alliances. Hence, it is evident that our action in Nicaragua is not on foreign soil. Nicaragua belongs to us. No withdrawals until that country has been colonized by 100 per cent American Nordic blonds. PATRIOT.

To Admirers of Verhaeren.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A MOVEMENT has been started in Belgium to raise a memorial to Emile Verhaeren in his native village of Saint Amand on the banks of the Scheldt. It has been suggested that in the literary world of America there are many admirers of the great poet who would like to join in this tribute to his memory. It is not a question of "begging for funds." The entire sum could be raised in Belgium if necessary, but it is felt that the memorial should be given a more international character and should be a tribute from the admirers of Verhaeren in the countries which his genius touched as well as in his native land.

We would suggest that any contributions, no matter how small, should be sent to the Emile Verhaeren Memorial Fund, Central Union Trust Co., Forty-second street and Madison avenue, New York City.

36 Per Cent Off for Cash.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN regard to Walter J. Grant's explanation of the increase in bankruptcies among the working class. Why blame the loan shark for getting the fool's money when the working man does not know how to take care of his money? He should look ahead when he gets his weekly salary and shy away from the loan shark and the installment plan.

I will give just a little instance. A friend of mine went to buy some furniture and was asked $300 for a certain article. My friend said she wanted to pay cash, and the clerk said, "Oh, for cash. That's different." She bought the article for $190.

BUY FOR CASH.

OIL FRAUD'S TANGLED WEB.

The Harding administration was a little over a year old when, on April 17, 1922, Albert B. Fall, as Secretary of the Interior, signed the paper which leased Teapot Dome to Harry Sinclair.

That had been a busy year for Fall. He had to cajole Secretary of the Navy Denby into surrendering the administration of the navy's oil reserves to the Interior Department. He had to get an excutive order from the President empowering him to lease the properties. He had to get moral support for his nefarious action in the shape of geological opinion that the naval reserves (Teapot Dome and Elk Hills) were threatened with drainage by private operators in adjacent fields. He had to get persuasive indorsement of the wisdom and patriotism of his knavery in the shape of official naval testimony as to the imminent danger of war with Japan. He had to contrive a plausible explanation for the secrecy of his dealings with his fellow conspirators. He had to quiet the eagerness of many oil men who, learning that the reserves were to be leased, wanted the privilege, vouchsafed them by law, to compete in the bidding.

It took patience, energy, much maneuvering, bold bluffing and artistic buncombe to do all this, but Fall did it.

Finally, Fall had to get a lot of money. He was worse than broke. He was over ears in debt.

He got the money. He got $100,000 in currency from Doheny in the famous black satchel. He got $230,500 in bonds of that paper corporation, the Continental Trading Co., Ltd., of Canada, of which Sinclair was one of the promoters, organizers and beneficiaries. He got another $25,000 in bonds from Sinclair, which Sinclair's personal attorney, the late J. W. Zevely, sent to an El Paso (Tex.) bank, with Sinclair's wry consent that "if Fall wants it we've got to let him have it."

The financial transaction between Doheny and Fall was crude, primitive, border-day stuff. The cold cash. Not so with Sinclair. Here was the intricate scheming of Big Business obscurantists at their willest, subtlest, best.

It is November, 1921. The first act of the frenzied-finance comedy or farce, which, alas, has evolved into an international tragedy, was staged at 60 Broadway, New York. The late A. E. Humphreys, a Texas oil operator, had an ocean of oil for sale. He was in conference with men able to buy it—Sinclair, Stewart of Indiana Standard, Blackmer of the Midwest Refining Co., O'Neill of Prairie Oil and Gas. They offered to take 30,000,000 barrels at $1.50 per barrel. The contract was drawn up. In the instrument the buyer appears as the Continental Trading Co. Humphreys had never heard of that company. Neither had his attorney, Senator Thomas of Colorado. Nothing strange about that. The company had just been organized. It was still wet behind the ears. But it was magnificently sponsored. Sinclair and Stewart guaranteed the infant's ability to lap up 30,000,000 barrels of oil like so much Castoria. The Continental sold this oil to Sinclair and O'Neill's companies, in which Stewart and Blackmer were interested, at $1.75 a barrel. That 25-cent profit piled up enormous sums which the president of the Continental, a Canadian lawyer named Osler, invested in Liberty Bonds. It was from that source that Fall got his price for leasing Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

Fix the date of the Continental Trading Co.'s birth. November, 1921. That was only eight months after Albert B. Fall first warmed the chair of the Secretary of the Interior in Harding's Cabinet. That was six months before the lease was signed.

What dealings Sinclair had with Fall before November, 1921, are as yet unwritten history. It must be inferred, however, that Sinclair, in November, 1921, knew what he was going to get from Fall and approximately what he was going to pay Fall. The brief, but opulent, life of the Continental Trading Co., its sudden demise, the burning of its books and the subsequent flight of its organizers to Europe, Africa and Central America to escape testifying in the Government's civil suit at Cheyenne to recover Teapot Dome—all this circumstantially shows that Sinclair's associates in the Continental knew something big was brewing, something big and crooked. The Supreme Court of the United States has blasted the Continental as an enterprise organized for "no legitimate purpose," a judgment from which none of these eminent business men can ever appeal.

But all the elaborate machinery invented and assembled for concealing the bribery of Fall by Sinclair was labor lost. The Government's special counsel dragged the corpse of the Continental Trading Co. from its vile, suicidal grave, dragged forth the infamy of Fall and his son-in-law, who shared in the swag, spread the whole story of corruption before the public and at last brought Sinclair and Fall into court on the charge of criminally conspiring to defraud the Government.

Now that legal action has been halted, the Court has declared a mistrial, the jurors have been discharged and summoned before a grand jury on the charge that detectives for the defense had made improper efforts to have contacts with the jury.

In this last black chapter the Burns Detective Agency is involved in the allegation of unsavory espionage of, and sinister inquiry into the affairs of the peers who were to pass upon the guilt or innocence of Sinclair and Fall.

Such is the historical sketch of Big Business malefactors and "a faithless public officer" in the third decade of the twentieth century under the Harding-Coolidge administrations. It is terrifying and disheartening, but the American people cannot afford either to be terrified or disheartened. The case of Sinclair and Fall must be prosecuted to the end, whatever the cost and the consequences.

The cynical dictum of Mr. Heney of California that "you can't indict $100,000,000" has been disproved. We have indicted $100,000,000 and recovered the plunder. But justice has got to show that the law can put $100,000,000 in jail if the owner of such wealth has committed a criminal offense.

JENNETINGS.

Perhaps the reason why there are not more jennetings than there used to be is that applegrowers could not agree upon a common way to spell it. Not even Noah Webster could agree with himself as to that. He spelled it variously genet, jennet, geneting, and jenneting.

So far as we know, it was never settled. Humankind is too busy to bother itself too long with trivialities, so it dropped the apple. There are still a few of them, probably raised by very stubborn people; but as a variety it has been lost. The inspiration of the cider press, the juiciest morsel of fall, sung by the English poets, and widely relished at the season when the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock, the jenneting has all but disappeared. The few that are left are hardly bigger than gooseberries. Abandoned to the scale and the borer, accursed by the lexicographers and the etymologists, and left to die of its sweetness in neglected orchards, the one time favorite of the pomologists and the joy of Autumn bids us farewell.

NEW ENGLAND'S FLOOD DISASTER.

A flood disaster has struck New England. Unprecedented rains have brought unprecedented and destructive floods throughout all the States of New England. Reports of loss of life and widespread and costly damage to property have been received from Vermont, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Maine. There has been destruction from floods in Quebec, and menacing flood conditions exist in the Hudson Valley, New York.

Accurate reports of the loss of life and damage to property are meager. There are 30 known dead, with estimates running up to 200 at Montpelier, Vermont, which at this writing is shut off from outside communication. The worst damage seems to have been suffered in Vermont, although the destruction of homes, factories and railroad property is reported throughout the States mentioned. The disaster is of great magnitude, resulting in large loss of life, enormous destruction of property and depriving thousands of people of shelter and means of livelihood. Although not equalling either in extent or measure of destruction the Lower Mississippi Valley flood, apparently it resembles and approximates that unparalleled flood disaster.

What relief funds or relief measures will be necessary cannot be estimated until there are more complete reports of losses and of the condition of the flood victims. The Red Cross is at work relieving immediate distress, and governmental agencies are active investigating the extent of the disaster and the means of relief that will be needed. Undoubtedly the American people will meet all needs for relief which may develop after fuller investigation. Certainly the sympathy of the people of the Mississippi Valley goes out in full measure to the flood sufferers of New England. They are ready to help.

Whether or not the New England floods call for an extension of national flood control has yet to be determined. But this unexpected and unprecedented flood disaster in New England undoubtedly points to the necessity on the part of either the National Government where its jurisdiction extends, or to the States, of flood prevention work. Evidently conditions in all the region affected were ripe for destruction, following an unprecedented rainfall.

We do not believe President Coolidge or the people of New England needed the lesson of disaster to arouse them to the necessity of national flood control in the Mississippi Valley. But this terrible experience with floods will at least emphasize in their minds the necessity of effective national action. Doubtless if the New England flood had preceded the Mississippi Valley flood, Mr. Coolidge would have been more alive to the necessity for immediate congressional action for relief, rehabilitation and flood control in the valley.

HENRY L. STIMSON—NO PROPHET.

It was on May 14 that the President's representative, Henry L. Stimson, announced that peace had come to Nicaragua.

The very next day 14 Nicaraguans were killed in a brush with the marines at La Paz Centro. Two months later came Ocotal, where more than 300 Nicaraguans were killed by marines and native constabulary, with the help of bombing planes. July 26 and 27 saw 20 more Nicaraguans die at San Fernando.

There was an engagement at Telepaneca on Sept. 3, one at Sanata on Sept. 8, another one at Telepaneca Sept. 19-21, and an engagement on Oct. 9 where there were 67 Nicaraguan casualties. So it has been going.

THE TARIFF AND THE FARMER.

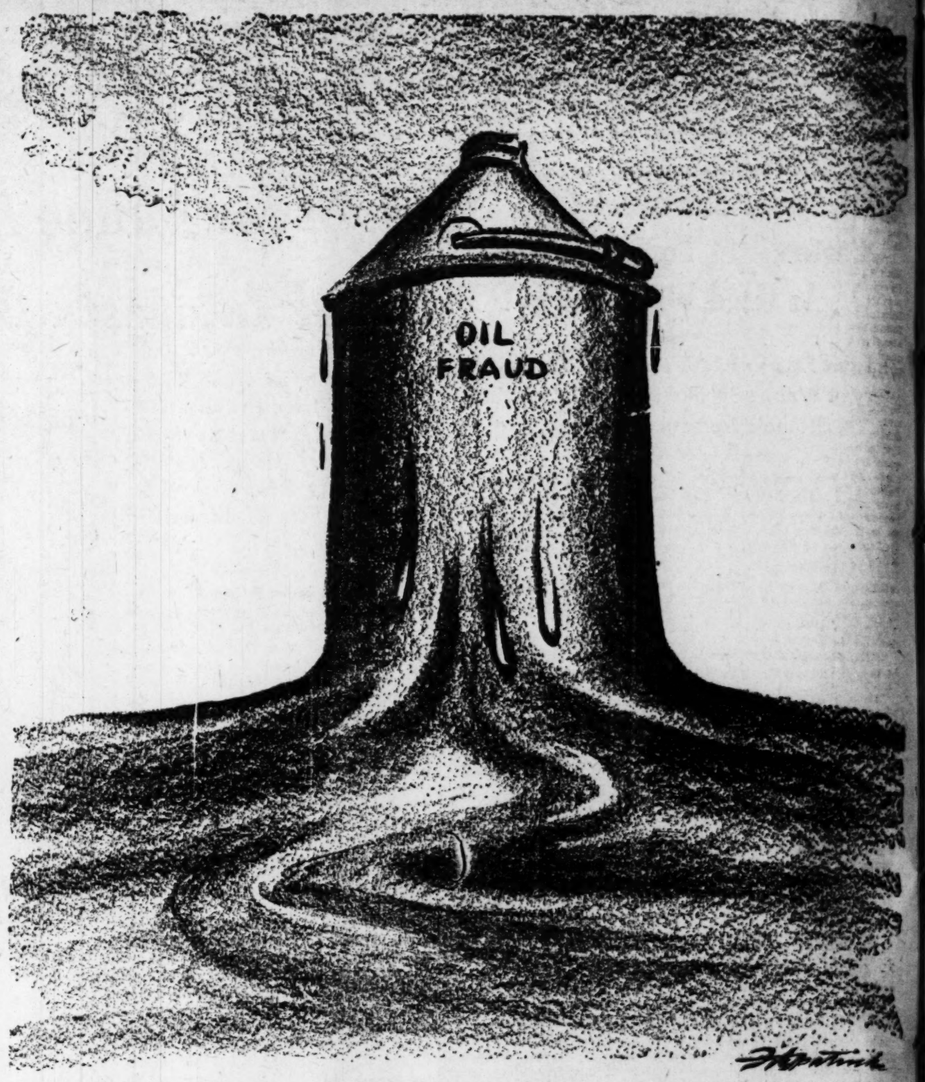
It was impossible for the farm and co-operative marketing conference which has just closed in St. Louis to get away from the McNary-Haugen plan of farm relief because the tariff gives approximately that same relief to manufacturing.

The prime objection to the McNary-Haugen plan is that it puts the Government in business and sets up an elaborate piece of machinery for handling and marketing surplus crops. This objection loses its force in such conferences as that just held in St. Louis, as it loses its force with the farm bloc in Congress, because the Government is in principle doing the same thing for manufacturing through the tariff.

That is, the tariff is a subsidy. The McNary-Haugen plan proposes a subsidy. The farmers have gone over the situation thoroughly, and they come out always at the same place. They have not the hardihood to demand that the subsidies of the tariff be abated. So they go on insisting that the McNary-Haugen bill, which would subsidize farming, be passed. It makes no difference to them that this same bill was passed by the last Congress and vetoed by Mr. Coolidge as an impracticable scheme which, so far from relieving farming, would only plunge the whole country into a clumsy and costly experiment.

It is, indeed, an astounding situation. Here is the greatest industry in the country, that of agriculture, placed at a disadvantage in an industrialized country. Rather than insist that manufacturing accept a modified subsidy, which it is well able to do, and thus lighten the burden upon agriculture, the farmers insist that they be given a subsidy equivalent to the tariff and the whole country be made to attempt this higher economic level upon terms of equality between the two major industries.

There is grave doubt whether the country is able to do this. That doubt was behind Mr. Coolidge's veto. There is, however, no doubt about how the inequality may be remedied by removing the excessive subsidy given to manufacturing. In our opinion the farmers are not going to get the equivalent of the tariff. They will in the end have to join with the Democrats who want a modified tariff. The farmer is not altogether disadvantaged because he persists in being a farmer. He suffers to a great degree because he also persists in being a Republican.



POLLUTING THE NATION.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

MR. GARY'S ROAD POSITION.

From the Jefferson City Daily Capitol News.

ATTENTION is called to the interview with Theodore Gary, former chairman of the Missouri State Highway Commission, appearing in a Joplin paper, indicating that Mr. Gary is opposed to the pending bond issue for the extension and completion of the Missouri highway system, suggesting in its stead an increase of taxes. Mr. Gary's position, of course, is entitled to respect, considering his former association with the Missouri road program; however, it must not be overlooked that within the last year he has advocated numerous different policies as to the road program somewhat contradictory in terms and in proposals. Even the record of Mr. Gary as to road achievement cannot obscure the vagaries of these various attitudes of his.

For instance, he has proposed, seriatim, the following:

1—The pay-as-you-go method as amply sufficient without increase in revenue.

2—A bond issue of sixty million dollars.

4—No bonds at all.

5—The doubling of the gas tax so that it would reach the figure of four cents per gallon.

For a distinguished Missouri "good roads advocate," these varied and variegated proposals of Mr. Gary possess such remarkable elements that he can hardly expect them to be received with anything except some measure of misgiving, as to whether, in particular, he has in mind the actual promotion of the road program, or its retarding. And this, with all due regard to Mr. Gary's past connection with the highway system, which now is unfolding itself, and which bids fair to become the pride of this State. It is quite possible even for a public servant of such high degree as Mr. Gary to forfeit the laurels won in other days by the mere act of obstructing when the consummation of his own ideal—namely, a perfect road system in Missouri—is within reach, and within reasonable reach only by the continuous use of the credit of the State, upon a sensible and businesslike basis, with full likelihood of proper amortization, without increasing taxes or overburdening the people of the State.

COMPULSORY SIGHTSEEING.

From the Indianapolis News.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY BANTON of New York declares that he will "rid the stage of naked women if necessary by backing up the patrol wagons to the stage doors and taking the performers just as they are to the night court so the Judge can see what the audiences are compelled to look at." Highly commendable, sir! but is "compelled" the mote juste?

FAME INSURANCE.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A GERMAN professor says that famous men should retire at the age of 65. It will annoy them, of course, but it's an awfully good way to stay famous.

A JEFFERSON DAVIS MEMORIAL.

From the Salem News.

AN event occurred last week in Vicksburg, Miss., which a quarter of a century ago would have aroused wrath over much of our country, but no explosions are looked for at this time. This event was the unveiling of a memorial to Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederate States of America, upon a military reservation of the United States. The statue was accepted by a Major-General of the United States, representing the Secretary of War.

Back 25 years ago many of us would have argued that President Davis was guilty of treason to his country. It would have been said that for a nation to pay any honors to men who had acted as traitors to their country was to hold up treason as a laudable thing, and that it indicated a certain weak desire to conciliate former rebellious states, if such memorials were tolerated and encouraged.

There was this difference between the rebellion of Davis and that of the type of men ordinarily called traitors. The real traitor is a man who throws off the authority of his country to gain some personal advantage for himself. Davis and his associates could not be said to have done that. They were perfectly conscientious. They believed that the several states entered our Government as sovereigns and they had a right to withdraw from it at any time, that the Constitution conferred no right on the Federal Government to coerce a State.

Some will no doubt say that while they would not interfere to prevent any State from erecting such a memorial, yet that the Federal Government should not pay any honors to such a man and that no such statue should have been permitted on a United States reservation. But it does not pay in this world to insist too closely on all fine points of propriety. The United States is big and powerful enough to recognize the sacrifice and devotion of the men who took this contrary view 65 years ago. No treasonable movement will ever be encouraged by such statues, and a generous attitude toward these memories will help bridge over what little is left of the old chasm.

FLOOD CONTROL AND POLITICS.

From the Detroit Free Press.

DWIGHT F. DAVIS, Secretary of War, made his point neatly when he told the conference of the American Society of Civil Engineers that keeping the Mississippi River in its banks and out of politics is the problem of the War Department. He might also have said that the second part of the task, over which he ought not to be obliged to worry, is probably the more difficult one of the two. And most certainly the first will not be accomplished unless the second is. If the floods of water that rise in the Mississippi Valley each spring are to be controlled, the floods of verbosity that spill all over the halls of Congress, and particularly the Senate chamber each winter, must in some way be dammed.

WHAT'S A SCRAP OF PAPER?

From the Ohio State Journal.

EVEN if the Constitution said in so many words that the Anti-Saloon League and State must be separate we don't suppose the former would pay any attention to it, or the latter either, for that matter.

LIFE'S MAJOR ANNOYANCE

Though the season approaching is dismal and drear, I could stand all its rigors alone,
For the terror of winter is not in its cold, nor the wintry wind's moan;
If we have but the wind, let it rage as it will—we will heap yet more coals on the fire,
And the chill of the season we duly withstand with a winter attire;
For the cold and the wind are but puny, small things to arouse all the gentle to wrath—
There is also the pestilent bore who will brag of his morning cold bath;
I admit that my muscles are soft as a child's and in living at ease I delight,
Let them take their cold bath in the morning—I'll take a hot bath the same night.

I have listened in hate to the often told tales of how some one decided the war,
I don't doubt war is hell, but the personal war is the kind I abhor;
I have listened, struck dumb, to the silly remarks of those who endeavor to shine,
I have fled in sheer terror of life from the kind who will boast of their line;
Yet these pests are avoided if we will use care in selecting the places we go,
But no caution can save us from Knights of the bath as the chilling winds blow;
I admit that my patience is tried to the point where the sound of cold water means fight—progress when scientific ends are in view.
Let them take their cold bath in the morning—I'll take a hot bath the same night.

"Too many people look upon aviation merely as something that will give them a vicarious thrill as they read of the dangers the flyers have overcome. Flying can be made safe for everybody only by equipment that will eliminate the dangers."

"What do you think of Lieut. Maitland's suggestion that several flyers should spend a year or more merely flying from New York to Newfoundland, and from Newfoundland to Ireland, to get accurate flying data?" was the next question.

Weather Data Needed.

"That is an excellent suggestion," Byrd replied. "What we need now and will continue to need is accurate meteorological information. For some time at least the eastward trans-Atlantic flight must be made by way of Newfoundland. Perhaps the westward flight will have to go by way of the Azores, because of the strong westerly winds in the north."

(These experimental flyers, Maitland pointed out, could fly under all sorts of conditions. They could try the various altitudes to escape rain and fog. After a year's flying these aviators could present to the world a great mass of useful information.)

"Will the airplane of the future be radically different from the present plane?"

"There will be a great variety of planes in the future," Byrd replied. "There will be a type for every purpose, some large, some small. Some will have air-cooled engines, some will be water-colored. There will be one-motor planes and some with eight or 10 motors. And as improvements are made, we shall soon see a virtually non-stallable engine. I believe that we shall soon see a 400-hour engine. Of course, there will never be such a thing as a fl proof airplane, but the dangers from mechanical breakdown will be gradually eliminated.

Improvement in Design.

"In design we are making rapid progress, particularly in the matter of stream lines, which cut down resistance and gives greater lifting power to the wings. It is quite possible that the future plane for long endurance flights will be the monoplane, or a semi-monoplane with a smaller lower wing for stability.

"For the near future we shall have to rely partly upon flying boats for transoceanic flights. Eventually the transoceanic planes will be amphibians which can take off and land on either land or water, but a great deal must be done before the amphibian will be practicable for long distance flights. The present amphibians are useful for short flights, but their weight and resistance are too great for long flights.

Mid-sea Landing Stations.

"The time will come when there will probably be landing stations in mid-ocean. Several models of such stations have already been demonstrated, but the engineering difficulties are tremendous. There must be many advances in aviation before these mid-sea ports can be a reality."

"Do you favor governmental supervision of the long distance flights?"

"Absolutely not," Byrd replied. "The flights this year were made upon the personal responsibility of the flyers. If the Government stepped in and tried to regulate the flights, every crank in the country would try to have the Government adopt his pet regulation. Flights must be made by men who have studied flight problems. Any outside regulation would immeasurably retard the progress of aviation."

BONES OF MAMMOTHS FOUND IN NEW MEXICO DESERT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Discovery of the bones of a large herd of mammoths "that had "bogged down" in a salt creek in the desert wastes near the Carlsbad Cavern of New Mexico more than 10,000 years ago, was related today in a dispatch to the New York Times from Carl B. Livingston, assistant to Willis T. Lee, of the National Geographic Society.

The society's explorers, Livingston said, had suspected that mammoths once had lived in the desert waste 35 miles southeast of the Carlsbad Cavern because ivory beads had been found among the relics of cavemen, who buried their dead in cave tombs in the Guadalupe Mountains, overlooking the region.

Maine's expense? Or shall Maine keep its power and make the industries come there?

On the other hand the Insull crowd insists there is not enough money in Maine to extend the electric facilities and that this money can only be obtained by selling power to the neighboring states. With the receipts from the sale of exported power they promised they would electrify the Maine farms. They promised to recapture the power from the neighboring states when Maine needed it.

Those two views came into conflict at the last session of the Legislature. All the old lobbying tricks were resorted to. Before a Senate public utilities hearing, Wyman, now the accredited Insull spokesman in Maine testified he had employed five attorneys to draw up a power bill which would in effect repeal the Fernald law and permit power to be exported. One of those attorneys was Leonard A. Pierce, a member of the Executive Committee for repeal of the primary law. The bill was passed by the Legislature but vetoed by the Governor.

The Gannett newspapers came to the defense of the power interests. The four newspapers that Gannett owned outright, the Portland Evening Express, the Portland Press-Herald, the Portland Sunday Telegram and the Waterville Sentinel, all came out for power export. The Kennebec Journal of Augusta, which Gannett is said to control, followed suit. The other leading papers of the State, both Brewster and Baxter declared, were subsidized by the methods made notorious by the Chicago packers many years ago, when they judiciously distributed their advertising to certain papers.

Col. Farnum speaks frankly of the Insull interests and their plans for the future. This group already controls about 75 per cent of the public utilities of Maine and rapidly is acquiring more, even industrial companies which have valuable power sites.

Both Brewster and Baxter contend that if it were possible to export power from Maine, the Insull people would turn the industrial plants into hydro-electric generators and sell the power outside the State. If this happened, they declared Maine might as well accept the fact that its industrial life is doomed. Farnum pooh-poohed the idea that the Insulls had any intention of scrapping the industrial plants.

"Just this week we have purchased two industrial plants in Maine, one in the western part of the State, the other in Augusta," Farnum said. "Those industries were having a hard time, but with the Insull backing they will soon be going concerns.

Says Insull Favors Industries.

'Mr. Insull has said he is interested primarily in the development of Maine industry, and has declared that he thinks purchase of the Central Maine Power Co. one of the most promising investments he ever has made. It would be foolish for him to invest his money in Maine industries and then deliberately destroy them. His property will be more valuable if he develops the industries here."

What will be the solution? Farnum, Brewster and Baxter presented three different answers. Farnum declared the Insull companies would be content to abide by the Fernald law and gradually develop the Maine industries. He stated the electrification program would be slower, now that nonexport of power had been affirmed, but that his group was willing to play the game, provided the rules were the same for everyone.

Gov. Brewster leaned to the belief that the solution lies in the compact clause of the Constitution, which permits states to agree to intersectional problems without interefrence from Con ress. This solution has been approved by Secretray Hoover and is not looked upon with disfavor by the Insull interests. Brewster has not made any definite recommendations for control of the power companies beyond his announced antagonism to the export of power.

Baxter for State Control.

Baxter went much farther than Brewster. He declared the State should associate its ownership of l' waters in the lakes and regulate their flow to the power and industrial companies, which now have a monopoly on virtually all the profitable power sites. In this way, Baxter says, the State can control all the power and be doubly protected that the power shall not go outside the State.

Meanwhile, Insull continues to increase his holdings. The latest estimate of his interest in Maine public utilities and industrials was placed somewhere between $60,000,000 and $75,000,000. Thursday it was announced at Augusta that Insull had acquired a radio broadcasting plant and that Wyman had been made president. Perhaps he has no interest in Maine politics, but he is certainly making connections where his influence will be felt.

ERSKINE SIX

victor in test of speed and endurance

American Automobile Association certifies to record unequaled by any stock closed car priced below One Thousand Dollars

NOTWITHSTANDING heavy rain and high wind throughout three-fourths of the test, an Erskine Sedan, fully equipped, traveled 1298.484 miles during twenty-four hours. This meant an average time of 54.103 miles per hour.

No stops were made except for oil and fuel and to change three spark plugs. These stops are included in the time. Immediately following the completion of the test the sedan went five miles at an average of almost 62 miles per hour—Think of it!

This record was made October 12-13 at the Atlantic City Speedway under the sanction and observation of the American Automobile Association. After the test the car was torn down by the technical committee and certified as a stock car in every respect.

Here is positive proof of extraordinary performance, of stamina and durability, of sound design from quality materials and superior workmanship in a car priced below $1000—proof of unusual pep and power whether or not you care to drive long distances with the throttle wide open.

What Owners Say!

Owners of the Erskine Six write us so enthusiastically you would think them to be salesmen. Send a postal inquiry to the Studebaker factory at South Bend and you will be sent, free of charge, comments which hundreds of Erskine owners have volunteered concerning their cars.

Make Your Own Test!

Or better still, let us loan you an Erskine so that you may drive it yourself and learn at first hand why it was able to establish the finest performance record ever set by a car in its price field.

Funeral of Henry Diefenbach Sr.

Funeral services for Henry Diefenbach Sr., 77 years old, who died Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Tretter, 3857 Kossuth avenue, will be held from an undertaking chapel, 2300 Lafayette avenue, at 2 p. m. today. Burial will be at Hecker, Ill., his former home. After 30 years in the grocery business at Hecker, Mr. Diefenbach came to St. Louis 20 years ago and conducted a grocery business here until his retirement five years ago. In addition to his daughter, he is survived by three sons.

Mother!

Child Gets Sick, Cross, Feverish if Constipated

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Fig Syrup" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious, "fruity laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside cleansing." Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by "The California Fig Syrup Company."

ORATORIO 'ELIJAH' IN OPERA FORM TO BE GIVEN NOV. 29

ELABORATE SETS FOR TWELVE SCENES

William Dodd Chenery Dramatization to Be Used—Frederick Fischer Will Conduct.

An ambitious presentation of the old oratorio "Elijah," dramatized as grand opera in English, is to be given at the Coliseum the nights of Nov. 29 and 30, under auspices of the newly-formed St. Louis Pageant Drama and Choral Association.

About 1700 persons, or more, are expected to participate as principals, dancers, supers, choristers and musicians. "Elijah" was written by Mendelssohn as an oratorio a century ago, and recently the dramatization was done by William Dodd Chenery of Springfield, Ill. Chenery, who is at Hotel Chase now, with his chief of staff, Don Leland Stanford, will direct the production. Frederick Fischer, assistant conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will be musical director, and will conduct the entire group of Symphony players for this opera.

More than 7000 seats will be available for the public selling at 50 cents to $2, with box seats at $3. The stage, as when "The Miracle" was produced at the Coliseum several years ago, will be at the south end of the big structure. Leaders of the drama and choral association regard the coming event as one of great civic importance. The organization was formed to promote civic culture, and any profits of the venture will be devoted to that aim.

Twelve Elaborate Scenes.

Elaborate settings for the 12 scenes of the opera, which were used in previous productions, are being sent here. Chenery's version of "Elijah" has been given at Boston, Kansas City, Springfield, Ill., at chautauquas and elsewhere.

Professional singers have been engaged for the principal roles. These artists and the parts they will take are: Elijah, Rollin Pease of Chicago, baritone; Obadiah, Arthur Kraft of New York, tenor; widow of Zarephat, Eugenia Vandeveer of Chicago, lyric soprano; Zarephat's sister, Mary Brown Beckemeyer of Chicago, mezzo-contralto.

Six St. Louis women also will have singing roles. They are: Prophetess, Mrs. Helen Traubel Carpenter, soprano; Eunice, Mrs. H. W. Geller, mezzo-soprano; Jezebel, Mrs. Laura Tuckerman Carter, contralto; Angel of the Mount, Mrs. Douglas M. Johnson, soprano; Guardian Angel, Mrs. Thelma Hayman Carroll, contralto; Messenger Angel, Mrs. Blanche Skrainka, mezzo-contralto.

Antiphonal Choruses.

There will be much antiphonal staging by the choruses—that is, groups in different parts of the house will alternate and respond to one another. The pageant and choral association will be the nucleus for one chorus of 300 men and women. Another will comprise 100 women public school teachers. Still another will consist of 500 high school boys and girls. A fourth will be composed of 500 grade school children and its personnel on the two nights will be different. Other choral societies have been asked to furnish groups also. Eugene Hahnel, supervisor of music in the schools, is organizing the teachers' and pupils' choruses by authority of the Board of Education.

There will be more than 100 dancers, recruited from the various schools of dancing here. Dramatic groups, described by Chenery as "glorified supers," will be taken from the membership of the Junior League, church choirs and other organizations.

Society Formed Thursday.

The St. Louis Pageant Drama and Choral Association was formed last Thursday as the successor of the Pageant Choral Society and the Pageant Drama Association. The drama group has been inactive since the memorable St. Louis Pageant and Masque of 1914. The Choral Society, of which the late John H. Gundlach was the leader, was an outgrowth of the 1914 production, but had been inactive for about two years since his death.

Officers of the new association are the same as those of the Choral Society. They are: H. W. Geller, president of the Convention Bureau and of the Geller, Ward & Hasner Hardware Co., president; F. C. Skillman, Mrs. Philip N. Moore, Maj. M. J. Pickering, Otto J. Gossrau, vice presidents; David J. Woodlock, treasurer; Douglas M. Johnson, secretary, and Mayor Miller, honorary member.

The BRAMBACH BABY GRAND PIANO

Lies an Innate Love of the Beautiful!

SO often we grown-ups say, "How I wish I had been given the opportunity to study music." But, will our children have those advantages we were denied?

Have you helped to develop this divine spark in your own child? Is he receiving the rudiments of a musical education along with his schooling?

Closely allied with your child's musical training is the important question of the instrument. A carelessly constructed, poor toned piano will not be good enough to start with—even a child quickly loses interest if there is no inspiration in the piano upon which he practices. Rather look for the skill and care which is used in making the BRAMBACH.

Convenient Terms

BRAMBACH Pianos are built for a long service and have proven they retain their original sweetness of tone after years of constant usage.

We will gladly send you an illustrated booklet describing the BRAMBACH.

Your old Piano will be accepted in exchange.

Eats Sauerkraut Now, Feels Years Younger

"I couldn't find a thing to eat that would agree with my stomach. Even rice turned sour and caused stomach gas. An insurance man recommended Adlerika. I didn't have much hope of getting any relief for I had tried so many things. But the results I got from even the first bottle surprised me! Now I eat even sauerkraut and sausage without any bad effects. I sleep good and feel 10 years younger. I do my housework with ease again and find great pleasure in other work, too."—Mrs. M. L. Davis.

As gently and naturally as taking a drink of water, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowels, bringing quick relief from gas bloating, intestinal stasis and chronic constipation.

The very FIRST dose of Adlerika often brings out astonishing amounts of old waste matter from the intestinal canal. This poisonous matter may have been in the intestines a long time, causing gas, headache, sleeplessness and many other symptoms. A treatment of just a FEW weeks with Adlerika often brings great permanent improvement in cases of so-called stomach trouble.

What Doctors Say

Dr. A. J. Lancaster, a physician of over a quarter century's experience, says: "In the treatment of gastro-intestinal disorders, Adlerika has no equal."

J. E. Puckett writes: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my system."

Dr. Carl Weschcke, graduate of Heidelberg University, Germany, first perfected Adlerika. It is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser known to science with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara and other gas-expelling and detergent elements.

Many physicians recognize Adlerika as the one dependable remedy for gas, intestinal stasis and chronic constipation. Unlike most medicines it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel.

Even if your bowels move every day, Adlerika may bring out poisonous, gas-forming matter which you would never believe was in your system.

No matter what you have tried for the bowels and stomach, Adlerika will surprise you.

...OD KILLS NORTH SEA FISH

...ches of Fishermen Will Be Lighter for Years to Come.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—For decades to come the fishermen on the North Sea in the region around Bremerhaven must except meager catches. Millions of fish have died, many of them weighing as much as eight pounds.

The appalling death rate among fish is an aftermath of the summer floods. It is assumed much hay was dragged down into the river beds of streams like the Weser, Geeste, Oste, as the floods subsided. There it rotted and filled the streams with poisonous bacilli. The situation first manifested itself in the fact that the fish came to the surface.

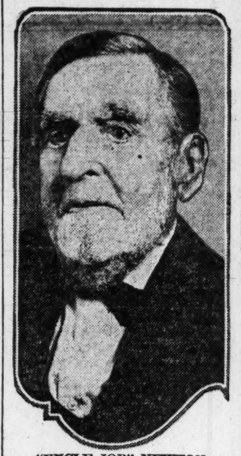
PIONEER DEAD AT 101



"UNCLE JOB" NEWTON.

'UNCLE JOB' NEWTON, 101, DIES AFTER TOUR

Early St. Louisan First Forty-Niner on Wagon Train Into Salt Lake City.

"Uncle Job" Newton, St. Louis pioneer and first of the Forty-niners to enter Salt Lake City, Utah, by wagon trail, died at his home in Springfield, Mo., Friday night, just three weeks after he had motored 500 miles on a final visit here to the city of his youth. He was 101 years old last July 28.

"Uncle Job" was the founder of the Eastern Star order in the State, so when the Missouri Grand Chapter held a meeting at Masonic Temple recently he set out with friends to make the journey of 250 miles and back. He attended the sessions in a wheel chair, living at a nearby hotel. At the development of the Grand-Lindell neighborhood he marveled much, for when he lived here he knew that region as a wilderness. He left St. Louis, moving to Springfield, in 1869.

Came to City in 1838.

When "Uncle Job" came to St. Louis in 1838 it was little more than an Indian trading post. Born at Georgetown, Md., he journeyed westward at the age of 12 with his mother and two brothers. They traveled by steamboat and wagon train and established the family home here on Vine street between Third and Fourth streets.

Young Newton went to school here awhile and then, as a youth, entered the grain and freighting business which took him as one of the earliest prairie schooner drivers into the Far West. When the gold rush to California began in 1849 he set out for the Pacific Coast as commander of two wagon trains and gained the distinction of being the first of the gold rushers to conduct a train into Salt Lake City. Freighting appealed to him more than gold seeking, so he continued in the business until 1854 when he set up as a buyer of wool, produce and fur in St. Louis, later founding one of the first wholesale fur houses.

It was expansion of his business following the Civil War that led Newton into the Ozarks. He hoped to establish a woolen mill at Springfield and visited the place with that intention. He found conditions unfavorable for such a project, but liked the community so much that he opened a grain and feed business so he could live there. He remained at the head of this firm until about five years ago when, at the age of 96, he sold out and retired.

He always took a lively interest in Masonic affairs and when he celebrated his one hundredth birthday in July, 1926, many Masons and Eastern Star members gathered from all parts of the State to pay him homage with gala festivities.

"Uncle Job" is survived by two sons—Gen. Emmett Newton of Washington and Dwight Newton of Springfield, a broker. His wife, who formerly was Miss Minerva Ault of Pennsylvania, died many years ago.

250 BUSINESS MEN ARREST 54 MINERS IN STRIKE ROW

LEXINGTON, Mo., Nov. 5.—Two hundred and fifty business men deputized by Sheriff Creigh Frick last night assisted in the arrest of 54 union miners on charges of violation of a Federal injunction restraining them from interfering with working miners. Others were arrested on charges of common assault. Operation of two major mines was resumed when 50 deputy sheriffs escorted a crew of independent workmen to the mines.

More than 100 Ray and Lafayette county miners yesterday were served citations to appear in Federal Court in Kansas City, Nov. 12, to answer charges of having violated a Federal injunction restraining them from molesting the working miners.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

W. B. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

70,410 POLICE COURT CASES IN 10 MONTHS

Exceeds Number Heard in Year 1926—$134,754 in Fines Collected.

The number of Police Court cases, the majority of which are traffic violations, heard by the two police judges during the first 10 months of this year, exceeded the number of cases tried in the two courts during all of last year.

The total number of cases tried in the two courts up to Nov. 1 was 70,410, as compared with 70,255 heard during 12 months in 1926. Judge Rosecan in Court No. 1 heard 40,145 cases up to Nov. 1, against 42,376 last year. In Court No. 2 Judge Beck conducted 30,265 hearings in the last 10-month period, compared with 27,879 during 1926.

Fines in the two courts to Nov. 1 amounted to $134,754, compared with $138,956 during 1926. Fines imposed by Judge Rosecan during the 10 months amounted to $61,460, against $78,887 last year. Judge Beck, with $73,294 in assessed fines for 10 months, shows an increase over last year's fines, which totaled $60,069.

Traffic cases will not be separated from the other cases in the records of the city courts until after the first of the year, but Clerk Thomas Hauk estimates there has been an increase of 10 per cent in these cases so far this year over last year, when 77 per cent of all cases and 89 per cent of fines collected resulted from traffic charges. Hauk expects that 16,000 cases will be heard in the two courts during November and December, the number and the resulting fines being proportionately due to traffic violations. With the additional cases still to be heard before the record for the year is complete, it is believed the number of cases heard this year will exceed by about 18,000 the number tried last year and that the revenue from fines also will exceed last year's receipts.

Traffic violators have made the Police Courts self-supporting. This is shown by comparing the records for the first 10 months of this year with the history of the two courts 20 years ago. In 1917 fines totaling $15,902 were collected as the result of 21,578 hearings in Court No. 1, while the receipts from 11,712 cases in Court No. 2 amounted to but $7195.

DRIVER OF AUTO THAT KILLED MILK DELIVERY MAN FREED

William J. Doran, driver of the automobile which killed Michael O'Malley, a route runner for the Pevely Dairy Co., at Grand boulevard and Chouteau avenue early Friday, was released by a Coroner's verdict of accident yesterday. Doran, a salesman residing at 2900A South Compton avenue, did not testify at the inquest. O'Malley was 22 years old and resided at 3011 Minnesota avenue.

Frank Schmitt of 7331 Virginia avenue, a driver for the dairy, testified that he and O'Malley had had breakfast in a restaurant at the southeast corner of Grand and Chouteau and, being a little late, left hastily. O'Malley, he said, started towards a driveway of the dairy company, which is at the southwest corner, and was struck by the southbound automobile at a point about 200 feet south of the regular crossing. Other witnesses agreed with this.

NOT MURDER TO SAVE SELF AT COST OF ANOTHER'S LIFE

Such Is Law in Germany; Woman Had Pushed Man Out of Rowboat.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—To push another person off a boat in order to save one's own life is not murder, the German Supreme Court recently held.

An East Prussian woman teacher of athletics and her escort, a merchant from Berlin, were riding in a rowboat on a Mecklenburg lake this summer, when a sudden storm arose. To make matters worse, the boat sprang a leak. The teacher, who was the stronger of the two, pushed her male friend into the water in order to save herself. He was drowned.

The girl, rescued, was arrested on the charge first of murder, then of manslaughter. Her lawyer found a provision in the law to the effect that anybody who, in order to save his own life or that of a near relative, kills another person can not be held. He cited the provision. The court acquitted the teacher.

Priceless Tapestries Restored.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Dean of Westminster Abbey, tired of looking at some soiled hangings in a seldom used chamber, ordered them cleaned. They proved to be priceless tapestries woven in 1550 by the Belgian master, Bernard Van Orley of Brussels.

How they came into the possession of the Abbey is unknown. They had suffered from being cut to fit into positions on the walls and from the passage of time. Some of them were so dirty that their subjects are indistinguishable but the cleaning process, however, restored the original colors and now they may be seen in all their splendor.

Person Who Broke Window Sought.

Police are searching for the person who hurled a brick through a $50 plate glass window and a mirror at the barber shop of David Glickser, 5810 Ridge avenue, Friday night. Glickser reported to police that a man asked him to join the barbers' union Friday and upon his refusal left the shop with the remark: "You'll be sorry."

Robbers Take Safe With $500.

Burglars entered the office of the Illinois Power & Light Corp. at Glen Carbon, Ill., south of Edwardsville, Friday night and hauled away a safe weighing 1000 pounds, containing $500 and a number of checks. [illegible] to the office was gained by breaking through a rear door. [illegible] believed the robbers used a truck in hauling away the

AUTHORITY BEING SOUGHT TO WIDEN SEVENTH STREET

Hope to Start Work When Bond Issue Money Becomes Available.

Steps are under way to obtain the necessary authority for widening Seventh street, between Market and Spruce streets, under recently completed condemnation proceedings, so that work may be started whenever bond issue money becomes available. An ordinance to appropriate the city's $172,707 share of the cost will be considered by the Board of Public Service on Tuesday.

It is expected that some of the street improvement revolving fund, all but $93,000 of which now is tied up in the Olive street and Skinker boulevard projects, will be returned by next spring, so that the Seventh street work may be undertaken next year.

The plan is to take 20 feet from the west side of Seventh street to make it 80 feet wide, as it is between Spruce street and Chouteau avenue. Commissioners recently awarded $310,811 damages to affected property owners and fixed benefits to surrounding property at $137,104.

The story of a wife's love and devotion will be unfolded in the Biblical drama "Nabal," to be given by the National Players through KSD this afternoon. The narrative has been prepared to dramatization by William Ford Manley.

The usual Capitol Theater Family broadcast through KSD will bring music by the Capitol Grand Orchestra, the Capitol Studio Orchestra, the Capitol Baby Grand Orchestra, all conducted by David Mendoza, and the latest addition to Maj. Bowes' "Family," the new stage band called "The Capitolians," which will be directed by a prominent guest conductor.

Rafael Diaz, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and John Powell, American pianist, will jointly present the Atwater Kent Radio Hour this evening.

Diaz was born in San Antonio, Tex. Musically inclined from childhood, Diaz, like many other singers, started his artistic career as an instrumentalist. He went to Berlin to study the piano. One of his instructors discovered his tenor voice of unusual quality, richness and range. For two years he studied singing. His development was so remarkable that he proceeded to Italy to take up a singing career under the guidance of Vincenzo Sabatini, one of the famous Italian maestros.

Not long after his arrival in Italy, he was engaged for the Boston Opera Company. He sang in this company for two years, making his debut in "Othello." Subsequently, he was engaged by Hammerstein and sang on an extensive concert tour with Mme. Tetrazzini. In the fall of 1917 Diaz was engaged by the Metropolitan Opera Company and immediately established himself as an artist of the first rank. He sings in five languages — English, French, Italian, Spanish and German.

Monday Features

A drummer is seldom featured in radio, but Harry Breuer, one of the percussion staff of the Roxy Theater, will be a star performer in the program by Roxy's Gang to be broadcast tomorrow evening by KSD as the first of a Monday night Roxy series. In addition, other artists of the Gang will take part. There will be music by the 110-piece symphony orchestra, the 100-voice chorus, the Russian Cathedral Choir, the great theater organ and the Cathedral Chimes. A portion of the stage presentation will also be broadcast.

For one hour through KSD and the National Broadcasting Company's Red Network, the first General Motors Family Party with such stars as William Collier, William Collier Jr. and Nora Bayes, and instrumental groups directed by Nathaniel Shilkret, Patrick Conway and Joe Green participating, will be broadcast tomorrow evening at 8:30, Central Standard time.

Three new songs never before sung in public and written expressly for this air program by Norma Green, the composer of several of the song hits in the Broadway success, "A La Carte," will be heard.

The program of one hour's duration is to be divided into three groups. The first of these will be provided by a 42-piece symphony orchestra under National Shilkret; the second, a revue with William Collier as master of ceremonies, and the concluding one, a concert by the Goldman Band with Patrick Conway, noted as a band master for years, as guest conductor.

The revue with William Collier as master of ceremonies will feature Nora Bayes and introduce William Collier Jr., The Revue Band, a marimba combination directed by Joe Green, "The Three Cheers," Jessica Dragonette, lyric soprano, and Lewis James, tenor. Norma Gregg's new song, "Naughty Baby," will be sung by Jessica Dragonette.

To Tune Out Other Stations.

When it is found impossible to tune out a nearby broadcasting station to get others further away, try running the antenna at right angles to the aerial of the broadcaster and use a wave trap between the lead-in and the receiver. If this does not help, try a vertical antenna. It may be necessary to completely shield the receiver, batteries and all wires leading to the set except the antenna wire, in order to stop the pickup of energy except where it is desired in the antenna.

Thirty-four supervisors of the Federal Radio Commission now have automobiles equipped with special wireless apparatus to keep in touch with the air conduct of broadcasters in every State. The country has been zoned and the inspectors listen in to see that power and wave lengths are in accordance with license requirements.

HARRY F. RESER, "CHIEF ESKIMO," SAYS: "I have had the Fada 8-tube Console in my home for six months and am more than satisfied with its performance. I had no idea that a radio unit with unlimited power could boast of having selectivity. I have always been able to tune right through the locals and pull in distance whenever I wanted it .... If it were impossible for me to get another Fada, you could not get this one away from me with three detachments of U. S. Regulars."

WHICH means that Mr. Reser, like "Roxy" and others in their profession, who know both music and broadcasting intimately, has recognized the supremacy of Fada "Harmonated Reception." Hear this new-day radio at any Fada dealer's shop. And you too will understand why Harmonated Reception is held to be the outstanding achievement of modern radio reception.

Every big-time tackle is on the air today! And you will never know how close a radio set can come to "showing" you a football game until you hear the roar of the rooters over Kolster!

Thursday's Program

Another session of the Radio Household Institute is to be held Thursday forenoon.

The Chopin Fantasie, Op. 13, is to be played with orchestra by Hans Barth, pianist, in Thursday night's Half Hour With Great Composers broadcast.

Barth also will play other Chopin works, as follows:

Bolero Opus 19
Piano solo.
Prelude A Flat
Polonaise A Major
With orchestra.
Mazurka B Flat Op. 7 No. 1.
Mazurka A Flat
Waltz G Flat Op. 70 No. 1
Piano solos.

"The Quartet of Quartets" of the Hoover Sentinels will combine in a special Armistice Day selection entitled "War Memories" in their half hour program on Thursday evening.

Another feature, which will be played by a full orchestra, will be Anton Rubinstein's "Feramors." This is probably the only ballet music from the musical setting of a German version of Thomas Moore's poem "Lalla Rookh." It relates the love story of the Indian Princess Lalla, who has been betrothed to the Sultan of Bokhara whom she has never seen. Secretly she is in love with the singer and poet, Feramors. During the journey to Delhi she meets a royal pageant of dancers and musicians who entertain her as she rests in the vale of Kashmir. On her wedding day, she discovers that poet and Sultan are one and the same.

The complete program follows:

Nocturne Op. 55 No. 1....Chopin
Brass quartet.
Armistice Medley ..... Christy
Male quartet.
Feramors ..... Rubinstein
Whirlwind ..... Pirani
Woodwind quartet.
Tango ..... Albeniz

May Peterson, soprano, formerly of the Opera Comique and the Metropolitan Opera, will be the guest soloist in the Maxwell House hour to be broadcast by KSD Thursday night.

The Maxwell Concert Orchestra of 35 pieces and the double string quartet, both under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, will support Miss Peterson.

The program follows:

The Smith Brothers, "Trade" and "Mark," as impersonated by Scrappy Lambert and Billy Hillpot, will feature in their program Thursday evening the song hit, "Shaking the Blues Away," from the Ziegfeld "Follies."

Other songs which these popular collegiate entertainers have included in their program are "My Baby's Driving Me Wild," "Sugar" and "Under the Moon."

A part of Gounod's "Faust," presented by the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will be broadcast from the stage of the Auditorium Theater, Chicago, by KSD and allied stations in the Balkite Hour next Thursday night.

Edith Mason will sing Marguerite. She is an American soprano, the wife of the Italian conductor, Giorgio Polacca. Faust will be sung by Charles Hackett, American tenor, and Mehpistopehles probably will be assigned to Alexander Kipnis.

The prelude opens with a soliloquy by Faust, who laments the unsatisfactoriness of life ("Interrogo Invano"—I Ask in Vain). It is interwoven with delicate snatches of music from the chorus, a duet with Mephistopheles ("Ma, Il Ciel") and the soft music of the vision of Marguerite.

—always at your command always uniformly efficient!

TO be able to click on your radio switch any time—and enjoy peak reception every minute, as long as you care to listen-in—that's what the Basco Combination "A" and "B" Power Unit will give you. That, and complete freedom from the battery and charging nuisance, plus lower cost radio operation.

This Basco-made unit works differently than most so-called "light-socket" power units. There can be no line disturbances because it doesn't deliver current directly from the light socket to the tube filaments but rather, stores up current from the household power line during idle radio periods, making this power supply instantly available whenever you want to tune in a program. It uses power only as the power is needed. A double-acting automatic switch controls the self-charger and the "B" power supply.

Basco Radio Power Units are vouched for by the Basco satisfactory performance guarantee—and eighteen years of precision-manufacturing experience.

Basco Power Units will operate any 6-volt radio set having 1 to 10 tubes. Easy payments can be arranged. Ask your Basco dealer for a demonstration.

The second act is the Kermess scene, in which students, soldiers, boys and girls play an important part. Valentine, brother of Marguerite, sings a tender song, "O, Santa Medaglia" (O, Holy Medal) to a charm which he wears. This is followed by a weird drinking song by Mephistopheles, and the Sword Chorus, sung as the students and soldiers overcome Mephistopheles by presenting their sword hilts in the form of a cross. The delightful waltz, "Come la Brezza," is heard as the Tempter leaves.

DETAILS OF MERGER OF RADIO, PHONOGRAPH CONCERNS

The organization formed by the recent merger of three companies in the radio and phonograph fields has been named the Acoustics Products Co. This new corporation has been entirely financed by its directors and present stockholders. The companies concerned are the Sonora Phonograph Co., manufacturer and distributer of phonographs and radio sets; the Bidhamson Co., a patent-holding corporation organized by John Hays Hammond, Lewis Hauptman, James J. Burden, E. F. Hutton, Harris Hammond and Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., and the Premier Laboratories, headed by Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson, which has patents covering loud speakers, electrical recording apparatus and electrical phonographs.

Harris Hammond is chairman of its Board of Directors and P. L. Deutsch of Chicago is president. Among the directors are Richard Hoyt and Arthur C. Sherwood of Hayden, Stone & Co.; Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr. and Dr. Miller Hutchinson.

The corporation will manufacture and sell electrical musical reproducing, recording and amplifying apparatus as applied to the radio, phonograph and collateral fields.

Dr. Hutchinson was associated with Thomas A. Edison as engineering adviser for 10 years and has invented several electrical and mechanical appliances. He will be in active charge of the research and scientific program of the company.

An artists' division will be established under the direction of Walter C. Haeuschen. Contracts will be made with musicians for recording rights, and a national advertising and sales campaign will be carried on through locally organized distributers.

The Sonora Phonograph Co. will retain its identity as a separate corporate structure, headed by P. L. Deutsch as president. Deutsch will have offices in both New York and Chicago. The new corporation will have its main office at 16 East Fortieth street, New York.

ATWATER KENT RADIO
It has come!

OVERWHELMING demand for Atwater Kent radio brings mass-production prices.

Atwater Kent Radio, because of its obvious and convincing superiority, won universal preference. When America approves, it buys. An avalanche of demand resulted. A two acre factory has expanded into an enormous plant covering fifteen and one-half acres.

Now, Atwater Kent Radio, recognized the world over as the highest development of radio, is offered at prices which pass on to the public savings achieved by scientific manufacture on a gigantic scale.

NEW ACME A AND B UNIT

Latest of radio products of the Acme Electric and Manufacturing Co., Cleveland, is a combination A and B unit with a dry storage battery and a dry charger, as well as a plate battery eliminator utilizing the new full wave rectifier tube UX-280 of CX-380.

Strictly speaking, the battery is not dry, but it so nearly so that it is not spillable and gassing is reduced to a negligible minimum. The electrolyte is absorbed by a paste-like substance between the plates.

Operation of the unit is controlled entirely from the set, as a built-in switch changes from Elkon charger to eliminator and vice versa.

INTERESTING PRINCIPLE USED IN NEW LINCOLN 9-TUBE SET

An interesting departure in superheterodyne construction is developed in the new Lincoln tube receiver, in that a harmonic of the heterodyne is used and is amplified in the second, third and fourth stages. This is said to result in a noticeable reduction of noise and interference and to permit sharper tuning and considerably greater amplification without distortion.

The successive intermediate stages operate at different multiples or harmonics of the original frequency, thus making the intermediate system its own filter. This, with the air core, makes for selectivity to a high degree.

Interference, it is said, having no harmonic, can not be received easily in the Lincoln, resulting in elimination of much noise, the only interference being that brought on the wave of the station being received.

It also is said that the Lincoln long-wave transformers have no stray fields or capacities, regardless of how they are placed or how wires are run.

When a station is tuned in on the Lincoln Nine, there is no squeal or noise. Instead, the set simply slides quietly into the signal and so, adjustment for volume is all that is required.

Volume is so great that it is advisable to use a 112 or 112A tube in the first audio stage and a 171 tube in the last stage. Tone quality is said to be unusually fine.

The set may be built either on baseboard or subpanel.

Angora, the new capital of Turkey, has now a wireless station which is broadcasting musical and other programs to all parts of Asia Minor.

What Columbia Chain Offers For the Week

This afternoon's Columbia chain symphonic hour at 2 p. m. over KMOX is to include three movements of Debussy's "Children's Corner" suite, which will be played by the chain's all-soloist radio symphony orchestra. In this hour also, Alexander Semmler, pianist, will be heard in the first movement from Grieg's concerto in A minor.

The orchestra also will play a movement from Tschaikowsky's "Pathetique" symphony and one from the "New World" symphony of Dvorak.

A new arrangement of a Negro spiritual, "Steal Away," will be played in the 3 to 4 Captivators' hour today, with Don Voorhees directing his unusual musical organization, which puts dance band color into concert numbers. Other numbers on this same hour's program are: Johnson's "Li'l Gal" and Ewing's "Chinese Dance."

In the 8 o'clock Effervescent hour, a group of Southern melodies and Hosmer's "Southern Rhapsody" will be given. The male quartet known as the Blue Bottle Tower Watchmen, and the orchestra, the Ginger Mint Julepers, also will be heard. At 8:30 the American Singers will broadcast for half an hour.

George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" will be played with Intimate Hour tonight at 9, by the combined orchestras of the chain. Arthur Schutt, a composer of distinction as well as a piano soloist, will play the piano part in the rhapsody.

The combined orchestras will include Howard Barlow's group of 22 soloists as well as Don Voorhees and his concert and dance musicians.

The Intimate hour will bring also a flute and horn duet, Titl's "Serenade." Another feature of this hour will be the "Grande Duo Concertante" for two violins, by Alard, played by Walter Edelstein and Gregory Besrodny.

Monday's program will include the Captivators Orchestra in an hour of standard selections at 8 and the Musical Album hour at 9.

Opera and popular songs of the Mauve decade will fill the two hours from 8 to 10 Wednesday on the Columbia chain.

Verdi is the subject of the Kolster Famous Composer hour.

The Columbia Phonograph hour will be built around the sentimental, and sometimes amusing, songs of that period in American life known as the Mauve decade, just before the turning point of the old century.

In this hour there will be quartet numbers and vocal solos and instrumental arrangements of "In the Good Old Summer Time," "Sweet Adeline," "Little Annie Rooney," "She's Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage," "Hiawatha" and "My Gal's a High Born Lady."

In the Kolster hour will be given the tenor air, "La Donna e Mobile," from Rigoletto; some of the music from "Aida;" the familiar "Home to Our Mountains" from "Il Trovatore" and selections from "La Traviata." The hour will finish with the quartet from "Rigoletto."

Lusty choruses and Captain Kidd and his buccaneers will begin a series of novelties which might be called tabloid musical comedies from 9 to 9:30 Friday night.

The 8 to 9 Friday evening Dodge Brothers hour will feature songs and old tunes sung by Dodge Brothers' Fast Four. The symphony orchestra will play Svensen's "Coronation March" and Ellenberg's "Turkish March." An interesting number will be "College Overture," introducing familiar college songs and written by Morse Tobani, whose name is not nearly so familiar as one of his other compositions, "Hearts and Flowers."

MERIT AWARDS OPEN TO FOUR EAGLE SCOUTS

Four Eagle Scouts of Scout Region No. 8, embracing the St. Louis and Missouri districts, can qualify for merit awards of $100 from the Harmon Foundation of New York City, the foundation has recently announced. The award must be applied for education purposes.

The performing of an outstandingly unselfish service of a constructive character by an Eagle scout is the consideration the board will weight in making each award.

The Harmon Foundation also has set aside funds to be disbursed in loans to Boy Scouts to complete their education, and offers scholarships to duly qualified Eagle Scouts. Application blanks will be furnished at Boy Scout headquarters, in the Chemical Building.

All scouts to receive the award of first class after Nov. 1, 1927, must present themselves before a district court of honor.

The North District Court of Honor will be held tomorrow evening in the auditorium of Yeatman High School. Scouts of all classes are invited. Scoutmaster Harold Schmitz will be in charge of the flag ceremony. The closing ceremony will be in charge of Scoutmaster Hanson Freeman. The Rev. C. R. Taylor will give the invocation and an address.

Presentation of awards to first class scouts, a performance by the drum and bugle corps of the district, music by the intermediate school orchestra and a fire demonstration by Troop No. 42 will be on the program.

Scout Notes

North District.

Troop 3 started off auspiciously in the contest in Region 1. Several members of the troop will receive merit badges in the Court of Honor tomorrow night at Yeatman High School. Scoutmaster Simons visited Troop 243 on Parents' night, last Tuesday.

Troop 243 entertained 110 parents and friends of troop members at Parents' night Tuesday. Demonstrations of Scout work were revelations to the visitors. Jack Wright and J. P. Simons talked entertainingly. The Drum Corps opened the program. After the scout benediction had been said, refreshments were served. A donation of $5 was made to the troop treasury.

Troop 161 is planning a Parents' night. In preparation, the scouts have been practicing knot tying, first aid, signaling and singing. The troop has several new members.

Troop 206 had the basketry booth at the Merit Badge Show. Its last meeting was attended by 18 scouts. Three troop committeemen and three visitors also were present.

Troop 1 has planned a council fire for next week. Its last meeting was addressed by the Rev. C. P. Maxwell, deputy scout commissioner. Thirteen scouts and 10 former scouts were present.

Troop 1 had the business booth at the Merit Badge Show. It was sponsored by Rotarian William H. Kennedy and was honored by a visit from Mayor Miller, who congratulated the scouts on their showing. He left his autograph at the booth. Two new boys have joined the troop.

Troop 50 of the Normandy High School is living up to the scout motto, "Be Prepared." On short notice it performed a first aid demonstration before the school and raised a new flag at the Bel-Nor Elementary School upon request of Supt. Miller. The troop is planning an open house meeting for the students and their parents. On Oct. 22 the troop hiked to the Meramec River.

South District.

Two troops re-registered during the week. They were Troop 66, at the Dover Place Christian Church, and Troop 104 of the Carondelet Presbyterian Church.

The first fall Court of Honor in the South District will be held at 8 p. m. Nov. 14, at the Missouri School for the Blind. Any scout whose award of a merit badge is pending should report to scout headquarters this week, in order to have them at the Court of Honor. All parents and friends of scouts are invited to attend the meeting.

Troop 232 of the Blow School held its meeting Friday night with heir new scoutmaster, Ralph Coleman, who was formerly connected with Troop 123. Nineteen scouts, including six new members, were present. Plans were made for the reorganization of the troop and the appointment of new patrol leaders and the organization of new patrols. A short program was conducted.

Troop 180 of the Rose Fanning School had a Halloween party last Tuesday night in lieu of the regular meeting. The room was decorated for the occasion and one of the troop committeemen was dressed as a witch and told the fortunes of the scouts. A ducking relay was won by the Wolf patrol. Cracker eating and whistling relays were won by the Flying Eagle Patrol. The merit badge scout game was won by Scout William Onder. Prizes were given to the winners of these contests. All scouts attending were dressed in costume. After the games the troop committeemen served refreshments, and everyone had a most enjoyable time.

Troop 107 visited the Lion's Den Reservation at 6 a. m. Oct. 23. The troop was taken from its meeting place, at 2911 McNair avenue, through the courtesy of the Troop Committee, which furnished machines. A pleasant program was carried out, tests were passed and games played, including a treasure hunt, which involved tracking and signaling. At 5:45 p. m. the scouts were called for and given auto rides back home. The camp director awarded the troop 100 per cent for the day.

A Halloween party was given the troop by some of the boys' mothers. A program was arranged and indoor field meet held, followed by a weird game of "A Grewsome Tale," conducted by the Rev. C. H. F. Hass. The eats were doughnuts, cookies, cocoa, popcorn balls, candy and apples.

A short talk by the scoutmaster, Mr. L. A. Lang, preceded an address by M. D. Shippey, field scout executive, who commended the troop on its progress. The meeting was closed with the scoutmaster's benediction and taps.

Troop 77 of the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church has three members attending the State Scout Roundup at Columbia, Mo. They are Scouts Larry McDougall, Hollis George and Richard Busch. This troop had the Mining Merit Badge Booth and had some very fine specimens on exhibition.

Troop 158 of the Holy Innocents' Church conducted the archery booth at the Merit Badge Exhibit last week. The boys all displayed great skill in this work. Scoutmaster Messing has been doing some wonderful work in scouting with the boys of Troop 158.

West District.

Troop 11 of the Young Men's Hebrew Association is in the midst of a busy scouting season. Meetings are unusually well attended. A 500-point individual contest has aroused interest so that every member is striving for an award.

TROOP 70 of the Jewish Community Center now has an active troop committee consisting of J. E. Cohen, chairman; S. N. Nieman and S. J. Jacoby. Two additional members will be appointed. Membership in the troop is expected to double in a short time.

Troop 106 of the Second United Presbyterian Church, Grand and Forest Park boulevards, held its annual father-and-son banquet last night. There was a record turnout of boys, also a good attendance of fathers. W. R. Scott was introduced as a new member of the troop committee.

Troop 23 had the cycling booth at the Merit Badge Show in the Coliseum last week. Bicycle races were features every night. Don Rehm, the winner, will be awarded a silver cup. His record was 8.1 miles in 15 minutes.

Troop 91 of the St. Barbara's Church, 1359 Hamilton avenue, went on a Halloween hike Monday night. The hike menu included sandwiches, marshmallows, apples and cocoa. A campfire meeting with games, songs and jokes enlivened the evening. The Muehling Packing Co. loaned two trucks to convey the boys to their camp at Ferguson. Sunday morning the troop attended church in a body.

Troop 90 of the Shaare Emeth Congregation is planning an extensive hiking program for November and December, including several trips to Lions' Den Reservation. The troop gained three new members last week. Scouts Morris, Wachtel Jr., Alfred Fleischer and Nathan Kohn. Among visitors at the last troop meeting was Edward F. Schweich, one of the West District deputy commissioners, who spoke on scout practice.

Troop 93 of the Church of The Redeemer, 4779 Washington boulevard, presented the Poultry booth at the Merit Badge show in the Coliseum. E. B. McKee, Rotary patron of the booth, furnished the equipment and explained the merit badge requirements. New games were introduced at the last troop meeting. A number of guests were present. Hot dogs, sandwiches and cakes topped off the evening.

KING SHARED HIS PUDDING WITH PRINCESS LICHNOWSKY

Incident Recalled in Connection With Her Late Husband's Published Memoirs.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The publication, just announced, of two volumes of memoirs by Prince Karl Lichnowsky, last German Ambassador to the Court of St. James, recalls the fact that the Prince owed much of his popularity in England to his wife, Princess Mechtilde Lichnowsky. The princess is known not only as one of the leading German women of letters, but also as a person who never hesitates to say right out what she means.

At the formal dinner given by King George and Queen Mary in honor of the Lichnowskys when the Prince acceded to his post in London, the Princess naturally sat next to the King at the table. As he was suffering from stomach trouble and therefore unable to eat ice cream with the others, a light, warm pudding was served him. The Princess, who does not care for ice cream observed: "Well, well, your Majesty—what a fine pudding that is! I bet it tastes better than our ice cream!"

Some members of the King's entourage were flabbergaster. They frowned upon the young princess and considered her performance quite a break. Not so the King. He laughed heartily, insisted that another plate be brought, and divided his pudding with her.

PLAY REVIVED AFTER 28 YEARS

Berlin Audiences Again See "Troilus and Cressida."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—For the first time in 28 years, "Troilus and Cressida," known as the stepchild among Shakspeare's dramas, has been revived this fall in Berlin. It is proving so great a success that it will probably run at Max Reinhardt's "Deutsches Theater" for months.

When last given 28 years ago, "Troilus and Cressida" did not appeal to the Berlin theater going public. It was taken off after a few matinee performances. Since then, there has been almost annual talk of reviving it. Reinhardt planned to direct it personally. Leopold Jessner, Director General of the Prussian State theaters, also was slated to bring it out. The "Volksbuehne" had even begun rehearsals on it last year, then dropped it again. When Erwin Piscator organized his communist theater a few months ago, it was generally rumored he would bring it out. It has remained for Heinz Hilpert, Reinhardt's right hand man, to walk off with the glory of staging a winning production.

MEDAL FOR BREAD VENDER

Woman, 83, Has Delivered Rolls in Paris More Than 50 Years.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Clarisse, "Grandma-of-the-boulevards," whose slight figure has been a familiar sight for more than half a century to early morning promenaders, has won a medal.

For 53 years, "Grandma," whose name is Clarisse-Elisa Thuillier and who is 83 years old, has delivered fresh rolls to the clients of a bakery in the Faubourg Poissoniere. Her bent figure is to be seen soon after dawn pushing her little breadladen cart along the boulevards, but no longer is she to be found at her post as usher in the Dejazet Theater, where for three generations she worked at night to supplement her mornings' earnings. The Bakers' Syndicate of Paris, learning recently of Clarisse's remarkable record, awarded her a splendid shining medal and gave her a sum of money.

St. Louis Protestant Orphans' Home, have found leather working doubly interesting as they now repair their own shoes. The troop displayed their skill at the merit badge exhibit and wish to thank the members of the Rotary Club who assisted them in establishing a booth. The shoe repairing equipment, which has become the property of the Home, was donated by Charles E. Ross of the Hamilton Brown Shoe Co.

A Message to Mothers

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

GAVE BABY STRENGTH—PREVENTED COLDS.

MRS. W. R. HUGHES, 652 East Grand Ave., Decatur, Ill., in a recent signed statement issues this message, which all mothers should heed: "We have a little son aged 20 months. His first winter I gave him Father John's Medicine every night at bedtime. He did not have a cold all winter. We did not keep him in, but when I took him out I gave him Father John's Medicine. In April he had whooping cough and we gave him Father John's all through the time. This picture was taken at the worst stage of the sickness. We are giving it again this winter, and, as before, he has no cold. I wish every mother would use it for it seems so unnecessary for little folks to be always sick."

Permits Resumption of Traffic to Bowling Green and Points West.

Paving of the six-mile gap west of Louisiana, Mo., on United States Highway No. 54 was completed the past week.

About three miles of the six-mile section, which begins at the western limits of Louisiana and extends to near Vera station on the Chicago & Alton Railroad was poured last summer and the paver was moved to Wentzville, where it was kept in operation until about Oct. 1, when it was brought back here.

Working rapidly to complete the pavement and close the gap before cold weather, the Ross company poured concrete at the rate of more than 1000 feet per day.

The completion of the six-mile section will permit resumption of traffic between Louisiana and Bowling Green and points west, which has been temporarily interfered with.

Contractors are at work on United States Highway No. 54 at points west of Louisiana in the western part of Pike and Audrain Counties, which, when the several contracts are finished, will insure hard surface and gravel roads from the bridge crossing the Mississippi River here to United States Highway No. 40 at McCreedie, Mo.

A. A. A. SEEKS REPEAL OF AUTO EXCISE TAX

War Measure Cost Owners $65,000,000 in 12 Months, or $30 Per Each New Car

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Following Secretary Mellon's statement several days ago before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives that he opposed the repeal of the war excise tax on automobiles, the American Automobile Association is making preparations to fight the issue.

It has announced that close to 20 major national organizations representing the public, as well as every phase of the automobile industry, are committed to the fight for immediate repeal.

A. A. A. Head to Reply.

Thos. P. Henry of Detroit, president of the A. A. A., appears before the Ways and Means Committee tomorrow to reply to Mellon's statements.

Coincident with this statement, the American Automobile Association made public a complete chart showing the total amount of money paid by the car owners of the country as automobile excise tax and also the totals paid by each state.

Automobile war excise tax paid by car owners in Missouri for 12 months ending Aug. 31, 1927, was $2,137,722. This taxation was applied against 90,852 new cars bought by Missourians over the same period. Missouri's total motor car registration Dec. 31, 1926, was 587,856 units.

Motorists of the entire United States for the year ending Aug. 31 paid a total of $65,574,303 into the Treasury as automobile war excise tax. This was on 2,790,804 new cars purchased during the same period.

This war measure has cost each

European Salons Display Fabric Body Cars

French and British Makers Displacing Paint and Varnish With Leather and Leatherette Panels.

By M. W. BOURDON.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—If one could judge correctly by the majority of exhibits at the London and Paris auto shows, paint and varnish and cellulose as well, will soon be things of the past for automobile body finishes. They will be displaced by fabric — leather or leatherette—panels.

On many of the French manufacturers' stands at both shows only fabric bodies were to be seen. The same applies to care shown by custom body builders, while, with only about a dozen exceptions out of something like 200 stands, every automobile manufacturer showed one if not more models with fabric bodies. And the latter were not only sedans, for phaetons, limousines, landaulets, coupes and other types of body were to be seen finished with fabric, from the highest priced to the cheapest.

Public Attitude Uncertain.

It is not certain yet, however, that the car-buying public will favor fabric bodies as extensively as these two principal European shows indicate. There is undoubtedly a demand for this type of body, but whether it will expand to such a remarkable extent as the exhibits of the 1926 and 1927 shows suggest by comparison, remains to be seen. Last year it was exceptional to see a fabric body at the Olympia Show (London).

Next to the large proportion of fabric bodies, the London and Paris shows were remarkable by reason of the large number of new light sixes introduced. These ranged principally between 75 and 150 cubic inch capacity. It has become evident of late that, with British motorists—for whom so many French and Italian makers specially cater—the most popular size of engine, irrespective of cylinder numbers, is one on which he must pay taxes on a rating of not more than 10 to 14 horsepower, which implies a piston displacement of 70 to 120 cubic inches.

They are remarkable in the power developed, these light sixes. Several of less than 150 cubic-inch develop more than 50 horsepower. And they rotate at speeds up to over 4000 r. p. m. They are smooth and quiet at all speeds, probably because of their very light reciprocating parts and their massive crankshafts and crankcases.

G. M. Vauxhall Displayed.

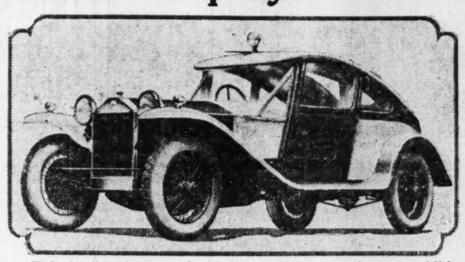
Particular interest at the London show centered in the new 20-60 h. p. Vauxhall, the first new model to be produced of this famous British make since the financial control of the plant was secured by General Motors Corp. It is a high-grade car, for the lowest priced model, the phaeton, is £475 (roughly $2375) the metal panel sedan being £20 more.

Its six-cylinder engine has overhead valves and is notable for its nine-bearing crankshaft. Mainly it is essentially European in design, but the induction system and heating for mixture vaporization is typical of General Motors practice, in Buick cars, for instance.

A development at the London show was represented by the many closed bodies that could be more or less opened. This is a change from previous practice, for makers have for years attempted to produce an open car that could be closed to give the benefits of a sedan.

The new bodies are sedans, in some cases of which from half to three-quarters—or sometimes all—of the roof can be slid or folded back, leaving the side windows and framing in place. One arrangement, used by three or four makers, has a small crank handle that winds back the flexible roof in a few moments.

Another, also adopted by three or four firms, has a folding roof, three-quarters of it folding back into an envelope on the fixed rear part.



This is the airway sedan being shown at continental exhibits. It is a British body on an Italian Lancia chassis, designed by an architect to reduce wind resistance to the minimum. It seats three, and the equipment includes a radio. The color scheme is bright red and cream.

Sun Saloons Popular.

These "sun saloons," as they are called, are offered usually at the same price as the alternative models with fixed roofs, and in some if not most cases it is impossible to detect any difference between them so far as exterior appearances are concerned.

The general trend in Europe, as in America, is towards the universal use of sedans and other types of closed bodywork; but the proportion is not yet so large as in the U. S. A., for British motorists still favor "roofless motoring" in fine weather.

As regards engines, it is evident that the four or more than 100 cubic inch capacity will soon be obsolete. But the six is not yet the most popular type of car in England. This remains the eight to 12 horsepower four, with an open or sedan body.

Even on the smallest sizes—seven-eight horsepower—with 50 cubic inches piston displacement, sedan bodies are fitted, both metal panel and fabric, while on the 60-70 cubic inch chassis the bodywork is often as roomy and as comfortable as on cars of three times the engine size.

CAR TO RUN 250 M. P. H. DESIGNED IN ENGLAND

Body to Be Modeled After That of Seaplane—Steam Cooling to Be Used.

News from England is that Louis Coatalen, who designed Maj. H. O. D. Seagrave's 1000-horsepower freak that average 203 miles per hour on the Florida sands, plans to build another speeder that will run up to 250 miles per hour.

As Frank Lockhart, winner of the 1926 Indianapolis race, is building a special racer to attack Seagrave's record, there is a possibility of an exciting contest at Daytona, Fla., next spring or summer.

Seagrave's Sunbeam car, as will be recalled, was something of a monstrosity, with its two 500-horsepower engines arranged front and rear. Apparently, Coatalen is designing his new Sunbeam with the idea of gaining speed by high engine efficiency and careful streamlining.

"I may be over-optimistic," Coatalen said, "but our 1000-horsepower car was designed to do 200 miles per hour, and did it. The new car will have two engines each of 200 horsepower rating, but with a probable power output of 600 horsepower.

"The engines will not be fore and aft as was the case with the 1000-horsepower Sunbeam. They will be side by side at the front of the chassis and their drive will be synchonized.

"The car, I hope, will be ready in the spring, when it will undergo a modified trial in England before being shipped to the United States."

CHEVROLET CELEBRATES SIXTEENTH BIRTHDAY

Nearing the close of the most successful year in its history, the Chevrolet Motor Co. this week rounded out its sixteenth year of existence.

Named for Louis Chevrolet, well known race driver of an earlier decade, the Chevrolet Motor Co. of Michigan was organized on Nov. 3, 1911.

Five cars were built in 1911. This year one million cars will be built, more than the combined output for the first 11 years of the company's existence.

That first year a handful of men worked in an obscure factory at West Grand boulevard and the Viaduct, Detroit, to turn out mostly by hand methods those first five cars. Today more than 100,000 people are directly employed in producing, selling and servicing Chevrolet cars.

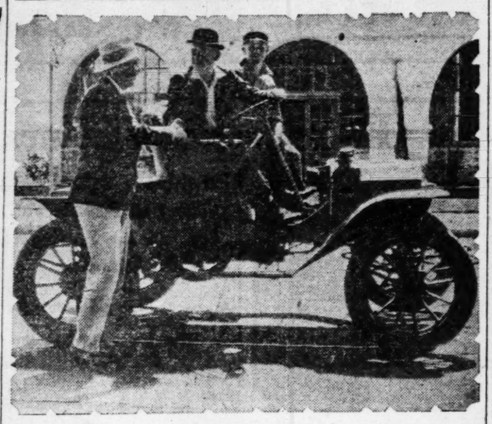
Today 11 great factories—exclusive of export operations—are running to capacity to meet the demand of Chevrolets infinitely superior to, and listing at one-fourth the cost of, those first cars.

The "Royal Mail" and "Baby Grand" models brought Chevrolet wide popularity in the early days, but the "490" model, so named because it listed at $490, placed the company definitely in the field as a volume producer of motor cars. That was in 1915. That year 70,701 cars were built.

Shortly afterward the first assembly plant began production at Oakland, Cal., to supply the West Coast. Seven more such plants have since been erected, and one is now in process of construction at Atlanta, Ga. These are located at strategic points throughout the country to render the greatest possible service to the car purchaser.

General Motors took over Chevrolet in 1918, with wide expansion following. In 1925 for the first time volume exceeded the half million mark. The 1926 production was 732,147 cars and trucks equalled this year on Aug. 12, and company officials look forward confidently to one million units in 1927.

A Reo Automobile in 1904, and Today



Under its own power this 1904 one-cylinder, four cycle Reo roadster, was recently driven from Long Beach, Cal., to Sacramento and return, taking the mountainous route with ease.

WILLYS-KNIGHT RUNS 1065 MILES IN 25 HOURS

A Willys-Knight Great Six, in a test run from Los Angeles to Portland, Ore., staged to determine its ability for official use in the police and fire departments at San Fernando, Cal., went over the 1065-mile route in 25 hours' driving time, the factory reports.

BIG OUTPUT MEANS MUCH TO OWNERS, SAYS PEERLESS

"The advantages of big production, although much talked about in the automotive industry, have a tangible meaning for car buyers which few people really understand," says Fred Slack, chief engineer of Peerless Motor Car Corporation.

"For instance," says Slack, "it was buying power which first brought about great production, and it is buying power that enables Peerless to give its least expensive models, the Six-60 and the Six-80 the same special alloy steel that is used in the Peerless Eight-69, a car selling for almost three times as much.

"No other car selling in these price classes have so fine a steel used in the springs."

AUTO DEALERS TO HEAR BUSINESS LETTER EXPERT

Members of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association have been asked by Robert E. Lee, manager, to attend a meeting at the Claridge Hotel, Monday night, Nov. 7, to discuss "Writing Business Letters." The speaker will be Dr. Frank W. Dignan of the La Salle Extension University of Chicago.

Dr. Dignan, an authority on the framing of business letters, has lectured on this and kindred subjects all over the United States. He has been heard by the Advertising Club of St. Louis and the Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis, and at this time is conducting a school of business correspondence each Tuesday evening for the Sales Managers' Bureau of St. Louis.

COUNTY TO WAR ON OVERLOADED TRUCKS

Roads Damaged $50,000 in Past Twelve Months, Highway Engineer Says.

Estimating that overloaded trucks have done damage to St. Louis county roads in excess of $50,000, Roy Jablonsky, County Highway Engineer, has begun a campaign to enforce the county load limit law.

Jablonsky and two Deputy Constables are now actively engaged in checking up on the poundage of trucks using the county roads.

Loading four-wheel trucks in excess of 24,000 pounds gross, or six-wheel vehicles in excess of 30,000 pounds gross, is a misdemeanor punishable by $500 fine and 12 months in jail. The owner is liable for full repairs and "any peace officer" is authorized to compel unloading of the excess weight.

"I have no inclination to deal lightly with such offenders," said Justice of the Peace Werremeyer. "St. Louis County has pulled out of its financial hole by cutting down road expenses, and it is not fair for truck owners deliberately to raise maintenance costs."

Jablonsky $50,000 estimate of damage covers only about 100 miles of macadam road, serving several quarries and sections where building is active, on which the cost of maintenance is $1000 a mile each year instead of the normal $500. The burden was thrown on the county, he related, about a year ago when the State Highway Commission placed two patrolmen on the four State highways in the county. Overloaded trucks forsook State for county roads.

He said the chief offenders were construction, quarry and material concerns. He has sought their cooperation, and several of the larger companies have instructed their employes to keep within the law.

NEW G. M. TRUCK EXECUTIVE

Paul W. Seiler, president, announces the appointment of O. L. Arnold as vice president of the General Motors Truck Co., a subsidiary of the Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing Co.

Arnold will direct sales for this division. He terminates a connection of 17 years with the Ford Motor Co. At the time of his resignation from the Ford Motor Co. he was branch manager and zone supervisor of their Chicago division.

PENNSYLVANIA USING G. M. BIG BRUTE TRUCKS

The Highway Department of Pennsylvania is augmenting its present large fleet of motor trucks by 50 new three-ton General Motors Big Brute dump trucks, the order having been placed within the last few days.

This gives the state nearly 200 pieces of truck equipment to use this winter to keep highways clear of snow and ice. Many of the trucks, of dump body type, will be equipped with snow plows and scrapers. In the summer the fleet is used in highway construction work.

"Three months ago the Pennsylvania State Highway Department purchased 16 one-ton six cylinder General Motors trucks equipped with Buick engines. The performance of these units was so remarkable that preference was given to the General Motors line of trucks in the repeat order for the Big Brute three-ton type," the G. M. Truck Co. reports.

EVROLET OCTOBER SALES 112,000 UNITS

High Peak in Company's History—Will Reach Million Goal Set for 1927.

Chevrolet Motor Co.'s reports from its dealers on retail deliveries in October show 112,064 units sold and delivered, as compared with 74,747 in October, 1926. These figures set an all-time high record in the history of the company and are over 13,000 higher than the previous high in May, 1927, when 98,337 units were sold and delivered.

Total sales to date for the year are now more than 900,000, which indicates that Chevrolet is carrying out its million-car program for 1927. The millionth car is scheduled to leave the "line" on Nov. 9. Of the 112,064 units sold, the Middle West region, of which St. Louis is the manufacturing headquarters, sold 25,847 units.

"This," according to A. W. L. Gilpin, regional sales manager here, "exceeds all previous regional records and gives the Middle West region a high sales position with the six other Chevrolet regions in the United States."

HEADED CHEVROLET SALES CAMPAIGN IN MIDDLE WEST

A. W. L. GILPIN.

The basis of Chevrolet's high sales in October was the turkey-bean contest, a national sales competion held annually.

By the terms of the contest, the many national sales zones were divided into sales teams, and the winning teams were given a turkey dinner by the losing teams, while the latter, at the same dinner, were forced to eat beans.

The turkey-bean dinner of the St. Louis zone was held at the Hotel Chase here Tuesday night, Nov. 1. There were 236 dealers and salesmen at the meeting. Fully 60 per cent of those present ate turkey. C. G. Jacksen, city sales manager, presided.

In the St. Louis territory the sales leadership was given South Side Chevrolet Co. with 85 units sold in October. This firm, and two other sales leaders, Allen-James Motor Car Co. and McCarthy-Pardue Chevrolet Co., were awarded loving cups.

DE PAOLO AGAIN WINS U. S. SPEEDWAY CROWN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Peter de Paolo, the speedway flash of Los Angeles, has again won the American Automobile Association speedway championship for 1927. De Paolo was champion in 1925.

That De Paolo had placed first on the basis of point total awarded in the national speedway events for the year was recently announced by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, which supervises and regulates official championship racing in the United States.

De Paolo is one of the six drivers who have ever been able to win the most coveted prize of the roaring road twice. Frank Lockhart of Ohio duplicated his 1926 performance by again placing second. George Souders, Purdue University student, who startled the racing world by winning the Indianapolis classic on May 30 without previous experience in major league racing, was third.

BUICK DISTRIBUTER HERE AND DEALERS VISIT FACTORY

W. H. Vesper, vice president, and W. H. Willcockson, secretary, of the Vesper Buick Auto Co., Buick distributer, have just returned from Flint, Mich., where they spent three days, in company with a party of 113 Buick dealers from the St. Louis trade territory, as guests of the Buick Motor Co.

The St. Louis territory delegation was entertained Oct. 27 and 28 at the Buick factory and the General Motors Proving Ground. This is part of the Buick program through which 3800 Buick dealers in the United States are to inspect the factory.

The St. Louis party made the trip in a special train, leaving St. Louis Wednesday, Oct. 26, and arriving in Flint, Thursday morning, Oct. 27.

Upon arrival, the party was met by Buick executives, divided into groups and each group provided with a guide—and then taken directly to the Buick factory in a special fleet of cars to start their inspection through the many Buick plants.

AUTOS AID GROWTH OF PARK SYSTEMS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The expansion of motor touring in recent yea has seen a corresponding development in the idea of the state park and what it should provide.

State parks and forests range in size from a few square rods to the 1,850,000 acres of the Adirondack Park of New York, which is larger than any national park except Yellowstone and which administers an additional recreational area of privately owned land—bringing its total to 3,300,000 acres. The range in equipment of these centers does not always vary widely, but considering the relative newness of the idea behind them the parks differ to a considerable extent.

New facilities which prove advantageous when tried out in one place have a tendency to spread, so that it is not difficult to visualize the ideal park. Primarily, says the National Conference on State Parks, it is a region embracing a state's most magnificent "unimproved" scenery and should, wherever practicable, include mountains, plains, valleys, forests, lakes and streams, with their native plant, bird and animal life. Historic sites, when preserved as parks, frequently contain similar characteristics.

"A state park should be suitable in extent and natural features for such forms of recreation as camping, fishing, bathing and other outdoor sports," the conference asserts. "It should be developed to its fullest use. A modest hotel, harmonizing with its surroundings, should provide accommodation for visitors. Permanent camps and overnight camps should be available for daily use. Horseback and foot trails should be a feature of its development. Nature can be studied at first hand and opportunities for outdoor education should be developed.

"The ideal state park not only gives sanctuary to the human family—it demands that some of the primitive American land be left forever in its original state, undisturbed and unmarred by man-made 'improvements.'"

Fatalities Decrease.

Statistics on motor vehicle fatalities in the United States disclose that 58 persons were killed each day in July in motor accidents, as compared with 60 a day in July, 1926. In June of this year the average was 69 fatalities a day.

FIRESTONE TIRE CO. OPENS NEW BRANCH BUILDING

The new factory branch building of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. is to be informally opened tomorrow, Nov. 7. Located on Forest Park boulevard, between Sarah street and Boyle avenue, the new building presents an imposing appearance with its 60,000 square feet of floor space, and is so arranged that an additional unit can be constructed whenever the constantly growing Firestone business feels the need.

Running back to the railroad tracks, incoming freight is immediately available to the shipping, service and other departments. The general offices and sales department will be located on the second floor, nearly 30,000 square feet of floor space being immediately available in the warehouse alongside.

The center of the building forms a court bounded by the shipping and receiving departments. The court is to be used for private parking.

According to W. G. Sabine, local Firestone manager, the new building is the result of long and careful planning to give the tire trade of this section the finest possible service. Greatly increased space will allow the handling of much larger stocks and insure quick shipment and attention to every order.

AUTO CLUB HANDLING CHRYSLER ROAD SERVICE

All road service and emergency calls of Midwest Motors, Inc., Chrysler distributer here, are now being exclusively handled by the Automobile Club of Missouri through its chain of authorized service stations. The new policy became effective Oct. 1 and, according to J. P. Lowell, service manager for the firm, was inaugurated to give Chrysler owners the most efficient type of road service.

Lowell, who took over the management of the Midwest Motors Service Station at 3870 Washington avenue last July has since done much to improve Chrysler service here. He is now equipping a special department at the station which will install the new Chrysler "red-head" high compression motor heads on old Chrysler models. Since the new head was brought out about a month ago, about 80 owners have had the new heads installed in their cars. The head is procurable for all four and six-cylinder Chrysler cars.

"Midwest Motors service station," says Lowell, "is now handling on an average of 50 repair jobs a day and about 20 to 25 quick service jobs. The shop now employs 15 mechanics."

Recently a complete Duco department was installed.

CADILLAC OCTOBER OUTPUT REACHES NEW HIGH PEAK

October production of Cadillac and La Salle cars by the Cadillac Motor Car Co. will reach a new peak for all times this month, according to preliminary figures just released by H. M. Stephens, the company's general sales manager. Plants have been running very near to capacity output since the beginning of production of the new Cadillac and have continued so throughout October.

Average output is running 175 to 180 cars per day. Expected production for the month is 4276 units, a gain of 5 per cent over September, which was the biggest previous month in the company's history. This tops production in October, 1926, by 43 per cent and the biggest previous October by 30 per cent.

Preliminary figures of shipments also indicate that October shipments will be the second largest of any month in Cadillac history, the largest being March of the current year. They will surpass September shipments by 6 per cent, shipments of October of last year by 93 per cent, and will be 25 per cent greater than any previous October in Cadillac history.

Production schedules call for 100 per cent increase in output through the current 12 months. The schedules are based on demand for both Cadillac and La Salle models.

OLDS TO BUILD NEW RESEARCH BUILDING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 5.—Contracts were this week awarded for construction of another new building to be devoetd wholly to Oldsmobile development, design and research work. This is in addition to the $3,000,000 expansion program the Olds Motor Works now has under way.

The new building will be completed shortly after the beginning of 1928 and will be equipped with modern scientific apparatus designed for research and development work. It will be 400 feet long by 90 feet wide, with 36,000 square feet floor space. It is to be of steel and brick construction.

The building will contain the research laboratories, dynamometer rooms, experimental drafting room, experimental machine shops, experimental garage and a model car studio.

The laboratories and dynamometer rooms will contain a battery of four standard dynamometers for recording scientific measurements of torque and power, a chassis dynamometer and a battery of six "life test" dynamometers to test the final breaking point in an automobile engine by keeping it running continuously at high speeds and under heavy loads. There also will be special machines for scientific testing of cooling, lubrication and other features of automobile design.

Two new devices to be installed in the new engineering building are an improved type of dynamometer and a torque demand indicator.

Heretofore, dynamometers have been built to measure horsepower only. The new type has new devices permitting scientific check of acceleration, power and the amount of horsepower required to overcome car inertia.

The torque demand indicator can be placed in an automobile in place of the transmission. This gives an accurate record of the horsepower required under certain conditions, such as hill climbing, deep sand driving and to overcome wind resistance while the car is being road tested. The co-ordinated data from this machine and the new type dynamometer will permit the duplication of the same tests, either on the road or in the laboratory.

Two new devices to be installed in the new engineering building are an improved type of dynamometer and a torque demand indicator.

Heretofore, dynamometers have been built to measure horsepower only. The new type has new devices permitting scientific check of acceleration, power and the amount of horsepower required to overcome car inertia.

The torque demand indicator can be placed in an automobile in place of the transmission. This gives an accurate record of the horsepower required under certain conditions, such as hill climbing, deep sand driving and to overcome wind resistance while the car is being road tested. The co-ordinated data from this machine and the new type dynamometer will permit the duplication of the same tests, either on the road or in the laboratory.

Slow-motion pictures are to assist in analyzing car reactions to actual road conditions and will be used with the chassis dynamometer, which, for these tests, will be equipped with eccentric rolls with uneven surfaces to simulate actual road conditions. Slow-motion pictures of a car riding the chassis dynamometer and the use of the stroboscope will enable the engineers to study not only spring and shackle action but every detail of a car's road action.

The outward appearance of an automobile is of major importance and provision for this feature of engineering has been made in the model car studio.

The studio is to be equipped with slowly revolving turntables to permit a study of every angle of a car. Special lighting effects will reveal every detail of the car design and will be used to demonstrate night driving conditions and reflections. That portion of the building devoted to the car studio will have walls that can be opened so that long-range views of the cars on the turntables may be had without limitations caused by the building dimensions.

OLDS DEALERS MEET TO OPEN SALES CAMPAIGN

Eighty-three Oldsmobile dealers and their salesmen from the metropolitan district served by the Olds Motor Works factory branch here, were present at a breakfast meeting at the Forest Park Hotel Tuesday morning, Nov. 1. R. L. Sauels, general manager of the branch here, presided.

The meeting opened a new Olds sales campaign and all discussions were based on sales promotion.

P. C. De Barry, sales promotion manager for the Olds branch here, was the principal speaker. He outlined to the salesmen and dealers the correct method of approaching and selling a prospect.

Other speakers were: J. J. Hudson, manager of the St. Louis branch of General Motors Acceptance Corporation; Joseph Kellerman, National Automobile Dealers' Association, and C. E. Graves of Lambert-Graves Motor Car Co., Oldsmobile distributer here.

As a direct result of the meeting, 11 Oldsmobiles were sold by dealers in the St. Louis territory the next two days, Samuels reported.

YELLOW CABS USE MOTO-GARD

The Yellow Taxicab Co. has equipped several hundred of its newest model taxis in the New York metropolitan district with Moto-Gard.

"Eight months of the year there is a need for adequate protection of a car from the danger of an overcooled motor. Particularly is this true of the taxi, which is continually exposed to all kinds of weather conditions—a fact readily recognized by the Yellow Taxicab Co., in its installing the Moto-Gard shutters on its new taxis," says the company.

An outstanding advantage of Moto-Gard to all car owners is its triple service protection, controlled by hand from the dash.

RENTAL COUPES RESERVED FOR WEEK-END HUNTING TRIPS

Introduction two weeks ago by the Hertz Driveuself automobile rental stations of a fleet of 1928 Buick and Chevrolet automobiles has led to overwhelming demand for the new cars according to E. L. Hudson, manager of the two Hertz stations operating at 3524 Washington and 4824 Delmar.

"Since the arrival of our new fleet both the stations have been taxed to capacity and we have found it almost impossible to supply the great demand of those desiring to drive the new cars," said Hudson.

"Within three days of the time the last of the new fleet was placed in service 17 of them were rented upon a weekly basis by insurance men now in the city settling claims arising from damage to proeprty during the recent tornado, while five days ago 14 more cars were rented to men who left on a trip of from four eight weeks duration. Numerous requests are for reservations of coupes for week-end hunting trips.

GARDNER PROFITS SHOW BIG INCREASE IN 1927

According to figures appearing in a recent issue of Motor, only six of 16 motor car manufacturers show an increase in net earnings for the first six months of the current year, compared to the same period in 1926. The largest profit increase—69 per cent each—is shown by the Gardner Motor Co., Inc., of St. Louis, and the Hudson Motor Car Co.

Losses ranging from 3 per cent to as high as 91 per cent are shown by nine companies—and one manufacturer shows a drop from a net profit of more than a half-million dollars for the first half of 1926 to a net loss of more than $185,000 for the first six months of 1927.

In Motor's analysis, General Motors is considered as one company and shows an increase in net profits of 27 per cent. The combined increase in profits for all 16 companies with General Motors included, is 8.9 per cent, while with General Motors excluded, the other 15 makers show a combined loss of 16 per cent in profits for the first half of the current year. This combined loss would be much greater without the heavy gains registered by Gardner and Hudson.

Supplementary figures released by officials of Gardner Motor Co., Inc., show that Gardner's ratio of current assets to current liabilities is 11.2 to 1 on Oct. 1. Gardner has no bank loans, nor outstanding obligations to meet.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo compound and ¼-oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Salesman For Face Cream Learns a Good Lesson

Mr. Vandivier, New York, writes: "I was a salesman of creams for healing pimples, blemishes, etc., but when my face broke out with blotches, pimples and blackheads, I tried one salve after another with no results. Finally I decided I would have to get at the cause—constipation. I was amazed to find that within a few days after taking your vegetable laxative pills for constipation my skin took on a new healthy look."

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is, pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and hoarseness.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SAYS TREES MODIFY STORMS

French Scientist Lays Bad Weather to Gradual Deforestation.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Trees are lightning rods and the increasingly bad weather is due to the destruction of forests says Edouard Branly, France's grand old man of wireless.

"If there are no longer seasons," he says, "deforestration is the principal, if indeed, alas, not the sole cause. Trees on the heights, with their pointed tips toward heaven and their roots deep in the damp ground, are nothing less than so many lightning rods, constantly discharging into the earth the atmospheric electricity and thereby preventing its accumulation in the clouds, an accumulation that would cause terrible storms. In wooded districts there was calm but now that the woods are being cut down there are constant hard storms." The need for protecting trees is well recognized and the Government next year proposes to spend some money in that direction but meantime owners of forests say heavy taxes oblige them to cut wood to get income.

Last German Mail Coach Goes.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—Germany's last mail coach has gone into the discard. The onward march of the automobile spelled the doom of this institution. The last mail coach served a number of villages in the Province of Hanover. It was nearly a century old and considered a curiosity. It was regularly pointed out to tourists, and treated by the populace with a feeling almost of reverence. Its disappearance was keenly regretted by the old folk in the villages which it served to link up. They do not take kindly to the noisy, odoriferous, high powered automobile which has taken its place.

Civic Repertory Theater Brings "The Cradle Song" As First Offering Here

THE presentations of Gregorio and Marie Martinez Sierra's comedy drama, "The Cradle Song," at the American Theater tomorrow night, will bring playgoers into understanding contact, for the first time, with one of the most interesting of present-day developments in the American Theater, the Civic Repertory Theater of New York. This institution, founded only last season by Miss Eva Le Gallienne, has already taken a conspicuous and honorable position in the theatrical life of New York, and it is regarded by thoughtful lovers of the drama as the most hopeful of the various developments in the theater today.

The organization is sponsored by a group of foremost New Yorkers and its object is simply to provide the highest order of dramatic entertainment, at a reasonable cost, to the patron. To accomplish this aim the organization took over the Fourteenth Street Theater, in New York, and presented there last season, eight plays of the first importance in the classic and modern repertoire. The venture was both artistically and financially successful from the outset.

The most interesting and successful of the modern plays presented last season was "The Cradle Song," and for that reason this delicate comedy, dealing with life in a Spanish cloister, has been chosen as the first play to be offered by the Civic Repertory Theater to audiences outside of New York. The tour, which will extend to the Pacific Coast, is in the nature of an experiment. It has long been urged by those interested in the theater that there is a large public in America ready to support the best legitimate drama provided the price of seats be not prohibitive. The success of the Civic Repertory Theater has demonstrated that such a public exists in New York, and it is the hope of the organization that the present tour of "The Cradle Song" will prove as conclusively that such a public is to be found in every community in the land. Should this tour be successful it is the intention of the Civic Repertory Theater to present a selection of the finest plays in its repertoire on the road each season.

At the Fourteenth Street Theater the highest price is a dollar and a half. In St. Louis, as in other cities—in order that the cost of travel and extra local expenses may be covered—the price of the best seats will be $2.

"THE CRADLE SONG" is a gentle dramatic tale of a waif who is adopted and reared by a group of sympathetic Dominican nuns in a Spanish convent. The plot, though in itself extremely simple, brings to the surface tides of contrasting and conflicting human emotions that make the performance intensely dramatic in the highest sense. Nearly every critic in New York confessed his inability to adequately describe the play, and yet every one of them praised it in the highest terms and especially emphasized its tremendous effect upon the audiences. The spectators that crowded the Fourteenth Street Theater represented the most sophisticated playgoers in New York, but the armor of their experience was no defense against the simple and moving episodes of the play. It possesses, according to all reports, a quality of sincerity, in both its humor and its pathos, that reaches every heart.

The company, which is headed by Mary Shaw, was rehearsed personally by Miss Le Gallienne, and the costumes and scenery were designed by G. E. Calthorp, who has designed all the productions of the Civic Repertory Theater. Among the players who will appear with Miss Shaw are Harry Davenport, Zita Johann, Phyllis Rankin, Mary Hone, Virginia Gregori and Alexander Kirkland.

"THE DARK ANGEL," a drama in which the National Players will appear at the Empress Theater this week, is the presentation of one of the situations that followed the great war. The man has been reported killed in battle. The girl has consoled herself and is engaged to someone else when he returns tragically blind. The story of how the girl and her newly affianced husband find the war-shattered soldier after he has tried to hide from them, and how he solves the problem of their lives, makes the play.

Hazel Whitmore will appear in the leading role as Kitty Fahnestock, and John Lorenz will be Hilary Trent, the blind soldier.

Second Thoughts ON First Nights

By Alexander Woollcott.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.

OUR old friend, "Arizona," done over into a musical comedy all aswarm with wiggling cowgirls clad in bodices of black lace and talcum powder; a rumbling vehicle for Glen Hunter which is just a whimsy laid in a lunatic asylum; a nose-thumbing comedy about Isabella of Castile and her well-known friend, Christopher Columbus—these are only a few of the more recently proffered managerial solutions of the problem presented by the reluctant playgoer. It is a little early to estimate the results, but it would be my guess that they will leave that problem more acute than ever and the playgoers, if any, even more reductant.

"ARIZONA," in its new form, staggers under the name of "The Love Call." Like most of these big, sonorous operettas, its score is by Sigmund Romberg, who must be a syndicate. In his welter of sweet, forgettable tunes, I missed the one song boasted by "Arizona" itself in the old days when, at one time or another, both Vincent Serrano and Edgar Selwyn (an actor, then, and a good one) used to play the impassioned Tony and, twanging a guitar in the sunset, would chant the plaintive love song called, I think, "Adios." I would like to hear it again. Its tune has trailed after me along the corridor of the years, but of the words nothing lingers now save the final verse of the refrain, which ran, "Then Why Call It Madness in Me?"

In sundry engagements, Theodore Roberts, Robert Edson, Olive May, Lionel Barrymore, Eleanor Robson, the Farnum brothers, Elsie Ferguson and Chrystal Herne also played in "Arizona." Probably they could all of them sing it for me, and the next one I chance to meet on the street shall therefore be asked to oblige with a solo. Failing these, I can always go to Denis Tilden Lynch, author of that absorbing new book, "Boss Tweed." Whenever I have encountered him during the past 20 years, Master Lynch was always humming that song from "Arizona." It is, I suppose, the only one he knows.

THE aforesaid prank about the first lady of Castile ought to have been called "As the Queen Said to the Sailor." It was, however, entitled "Immoral Isabella?" and it dealt roughly, very roughly, with the great Queen's sacrifice of her jewels for the sake of the seafarer.

Even this dreary romp stirred memories of old tunes in so incorrigible a music box as your correspondent. Between the acts, like one whistling past a graveyard, I kept humming that old ditty from "1492," of which the refrain ran, as you may remember, in this wise:

"Isabella, Isabella, she's the daisy Queen of Spain."

Not that Columbus had no soberer associations with the theater. He was, the protagonist also of a glum and fatiguing drama called "The Admiral" which was played here briefly some years ago by Charles Rann-Kennedy and Edith Wynne-Matthison. It was, as I recall it now, just a real good chance for the Rann-Kennedys to go into conference for five acts.

Then Columbus' shadow fell athwart the scene in "The Fountain," that play which Eugene O'Neill wrote about the West Indies when the caravels were bringing the first wondering white men to our shores. It was Ponce de Leon, himself, I think, who in "The Fountain," was made to say: "I saw Columbus today. He rode his mangy mule as if he were Caesar. His eyes were full of golden cities."

THUS far in this dispatch there has been so much disparagement that I hasten to remind you how many good plays are running in our town. Among them, I would give first place to "Porgy," "Broadway," "The Belt."

Behind the Screens

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.

MOTION picture extras out here in the cinema city are divided into three classes—the extra special, the special and the "floaters." Those in the first class are the ones that occupy the coveted space on the casting director's roll. They are chosen because of special ability or a particular kind of beauty or ugliness, as the case may be.

The second class make up the bulk of the atmosphere, there being 11,000 of these, 6000 men and 5000 women, registered at the Central Casting Bureau. In the last 21 months 502,915 extras were placed by the bureau and they earned $4,181,610.45. The average daily wage was $8.32 and the average daily placement was 780.

There are no statistics on the "floaters," but they are the picturesque class. Every morning they gather in little groups in front of the various studios here and hope against hope that they will get a job. They seem to know by instinct what types the casting director may want. Recently at the F. B. O. Studios, where war decoration scenes were being made for "Legionnaires in Paris," the outer office of the casting department at the studios was filled with men. They all talked in a loud voice about their war records, perhaps hoping the casting director would hear them and say:

"Go out and put on a uniform. You work today." These magic words were not forthcoming, however, in spite of the fact that one man claimed Sidi-Bel-Abes, home of the French Foreign Legion, as his native haunt, another boasted of bravery in the Spanish-American War, and a score claimed distinction in the World War. The men for the scene had been hired the night before. There were no vacancies for the floaters to fill so they went away. An hour later, probably, this same bunch was in front of another studio where war scenes were being made.

"Tillie's Punctured Romance," to be played in Al Christie's new version of this old favorite by W. C. Fields, Chester Conklin and Louise Fazenda, will have a large cast supporting these stars. Mack Swain, that robust and virile villain who kicked Charlie Chaplin about in so many of his early comedies, will romp with the Fields-Conklin-Fazenda trio. Swain was an important member of the original cast of the old "Tillie," and will play a part similar to the one he played 13 years ago. Doris Hill, a member of the Paramount Stock Co., has been awarded the ingenue lead and the juvenile lead is to be played by Grant Withers.

Victor Schertzinger is speeding up preparations for his first Paramount directorial effort, "Honky Tonk." George Bancroft's first starring production, due to start within the next two weeks at the Hollywood studio. Schertzinger, who has won fame as a musical composer and motion picture director, has handled the megaphone on 24 productions since 1922.

William Farnum, one of the most picturesque and colorful figures in motion pictures, who deserted the screen at the height of his popularity four years ago, has been persuaded to return from his self-imposed retirement. He has been signed to appear in a forthcoming Fox feature, "Hangman's House" by Donn Byrne. Farnum will play the role of "The Citizan," an outstanding character of Byrne's story, with June Collyer as the feminine lead, Charles Morton as the boy and Earle Foxe in the heavy role.

Harold Lloyd has just concluded personal appearances before the greatest audience that any celebrity ever played to in New York.

Dempsey and Tunney may have drawn a record gate at Chicago but before Lloyd leaves New York on his return trip to Hollywood he will have played to nearly 2,000,000 persons.

Sounds extravagant, but for the past four weeks Lloyd has been working on his new picture, "Speedy," in the most congested

Pop Concert Today At Odeon Symphony Friday

WITH an all-Tschaikowsky program the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon at 3:15 p. m. today will inaugurate its Sunday Popular Concert series, and introduce to St. Louis music lovers its new policy of giving a more interesting character to those Sunday concerts. The programs this season are to be carefully built as a setting for some complete symphonic work—as are the regular concerts—with this exception; that the major work on the program will be of a lighter or simpler character than those played at the Friday and Saturday concerts.

Probably no composer of the last 50 years is more often heard in regular symphonic and popular concert programs than Tschaikowsky, and Guest Conductor Oberhoffer has arranged a program presenting the Fourth Symphony in F minor in combination with smaller numbers which from their lyric beauty or stirring mood are familiar to almost every lover of music. The program for this afternoon is:

Symphony No. 4 in F Minor, Op. 36
Andantino, in modo di canzone.
Scherzo: Pizzicato ostinato: Allegro.
Finale: Allegro con fuoco.
From "The Nut Cracker Suite," Op. 71a.
(a) March of the Children.
(b) Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy.
(c) Trepak (Russian National Dance).
(d) Arabian Dance.
(e) Chinese Dance.
(g) Waltz of the Flowers.
Written especially for the Post-Dispatch.
Sunday March Slave, duplicated Op. 31.

RICHARD CROOKS, foremost of American tenors, will sing with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, as soloist of the program to be offered by Oberhoffer at the Odeon Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of this week. Crooks, who made his St. Louis debut in 1923, singing under the baton of Frederick Fischer at a Pageant-Choral presentation of Gounod's "Redemption," is to sing "Sound an Alarm" from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," and those Wagnerian lyrics "Lohengrin's

Grand Central to Reopen With Vitaphone Pictures And Jolson Leading Off

By NIE.

AFTER months of idleness preparations are under way for the reopening of the Grand Central Theater at an early date. Warner Brother's picture with the talking and musical Vitaphone accompaniment, will be played exclusively and the opening attraction will be Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer." It is hoped by the Warners that this picture will run for at least four weeks and it will be followed by Syd Chaplin in "The Missing Link" which will also be kept on the screen as long as it attracts the customers in paying numbers.

The admission scale of prices at the Grand Central will be lower than that at the nearby Missouri and at the Ambassador and Loew's downtown. It is reported that 50 cents will be the charge.

In addition to the feature films five acts of movie-vitaphone vaudeville will be offered as was done at the little Capitol Theater last year when the vitaphone was first tried out here. Well-known stage stars will be seen on the screen and they will talk, or sing, through the mechanical apparatus. The music for the main picture will be furnished by the same means and this fact has brought the theater into some sort of conflict with the local Musicians' Union. If arrangements can be made to do away with an orchestra altogether and rely only on the "canned" music which is furnished with the feature and the acts the management will feel better satisfied than if they have to pay some live musicians a weekly wage and keep them quiet under the stage as was done at the Capitol. It was this addition to the overhead charge which contributed to the downfall of the vitaphone when it was tried out here before.

ST. LOUIS yesterday witnessed a "world's premiere" of a motion picture when "The Gorilla" was shown at the Ambassador. Usually a new film gets a first showing in a big picture house after it has been given what the producers choose to call a "Pre-View" at a house in Hollywood or Los Angeles. Although this pre-view is at usual admission prices and frequently runs for weeks it does not, by some method of movie reasoning, count as a regular showing. Asher, Small and Rogers who produced this comedy-thriller, however, were anxious to find out the value of their drama from a less picture-wise audience that the West Coast is able to provide and the first films were brought here for showing. How the picture "goes over" here will determine, among other things, what other exhibitors around the country will have to pay for it so the reports of this week's business at the Ambassador will be watched with considerable interest in the movie world.

BY a recent check of popular fiction stories published in magazines it was found that almost 60 per cent of them ran to the thrilling, chilling mystery story. It seems the problem of finding the real culprit of the narrative arouses a contest between the writer and reader. It is a battle of wits from the very beginning to the final line, for once the mystery is solved it loses interest as a mystery story.

However, in spite of this popularity of the mystery thriller in printed form, the making of a motion picture dealing with this same plot or idea is not often attempted. The problems that confront the writer, director and producer of a mystery picture are many. Nevertheless those who do make them are usually amply rewarded.

"The Gorilla," a stage play written by Ralph Spence, scored a sensational hit on Broadway. Eight road shows toured America and Europe with success. It combined both the blood thrilling mystery element and roars of laughter. So well did it register as a stage production that Edward Small, of Asher, Small and Rogers, made it into a motion picture. The photography is eerie. It is dim and spooky, and yet reveals clearly every "gag" intended.

It is one of those stories in which every member of the cast is under suspicion. It has been worked out in such a way that the real villain is not found until the last hundred feet.

However, "The Gorilla" is not all chilly thrills. It abounds, it is reported, in laughter elicited by the actions of those two famous detectives, Mulligan and Garrity, played by Charlie Murray and Fred Kelsey. These two characters were the mainsprings of the stage

BRINGING THE THEATER BACK TO THE PUBLIC

By Eva Le Gallienne

THE statement, so often made, that the public has deserted the legitimate theater, should, in my opinion, be reversed. I believe that it more truly might be said that the legitimate theater has deserted the public. It has presented plays that the intelligent public does not care to see and has demanded prices that the larger and better public cannot afford to pay.

In establishing the Civic Repertory Theater in New York my one aim was, and is, to provide intelligent drama to intelligent audiences at as low a scale of prices as may be charged without financial loss. The enterprise in New York has been successful far beyond my expectations and hopes. Because of that success, and in the belief that other cities will respond as generously as has New York to the plan that the Civic Repertory Theater is promulgating, we are sending on tour this season a company, headed by Miss Mary Shaw, in "The Cradle Song," which was the most successful of our several productions last year.

Most thrilling of my experiences in the first season of the Civic Repertory Theater was the nature of the letters I received from patrons. "I have become what I did not expect ever again to be, a playgoer," is a typical expression in these letters. "You have brought the theater back to us who had abandoned it, or that had abandoned us."

THE idea of a repertory theater was born in my breast when I occupied the so-called "hen roost" in the Sarah Bernhardt Theater in Paris. I saw that great genius in all her plays for the equivalent of a quarter of a dollar from a seat in the gallery. The idea lived throughout my stage experience and took firmer hold upon my imagination with the productions of "The Master Builder" and "John Gabriel Borkman" two years ago. It was an incident that occurred while I was playing in the former piece that changed my wish into a fixed determination.

A girl came to the theater and asked for the cheapest seat to be had. When she asked the price she said, "Then I can't see it, for I haven't that much money."

That incident was the capsheaf of circumstances which had pyramided to my determination to bring into existence in New York a Repertory Theater. I had no money, but I went with my plan to persons who had—to Mr. Otto Kahn, Mr. Ivan Dahl, Mr. A. C. Lachman of Chicago, and several others who preferred that their names should not be used.

"I CANNOT promise that you will profit from your investment," I told these gentlemen. "I cannot even tell you when the money will be returned. But if you believe enough in the idea I am sure we will be able to refund what you have lent us." They did believe in the idea, and we were able to start with a fund of $60,000. Some of the money had to be paid for rental, some for material for scenery and costumes. The money paid by each subscriber, $15, which assured them the best seats for a season, we put in the bank. From the very beginning our patronage was good. Now we are paying as we go. We owe nothing save to the friends who helped us start by their loans.

We have drawn our audiences from all parts of the city. Boxes have been occupied by persons who came in their limousines. To our matinees have come tired teachers who filled the gallery after their labors of the week and found real recreation. But most pleasing of all to me is the reflection that the Civic Repertory Theater has been a magnet to those persons who live simply on moderate incomes, who lead clean, thoughtful lives and who love what is fine. And this is the stratum of society from which the true intelligentsia comes—the people who demand good things on the stage, good drama, thoughtful drama with an infusion of ideas and beauty.

The present American tour of "The Beggars Opera", by the Loldon company commemorates the 200th anniversary of the London production in 1728. The play ran several years, has been revived at intervals and for the past six years has been continuously before the public either in London or on tour. Its appearance under Civic Music League auspices being for members only, a return engagement has been arranged for two evenings and one matinee at the Odean Feb. 10 and 11.

The principal number on the program of the Liederkranz concert, which will be given Wednesday, Nov. 16, at the Alhambra Grotto, will be the singing of the 'Song of Destiny" by Brahms. The mixed chorus of 110 voices, under the direction of Hugo Anschuetz, will also render excerpts from oratorios. The soloist of the evening will be the Chicago 'cellist, Lillian Rehberg. This will be her first appearance in St. Louis. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Frank A. Habig, who will also accompany the choral numbers.

Charles Galloway, director of the Apollo Club, announces that the program for the jubilee concert of the Apollo Club, to be held on Tuesday evening, Nov. 22, at the Odeon, is being rounded out in fine style. The concert represents the one hundredth the club has conducted in St. Louis during the 34 years of its existence.

play, and they have lost nothing of their comedy situations in the screen version.

HOW can a typical young American best achieve great success in motion pictures? Should he portray characters identical or similar to his real self? Should he become what is known in the profession as "a character actor"? Or should he vary his roles to include both of these kinds of characterizations?

These general questions apply specifically to Richard Dix. He says he doesn't know. His own career presents a paradoxical answer.

Advertised, exploited and press agented as "a typical American youth," Dix has built up his following and his box-office prestige until he is one of the most popular male stars. He has played in a total of 34 pictures since he left the boards of the Morosco Stock Company in Los Angeles. In 31 of them he played "typical young Americans," and in so doing has developed his popularity steadily.

What Dix considers his best pictures, however, are "The Christian," in which he played a monk, and "The Vanishing American," in which he enacted the role of a Navajo Indian. In both cases, his departure from the standard characterization brought him a flood of enthusiastic fan letters and better critical reviews.

"SO, you see, I don't know," Dix said recently in discussing his vehicles. "Had I started 'character roles' and played nothing else, I doubt that my pictures would have been as successful at the box-office as they are now. On the other hand, how am I to judge when in both instances that I have departed from my usual roles, the public response and reception has been far greater?

Dix is now playing in the third character role of his career. In "The Gay Defender," in which he is reunited with Gregory La Cava who directed several of his most successful young American pictures, Dix is playing the role of Joaquin Murietta, a character lifted from early California history. Murietta was a Mexican, born in 1931 on his father's ranch in Sonora. He died in 1853, a youth of 22 years, but into them he has packed the most spectacular, swash-buckling career of banditry on the American continent.

To play this lad who turned bandit to right wrongs done him and his family and his people, Dix had to turn abruptly from his usual characterizations. He grew a mustache, and Spanish sideburns. He laid aside his prosaic sack suits for the sombreroes, the chaps, the suede suits ornately trimmed, the gay trappings of the vaquero. He darkened his makeup. He practiced knife-throwing, and the technique of the bull whip, and improved the celerity of the draw of his six-shooter. For the first time since he played a featured role in Zane Grey's "The Call of the Canyon" several years ago, he reeharsed flying mounts into a Western saddle.

DIX realizes that his public may find it rather startling to see him as a Mexican, but he says he is not afraid of his reception. His strikingly different roles in "The Christian" and "The Vanishing American" convince him that he has nothing to fear in stepping out of his usual character.

"IT'S a policy matter that goes back to the time when the villain in almost every Western picture was a Mexican," says Dix. "This long series of 'heavies' of the same nationality palled eventually on the public, but before the producers stopped making villains out of every screen Mexican, the Mexican Government itself had something to say, and finally a few films were barred in Mexico because of Mexican villains. Mexico pointed out, and justly, that in the eyes of the world Mexico would be a land peopled exclusively with villainous characters, if such characterizations were not eliminated.

"And so the producers stopped their short-sighted policy, and laid the motivating crimes of the films at other doors. And now in 'The Gay Defender' we are doing an about face, we're making a hero out of a Mexican, and a villain out of an American."

That ought to insure a first-run and a long booking in Mexico City.

The program will present as its major orchestral work Cesar Franck's Symphony in D minor, a work ever grateful to symphony audiences. On the program Mr. Oberhoffer will present to St. Louis for the first time "Assisi," a symphonic legend by Herman Hans Wetzler, an American composer and conductor now living in Germany. "Assisi," which won the $1000 prize offered in 1925 by the North Shore Festival Association at Chicago for the best orchestral work by an American, is a musical transcription of the legend of St. Francis of Assisi, poet and mystic, as well as founder of the Franciscan order, who combined with his simple faith a conception of the brotherhood of man which helped make over the world of the Middle Ages

In detail the program will be:

Yiddish Musical Play at Odeon.

A new musical play will be presented at the Odeon this evening by the St. Louis Yiddish Theatrical company headed by Wolf Shumsky and Mary Caralowa. The "Odessa Vagabond" is the name of the play. It tells the story of Volodka, a longshoreman of an Odessa port situated near the Black Sea. Volodka is the master mind of the underworld in the great sea town. A Russian Robin Hood, as it were. Brutal to oppressors, yet kind and charitable to the poor and lowly, Volodka rules the destinies of his black empire where his word is law and his command supreme. The revolution of 1917 finds Volodka in the ranks of the Red Army, a man reborn and with a new vision. He is made commander of the brutal Tcheka and there meets his death at the hands of an assassin. Mr. Shumsky, who will play the principal role of the performance, will be supported by Mary Caralowa, Harry Miller, Rosetta Yeger, Fannie Shumsky, B. Wogshoul, Joseph Wernstock, Fishel Kanapof, Dave Komus, and a special chorus and orchestra.

Children's Theatre.

The Toy Theatre, aside from being the home of the adult players known as the Toy Theatre Players, will also be the home of the Children's Theatre. This junior dramatic company will be well organized in St. Louis within a short time. The first production to be given by the children will be "Snow-white and the Seven Dwarfs," a dramatization of the fairy story. Miss Elizabeth Morse is at the head of this movement.

Behind the Screens

districts of Manhattan and Brooklyn. He has provided free shows for Fifth avenue, the financial center at Wall Street, and for the baseball fans and residents of various other districts in New York from the Battery to the Bronx.

Although in his first two weeks in New York, Lloyd had all of the breaks against him, with rain and poor lighting conditions, in the past few weeks he has been favored with ideal weather conditions and he has made excellent progress on his new picture.

Fanny Hurst started much talk when she made the remark that it was impossible for two persons to live an ideal married life under the same roof and at the same time engage themselves in the same line of endeavor.

Dolores Del Rio and the dashing Senor Jaime Martinez Del Rio have thrown the writer's theories to the four winds and have proven that a man and wife can be happy live together in the same house, and be active in the same profession.

While Miss Del Rio has been soaring to movie heights, Senor Del Rio has not remained idle. He has not nor will he ever reach that stage when he is referred to as "Mr. Dolores Del Rio."

The Senor has written three stories for the screen during the past year. All three have been purchased, the third having been bought by producer Edwin Carewe for $10,000. Carewe plans to star Miss Del Rio in the original story after she concludes her work in "Ramona," now being made.

Besides writing the three screen stories, Senor Del Rio has collaborated in the writing of a stage play which is to be given a Broadway opening this season. And that is not all! The dashing young Don has been offered a leading role in a motion picture by Wallace Fox, the director. And he has almost come to the point of signing the dotted line.

The Del Rios have been in Hollywood a brief two years. In that short space of time, Miss Del Rio has climbed from the bottom of the ladder of film fame, to the topmost rung and Senor Del Rio now enjoys a personal position in the movie industry well to be envied by many.

"The Secret Hour" has been chosen as the final title for Pola Negri's most recent starring vehicle. This is the third title the picture has had. "Sun Kissed" was the first, but when it was decided to change this name, "Beggars of Love" was selected in its place. This was later found to be unavailable and "The Secret Hour" was finally adopted. Jean Hersholt and Kenneth Thompson are featured in the supporting cast.

Back from New York, where he took a print of "Sorrell and Son," his first United Artists picture, to show before executives and film salesmen, Herbert Brenon has returned to Hollywood to supervise the final cutting, editing and titling of the feature before launching a new production.

Brenon reported unbounded enthusiasm over the screen version of the story of father and son devotion which, as a novel, has gone through scores of editions in this country and abroad. Two endings have been made for "Sorrell and Son"—one closely following the book, and the other "happier"—and exhibitors are to have their choice. First release of "Sorrell and Son" has been tentatively set for January.

H. B. Warner, Anna Q. Nilsson, Alice Joyce, Nils Asther, Carmel Myers, Norman Trevor, Louis Wolheim, Mary Nolan, Mickey McBan, Lionel Belmore, Paul McAllister and Betsy Ann Hisle play the principal roles in the all-star cast. Brenon will transfer his company to the Metro-Goldwin-Mayer lot within the next few weeks and make "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," with Lon Chaney in the featured role.

One of the strangest movie actors to visit Los Angeles in many moons, none other than a huge, hairy legged tarantula, arrived via airplane from Tucson, Ariz. The spidery native of Arizona was recruited from his desert haunts to play an important role in "Woman Wise," a picture now being filmed at the Fox studios.

Because all local tarantulas began their winter hibernation several weeks ago, it was necessary to import one from Arizona. A hurry call for a large, active specimen was telegraphed to Tucson. In less than an hour one was caught and boxed for shipment. Frank Clark, Los Angeles aviator, who happened to be leaving Tucson for Los Angeles, consented to deliver the insect to the Fox studios.

Albert Ray, director of the picture, being unfamiliar with the habits of tarantulas, relegated the task of directing Mr. Tarantula to Duke Kahanamoku, famous Hawaiian swimmer, who claims to be more or less of an authority on the subject of tarantulas. June Collyer, featured player in "Woman Wise" feels perfectly safe with the spider as long as Duke is on the job, but declines to work alone with the insect actor.

"THE CRADLE SONG" COMES TO TOWN AT OLD TIME PRICES

Bradford Hatton, who made his first appearance of this season last week, will take the part of Hilary's rival in love. The piece consists of a prologue and three acts.

THE Shubert-Rialto is dark this week, but next Sunday night William Hodge comes for his annual visit. He will bring along his new comedy-mystery drama which he has been playing for some weeks under the name of "The Man at Home," but which will have its title changed, on its arrival here, to "Straight Thru the Door."

THE Marx Brothers in "The Cocoanuts," which scored a hit when presented here last year, return to the American Theater for a single week beginning next Sunday night. The music and lyrics of "The Cocoanuts" are by Irving Berlin and the book by George S. Kaufman. Prominent in the cast supporting the Marx Brothers again this season are Olga Elsler, Roy Strom, the Lovey Sister, Antonio and Catherine Cansins, Philip Mann, Nell Jewel, Margaret Dumont, Edward Metcalfe, the Porto Rican String Orchestra, and a large and efficient chorus.

To Dedicate Masonic Temple.

The recently completed temple for America Lodge, A. F. and A. M., at 4386 Bates street, will be dedicated by officers of the Grand Lodge of Missouri Tuesday evening. Circuit Judge Ittner, recently elected grand master, will preside. The dedicatory ceremonies will be open to Master Masons only.

Second Thoughts On First Nights

"The Shannons of Broadway," "The Mikado" and "Manhattan Mary" and would assure you that you can have a good time also at "The Trial of Mary Dugan," "The Chauve-Souris," "Interference," "The Road to Rome" and "The Shrew" as played in modern dress.

THOSE of us who go nightly to the theater sometimes find so much of truth and beauty and high excitement there that the more ordinary trash and tinsel seems the shoddier by contrast. We forget what a glittering and miraculous bazar all Broadway can seem to the uncritical pilgrims from such outlying places as never see a play at all from one year's end to the other.

Such a wondering pilgrim has just gone home all stocked up with memories and plans for his home town. This was Mr. Masfas of Addis-Ababa, an Ethiopian gentleman sent here as part of the commission that crossed the seas to persuade our Government to station a consul in Abyssinia. As you might have guessed, there is, it seems, a young Ethiopian movement there and Brother Masfas is a leader in it. Specifically, he is the head of the Committee of Loving Service, which sounds as though it might be a kind of Abyssinian Y. M. C. A. But he himself would be anxious to have you know that it has nothing whatever to do with the church.

While in our midst, Mr. Masfas went a good deal to the theater, rejoicing in "Porgy," where he went back stage to embrace the negro cast of that superb production. And he reveled in "The Mikado." There he visited the dressing rooms and watched with delight while Barclary donned the wig, the eyebrows and the fine raiment of the most humane Mikado. Mr. Masfas took notes during these proceedings for it is part of his plan to [illegible] theater in Addis Ababa.

At present, when the [illegible] Ethiopians feel the dramatic pulse astir within them, they [illegible] to hire the only hall in the [illegible] from a Frenchman who asks [illegible] a night for the use of it. And [illegible] a night is big money in Addis Ababa. On his way home, Masfas will stop off in Paris to buy some masks for his dramatic club because his players will be content with nothing less than white faces for their heroes.

IT IS quite possible that when the first theater is opened in Abyssinia, the scenery will be painted by our own C. Leroy Partridge, for he played secretary when Mr. Masfas went to "Porgy and "The Mikado' and now he himself has sailed for Africa with his wife, Caroline Singer. Miss Singer is the artist who first became known in the world through her fine drawings he did for "The Star and Stripes' during the war. She is as mobile as a mendicant friar of the thirteenth century and has just rested up from those wanderings through China which resulted in the lovely "Turn to the Left" for which he painted the scenery while Miss Singer did the text.

A week ago today dawn they sailed in some freighter from a Brooklyn dock, bound for the Canary Islands and sharing the trip with a party heading back to some inland mission as well as with several cages of rabbits and guinea pigs, dressed to the Rockefeller Institute unit in Nigeria. The Masfas plan a year or so of voyaging along the coasts of Africa and then to reach Addis Ababa about a year from now, just in time to design the first decor for the Great Ethiopian play. Mr. Masfas, by the way, pronounces Ababa with the accent on the first syllable. It was a great surprise to me.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR
Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, for only 75 cents at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.
While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

A Test Every Man Past 40 Should Make
Medical authorities agree that 65% of all men past middle age (many much younger) are afflicted with a disorder of the prostate gland. Aches in feet, legs and back, frequent nightly risings, sciatic pains are some of the signs—and now a well-known American scientist has written a remarkably interesting Free Book that tells of other symptoms and just what they mean. No longer should a man approaching or past the prime of life be content to regard these pains and conditions as inevitable signs of approaching age. Already more than 40,000 men have used the amazing method described in this book to restore their health and vigor—and to restore the prostate gland to its proper functioning. Send immediately for this book. If you will mail your request to The Electro Thermal Company, 210-C Macy Bldg., Steubenville, Ohio—the concern that is distributing this book for the author—it will be sent to you absolutely free, without obligation. Simply send name and address. But don't delay for the edition of this book is limited.

FLOATING GAMBLING HOUSE

Yacht Would Cruise Mediterranean With Tourists.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—A floating gambling house, not unlike the gambling barges once anchored in the Gulf of Mexico off the mouth of the Mississippi, may next season make its appearance on a yacht moored off the French Riviera.

If a local shipbuilding company which is sponsoring the plan gets the approval of the French Government, a yacht will be fitted with gaming paraphernalia as complete as that of the Monte Carlo casino with which it intends to vie in attempting to attract tourist trade. The craft large enough to accommodate 300 passengers in great comfort, will call at the principal ports along the Mediterranean coast permitting its guests to combine sightseeing with gambling.

Prices of accommodations will be less than first-class hotel charges, the promoters expecting to make the difference up at the gaming tables, which will operate day and night.

PART TEN.

PLANS $1,250,000 APARTMENT ON WEST PINE BLVD.

WILL BE TALLEST BUILDING ON STREET

To Be Constructed on Site of the Sam Lazarus Home, Which Will Be Razed.

By Berry Moore.

A new skyline will be established for West Pine boulevard with the erection of a 16-story apartment building, together with a 100-car garage, projected for the northside of the street east of Taylor avenue by the Herbert M. Edmunds Building Co. The project was announced yesterday by Henry R. Weisels, Inc. Sixteen stories is the height limit for this part of West Pine under the new zoning ordinance, without a special building permit.

As a site for the proposed building Edmunds has purchased through Weisels, the residence of the late Sam Lazarus at 4481 West Pine, with a lot 110x213 feet. The residence, a 14-room structure, is to be razed within the next two or three weeks, and construction of the proposed building is to be launched forthwith.

Plans are being drawn for a reinforced fireproof brick and stone building of 150 units, of one, two, three, four and five rooms, with one and two baths. These will comprise large living room, dinettes, kitchenettes and extra bed rooms. Bath will be equipped with both shower and tub.

Commissary in Basement.

Edmunds has made a study of the larger apartment buildings in New York and the West Pine boulevard project will embrace the latest in buildings of this character, introducing a number of features which will be innovations in St. Louis.

Ornamental individual porches with iron grill leading from living rooms through French doors are included in the plans.

A complete commissary department for the convenience of tenants will be in the basement. Inner-door beds, concealed breakfast table, and ironing board, electric stoves, electric refrigeration, heaters and washing machines will be included in the equipment.

There will be a large receiving room on the first floor for parcels, which will be delivered to the tenants by electric dumbwaiters direct to the apartment. Mail chutes, garbage incinerators and laundry tubs also will be installed.

Playground on Roof.

Families with children will be welcomed and a novel feature will be the installation on the roof of a playground, protected by high fences, and under the supervision of competent nurses. Sand piles, rides, gymnasium paraphernalia and other apparatus is contemplated.

The garage will be maintained exclusively for the use of the tenants of the apartments. Management of the building will be under Henry R. Weisels, Inc.

Other Apartment Plans.

Speculative purchases on West Pine have been a feature of the real estate market recently.

The new apartment is noteworthy as the third large apartment building project disclosed within the last two weeks. The other two were the Versailles, which is to rise ten stories at the southwest corner of Skinker road and Rosebury avenue, in DeMun Park, and a 48-family apartment to be erected on the south side of Waterman avenue, east of Skinker road.

Construction of the proposed 2½-story hotel on the northwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Pine street, announced by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, is to go forward as soon as details of the building plans have been perfected. This project, including the site, involves a cost of $3,500,000.

PERMITS REQUIRED TO REBUILD HOUSES

Building Commissioner Christopher yesterday asked police to notify all persons reconstructing buildings in the devastated tornado area that they must have building permits before going ahead with the work.

A permit is required for repairs of old buildings as well as construction of new ones. Property owners must submit their plans for alterations or repairs to Commissioner Christopher's office.

WOOLWORTH LEASES BUILDING ON UNION

Two-Story Structure Now Being Erected Taken for Twenty Years.

F. W. Woolworth & Co. have acquired a 20-year lease of a two-story building being erected on the east side of Union buolevard, just north of St. Louis avenue. The site adjoins that of the Mound City Trust Company's building, occupying the corner. The new building is being erected by Harry and Eugene Freund at a cost of $6000.

Alex Berger Buys Home.

Alex Berger, investment banker, has purchased 14 Aberdeen avenue, a two-and-one-half story brick colonial hose, with 10 rooms, three baths and two-car garage. The property belonged to the late W. N. Fisher.

14-STORY APARTMENT FOR LINDELL'S CHANGING SKYLINE

It is the 14-story Daniel Boone Apartment, at No. 3733, adjoining the Coronado Hotel on the west.

Preston J. Bradshaw, who built the hotel, named it for Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, the Spanish explorer, who penetrated Mexico and New Mexico in the sixteenth century. Dr. Ralph E. Niedringhaus, who erected the apartment on the site of his old home, named it for the great American pioneer. Boone, who came from Virginia and Kentucky to Missouri and spent his declining years as a man of authority in what is now St. Charles County.

Meets Commission's Hopes.

The new apartment is typical of the sort of structures which the City Plan Commission thinks should be placed along Lindell boulevard to preserve the street's character. If construction continues along this line, Lindell will become comparable to Park avenue, New York, and Michigan boulevard, Chicago.

Total investment in site and structure is given by Dr. Niedringhaus as more than $1,000,000. The facade is unlike the common style for apartment fronts in St. Louis. Its design is Flemish, marked by tile roofs, steep gables and bright colors of the frames and sash, blending with the light brick walls. Terra cotta trim is employed. There is a grass terrace between the sidewalk and front entrance. Walnut wainscotings are used in the reception lobby.

Design of Units.

"Single efficiency" apartments, which rent for $70 and more per month, consist of living room, dining room, kitchenette, dressing closet and bath. "Double efficiency" suites, renting for $90 and more per month, have living room, kitchenette, dining room, bedroom, dressing closet and bath. All have closet facilities. Individual, mechanical refrigerators and gas and electric service are furnished to tenants. There are four-burner gas stoves and built-in cabinets in the kitchenettes. Showers are included in the bathrooms. All of the 124 apartments and corridors are carpeted.

There is a garage for tenants in the basement, with a rear entrance from Westminster place, and served by the two high-speed elevators.

Title to the place is held by the Frances-Ralph Realty Co., headed by Dr. Niedringhaus. Pleitsch & Price were the architects. A majority of the apartments have been leased. The building is under the management of M. H. Rodemyer & Co.

Five Sales by Federer Company.

The Federer Realty Co. reports the following sales for the week: For Dr. C. A. Meredith one of the new single flats, 6931 Vermont avenue, of four and four rooms, to Fred W. Randazzo; for Fred Heltz a new frame bungalow, 5023 Leona street, to Herman B. Klosterman, and a new brick bungalow in Woodland Park for John P. Fendler to Charles J. Herman. The Federer Realty Co. also reports a very active week in the sale of vacant property.

Jones, salesmanager, reports the following sales for the week: Double flat, 109-93 South Taylor, Barney Fite to Joe Keleman; double flat, 5871-73 Maffitt, Union Realty and Construction Co., to David Bittner; cottage, 5720 Kennerly avenue, William F. Sill to James Venezia; bungalow, 2637 Edgar, B. L. Berry to Sanford C. Wise; residence, 4645 Newberry terrace, Charlotte Trambers to Tbe Lerrter; residence, 1424 Clara, William J. Flatley to E. N. McLemore; two vacant lots in Pennsylvania Park No. 3, Louis C. Scatizzi to A. F. Lerner.

HOTEL AT OLIVE AND 17TH STREETS SOLD

The four-story hotel building, with lot 48x70 feet, at the southeast corner of Olive and Seventeenth streets, has been purchased by Charles D. Lemon. John L. McDowall, real estate agent, made the sale on behalf of the heirs of Nannie M. Wright.

The reported consideration was $50,000, including the damages incident to the widening of Olive street. The purchase was made as a speculation, with no building plans.

McDowall also announced the sale of 4237 Olive street, a 10-room house with lot 42x150 from Anita B. Beardslee to George F. Carraher for $10,000. Carraher intends to improve the rear portion of this lot with a building for sheet metal purposes.

GLOSEMEYER FLOUR CO. PLANS WAREHOUSE ON VANDEVENTER

The Glosemeyer Flour Co., which has offices at 309 Merchants Exchange and a warehouse at 1701 Austin street, has now begun the erection of a three-story and basement warehouse building. The site is on the tracks of Vandeventer terminal, on the west side of Vandeventer avenue, directly north of Market street.

The building will be a fireproof structure of reinforced concrete, with exterior walls of brick and terra cotta. It will occupy the entire lot, which is 50 feet by 140 feet. The building will be used for the storage of flour in sacks. Offices will be on the second floor.

The building is being financed by William Hauk & Co., erected by the Huger & Buecker Construction Co. from plans prepared by Otto J. Krieg, architect, who is supervising the work.

Perou; 4560 Korte avenue, a new six-room bungalow to Paulina Connors for H. M. Straub; 5758 Kennerly avenue, five-room cottage to Mary S. Robinson for William Mollison; a lot 34 by 186 feet, Marcus and Anderson avenues, to William J. Munschrath for H. Kissel's Sons; two lots, 25 by 125 feet each, in the 4400 block of Richard Place to Catherine Kelly.

Sales by J. W. Gibson Realty Co.

The John W. Gibson Realty Co. reports having sold a lot on the south side of Clayton avenue, fronting 75 feet on the south side of Clayton avenue, by a depth of 190 feet, for Fred Daehnert, a client of this office, to the North Pointe Realty Co., which purchased contemplating building a house on same in the near future. Five-Room Spanish Bungalow of Unusual Qualities

Stevens & Moellenhoff, Architects.

THE features of a one-story and a two-story house are combined in this Spanish home.

It is usually accepted that a one-story home is not as well ventilated and lighted as a two-story home. But this home is an exception to the rule. Three rooms in the house have windows on two sides and two rooms have windows on three sides. This is as well ventilated and lighted as is possible to ventilate and light any two-story building.

All rooms being on one floor afford a convenience that cannot be hoped for in a two-story home.

The arrangement of bedrooms and bath is arranged so that side of the house is entirely apart from the remainder of the house; making it strictly private; which is a quality one seldom finds in a one-story home.

The dressing room between the master bedroom and bathroom with a door to the bath, afford the feature of a private bath.

The breakfast room in the kitchen is snugly tucked away in an otherwise useless corner. This little nook is so convenient to the kitchen and well lighted, that it will be a much used portion of the household.

The closets are arranged so that no room in the house is cut up by them, and yet there is no waste space in the building.

The patio makes such an arrangement possible. The patio itself is very useful for lounging, playing bridge or for children to play in on a warm summer afternoon or evening. The large Spanish gates in the rear may be left open, affording a view to the rear from the reception hall, or closed and giving privacy.

As for the exterior, its walls are faced with a buff brick; giving the desired Spanish effect along with substancy. The roof is of a light variegated tile. The arch on the side adds an artistic touch to the exterior appearance.

NAVY ALLOWED BUDGET INCREASE OF $40,000,000

ENLISTED PERSONNEL TO REMAIN 83,250

$7,000,000 Granted for Modernizing Battleships Nevada and Oklahoma Now Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Naval appropriation estimates approved by the administration and understood to carry an increase of about $40,000,000 over last year's appropriation of $325,000,000 have been returned to the Navy Department for study by the various bureaus.

The increase in appropriations will be devoted almost entirely to construction already under way. Under this heading falls the work on the eight light cruisers already authorized by Congress and the modernizing of the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada. For the latter work about $7,000,000 will be included, it is understood, in addition to the $6,575,000 included in the naval deficiency bill.

Estimates for the naval air service, although larger than in the last appropriation bill, are said to have been greatly reduced from the figure requested by the bureau of naval aeronautics.

The navy department request that the enlisted personnel of the navy be raised to 86,000, stating that this force would be the minimum required to man the navy properly next year, was not allowed, it was said. The present enlisted strength is 83,250 men.

The estimates were assailed as too low by Representative Britten of Illinois. He said that while he personally had not examined the naval recommendations, he regarded the navy's requests for new ships as inadequate. He reiterated he would introduce a bill calling for construction of 30 new cruisers of 10,000 tons displacement over a five-year period, and added that he also would urge construction of five airplane carriers of the same tonnage.

"Failure of the President's Geneva conference to bring about agreement in naval construction forces on the incoming Congress another important duty—to provide adequate protection for American commerce," Britten said.

Testimony given to the House Naval Committee last season was to the effect that a 10,000-ton cruiser would cost about $11,000,000, exclusive of armor and armament, and that an airplane carrier of the same size would approximate that figure, exclusive of its equipment of airplanes.

Under recommendations of the general board of the navy, it is understood the navy department is about to present to the budget bureau a five-year cruiser construction program calling for the laying down of three or four ships annually.

Acceptance of this program by the budget bureau, navy officials say, is dependent upon the naval policy which the administration will be willing to back in view of last session's agitation in Congress for a larger cruiser strength and in view of the failure of the Geneva naval limitation conference.

CLINICAL SURGICAL SOCIETY ENDS TWO-DAY CONVENTION

Three St. Louis surgeons gave clinical demonstrations Friday and Saturday before the Clinical Surgical Society, an organization of 40 members, which closed a two-day convention here last night. The surgeons were Dr. Evarts A. Graham, Dr. Malvern B. Clopton and Dr. Willard Bartlett.

The clinic Friday was at Barnes Hospital. The surgeons met yesterday at Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. They also visited the "Shriners'" Hospital for Children to take note of surgical therapy applied to the correction of deformity, particularly certain operations innovated at the hospital.

The Clinical Surgical Society was founded in 1903. It makes a practice of meeting in centers where first-grade surgical clinics are being operated. It numbers in its ranks some of the foremost surgeons of the country. Among the surgeons meeting here were Dr. T. W. Crile of Cleveland, Drs. Charles and William Mayo of Rochester Minn., Dr. Harvey Cushing of Boston, Dr. Eugene F. Poole of New York, Dr. Charles H. Frazier of Philadelphia, Dr. Ernest Rixford of San Francisco, Dr. J. M. T. Finney of Johns Hopkins University and Dr. Arthur Bevan of Chicago.

HOUSE COMMITTEE WILL CONSIDER NUISANCE TAXES

Treasury Favors Retention of Automobile and Other Levies Opposed by Many Congressmen.

WITNESSES ASK FOR CHANGES

Flood of Recommendations as to Method of Making $225,000,000 Cut in Taxes.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—With a variety of tax proposals already before it, and many more in the offing, the House Ways and Means Committee adjourned tonight for the week-end with its tax revision hearings a little more than half complete.

Since the hearings opened Monday morning, the committee has placed in its record the Treasury recommendation to limit the reduction to $225,000,000, numerous appeals from the business world for a cut in the tax rate on corporation incomes, and a flood of other recommendations. These include the proposals of legal, banking and business professions, for revision in administrative features of the present revenue law, and argument from many witnesses for taking such steps as would expedite the work of the board of tax appeals, now about 16,000 cases behind.

R. C. Fulbright, Houston, Tex., representing the Deepwater Refineries, an organization operating industries along the Houston ship channel, joined with C. C. Hogan, Los Angeles, representing the Security Trust & Savings Bank of that city, in urging clarification of the definition between trusts and associations. They contended that under a Supreme Court decision in 1924 the treasury had reclassified certain organizations heretofore considered as trusts as associations, resulting in a duplication of tax payments.

With the conclusion of this testimony the committee cleared the way to take up Monday the excise and miscellaneous taxes, including the sales tax on automobiles. These taxes, frequently referred to as nuisance levies, are one of the most controversial factors entering into the present tax reduction hearings.

The Treasury urges retention of these taxes, but a number of members of Congress, including both Democrats and Republicans, favor their repeal.

Of this group of levies the sales tax on automobiles has stood out as the most controverted of all. While one group argued that the tax is just in view of large Federal appropriations given states to aid in highway construction, the other side holds that the automobile for many people has become a necessity which should not be taxed by the Federal Government.

BUSSES OPERATING IN CITIES SUBJECT TO CITY CONTROL

Public Service Commission Rules New Law Doesn't Give It Authority Over Them.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—Motor bus companies operated wholly or chiefly within a Missouri city are exempt from provisions of the new State motor bus regulatory law and are not under control of the State Public Service Commission as to rates, service and routes, the commission ruled in an order issued today in a bus rate case from Springfield, Mo. The commission does not state in the order where the authority over such companies lies, but it apparently rests with the cities in which they operate.

Under this ruling the city of St. Louis would have exclusive control over the rates, service and routes of the People's Motor Bus Co. and any other companies having the major portion of their routes within the city.

The order does not disturb a previous ruling of the commission that the cities have no power over the rates, service and operating practices of bus companies merely having their terminal or a minor part of their routes within the cities. In that ruling the commission overruled a contention of the City of St. Louis that it had sole jurisdiction over that part of all bus lines within the city.

CONSTABLE IS FOUND DEAD

The body of Pearl A. Austin, Deputy Constable in Justice of the Peace Moone's Court, 7 North Sixth street, was found on a sidewalk in the 4200 block on Finney avenue last night by a patrolman walking his beat, police reported. He owned property in the neighborhood. Apparently he had died of natural causes a short time before his body was found. He was identified at City Hospital by papers in his pockets.

Austin was 43 years old and lived at 2805 Olive street. His widow and one daughter survive.

"Bobby" Kelly Wandered Eight Blocks; Returned to Police Station.

Mrs. Corinne Briscol, 4068 De Tonty street, heard a child's moan of distress Friday afternoon and went to her front porch to investigate. She found a very tired little boy, about 2 years old, on the steps. The child announced, in tearful accents, that he was "Bobby" Kelly and wanted to go home.

Mrs. Briscol gave Bobby some jelly bread and notified the Magnolia Police Station, where Bobby's mother, Mrs. H. H. Kelly, reported the child's disappearance a few minutes later. The child had wandered from 4041 Magnolia place a distance of eight blocks.

NEGRO HELD AFTER MURDER OF CHINESE

The murder of Jeu Sue, 50 years old, a Chinese laundryman at 3306 Laclede avenue, who was beaten to death with a shovel in his laundry yesterday afternoon, was followed shortly by the arrest of a Negro, George Fleming, 27 years old, of Montrose and Market streets.

Another Negro, William Oliver, of 3443 Laclede avenue, told police he saw Fleming run from Jeu Sue's laundry as he went in. Oliver says Fleming told him: "I had a fight with the Chinaman but he isn't hurt." Oliver saw Jeu Sue lying on the floor and ran after Fleming. He caught and held Fleming until police came.

A quantity of change was found in Fleming's pockets. The cash register in the laundry was empty. Fleming had worked for Jeu Sue yesterday morning washing windows at the laundry. He denies the murder, saying that another Negro killed Jeu Sue and ran out the back door. Police reported they found the back door bolted from the inside.

QUAIL HUNTING SEASON TO OPEN THURSDAY

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 5.—The open season for hunting quail begins in Missouri next Thursday. Reports received by the State Game and Fish Department from game wardens over the State indicate a plentiful supply of birds.

The season closes Dec. 31. The law limits hunters to 10 a day.

Quail have been imported by the department from Mexico during the last two years and the birds placed in all sections of the State for experimental purposes. The imported birds were marked with leg bands and the department has requested that hunters who kill any of these birds send the bands to the department at Jefferson City, with data as to where the birds were killed, to complete the records on the experimental importations.

In connection with the approach of the quail season, the department pointed out that the Supreme Court upheld a State law permitting game wardens to make an inspection of the game bags of hunters without a search warrant. A hunter is subject to prosecution for a misdemeanor if he fails voluntarily to permit a game warden to make an inspection.

The wild turkey season in Missouri begins Dec. 1 and ends Dec. 31. The bag limit is one a day, with a season limit of four.

The season on ducks and geese, which began Sept. 15, extends to April 30. However, the Federal law closes the season on ducks Dec. 31. The bag limit of ducks and geese is 15 a day.

The season on doves began Sept. 1 and closes Dec. 15. The limit is 10 a day.

There is no open season in Missouri on pheasants, ruffed grouse and prairie chickens. Killing of deer is prohobited until 1930.

WALTON LEAGUE PLANS RECREATION PROGRAM

Membership Campaign Under Way to Provide Funds for Expanded Activities.

Missouri members of the Izaak Walton League are engaged in an active membership campaign among hunters, fishermen and others interested in the conservation of the natural resources of the country, and in game and fish. An expansion of activities to wield a greater influence in accomplishing the purpose of the league has been planned.

In a message to the St. Louis Chapter, Jacob M. Dickinson, former Secretary of War, and national president of the league, said:

"We need more outdoor recreation, more playing, more fresh air and ruddy cheeks, and less synthetic gin and pool hall complexions. If the American character, with its basis of sturdy health of mind and body, is to be perpetuated. The Walton League must leave nothing undone toward this end."

In an outline of the plans of the league, the St. Louis president, John A. Love, said:

"The people of this community are realizing that he league is representative of a great phase of American life—outdoor recreation—in all its branches, and the present program of the league for a national conservation and recreational survey, and for an expansion of activities and membership throughout America, is in keeping with the demands created by the rapidly increasing use to which the outdoors is being put by the public."

The annual membership dues are $3, including subscription to "Outdoor America," a magazine devoted to outdoor life. The headquarters of the St. Louis Chapter, where memberships are received, is 400 Pine street.

NEGRO FOUND ELECTROCUTED

While standing in several inches of water and repairing a light connection, George Crawford, 30 years old, a Negro, was electrocuted in the basement of the Union Ice Cream Co., plant, 4200 W North Market street, Friday afternoon. Crawford, who resided at 3033 Thomas street, was found by other employes at 4:30 o'clock, lying on the floor. In one hand he held an extension cord and nearby was found a broken light.

This gigantic cake weighing 1000 pounds was baked for the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society and sold for the benefit of that institution. On account of its size it required continuous work of four people for nearly one hour and a half to cut it into slices for distribution.

A towering cake, measuring six feet in height, was baked by Cleve Carney, master baker of the Calumet Baking Powder Company, in honor of the 41st anniversary of the Philip Leibsohn & Company's Fair Store of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

This immense mound of deliciousness, was baked by Calumet Master Bakers. You can imagine the size of this cake when you realize that it required 196 lbs. flour, and six days to make and decorate.

SALESMEN WITH CAR

A large manufacturer is starting to market nationally through branch offices a good product which is in a line of specialties known by the owner for over ten years, each with envelope, steel engraved, colored panelled and bordered. Sells for $1, costs 50c. Nothing ever sold begins to compare with the sale of Christmas box assortments. Write immediately for particulars and samples. Waltham Art Publishers, 7 Water st. Money Makers

Following is the amount of cash commissions we paid to five leading salesmen for October:

R. McM.	$2189.00
G. M.	1918.00
B. S.	1620.00
J. L.	1161.00
J. K.	960.00

Three of these men had no real estate experience before coming with us a few months ago. They followed our instructions and made money.

Our sales last month were more than double the best previous October in 21 years and the indications are that this month will be better.

Never in our history, have we known such a big money opportunity for salesmen and clients as the present. We are now offering adjacent to the huge General Electric Plant which will employ more than 25,000 men and will increase enormously the value of nearby land.

Many of the rich and successful business men of St. Louis started with this Company. If you are a salesman, we can teach you quickly how to make money. It costs you nothing to come in and talk matters over with us. My time is valuable also, but I'll take a chance that an interview we will mean more money for both you and me. Come in.

THREE MEN WHO WILL MAKE SELLING A LIFE JOB

The opportunity is here to make a larger income than the vast majority of men in or out of selling work. But it is only the opportunity. You will have to earn every dollar you get.

The work is on the sales staff of a life insurance organization that has earned an enviable reputation and made a signal success.

It is a permanent job. We don't want quitters or shifters. We do want three men who believe they are entitled to a greater than ordinary success and are willing to work for it. You may never have been a salesman or you may be a salesman looking for a bigger opportunity. If you are a worker and know you possess the qualifications for success, write us telling why you should be one of the three men we are going to select. Address Box P-250, P.-D.

Fate Pounced Upon Louis Fuertes Like a Falcon

"PRAIRIE FALCON AT PYRAMID LAKE"

The Falcon Has Just Captured a Valley Partridge and the Falcon's Mate Is About to Join the Party.

America's Most Noted Painter of Birds Came to His Sudden End Just After He Had Painted Africa's Bird Life on a Child's Drawing Pad.

By ARTHUR STRAWN

TO THE student of bird lore and the skilled ornithologist, the painting shown at the left of a "Prairie Falcon at Pyramid Lake" is a masterful study of a dramatic incident in the bird life of Nevada. But to the personal friends and admirers of its painter, Louis Agassiz Fuertes, regarded as America's foremost portrait painter of birds, this picture has another and more tragic significance. It was the last painting sold by Fuertes before his violent death in a railroad accident in August. And while the check for this painting was in the mails on its way to him, death came upon him at a railroad crossing, with all the swiftness and violence of the falcon he had painted.

This was not the only unusual or ironic coincidence which marked the life of Fuertes. His father, who was dean of the School of Civil Engineering at Cornell University, had always been a great admirer of Louis Agassiz, the famous Swiss-American naturalist, and when the son was born at Ithaca, New York, in 1874, he was named after the great scientist. His baptismal name seemed to exercise more than ordinary influence over the future painter of birds, for early in his youth he showed great interest in the natural sciences, and especially in the study of birds. At the same time he displayed an unusual ability as a painter. The study of birds became a passion with him, equaled only by his desire to paint them accurately and beautifully. In him the rare combination of artist and scientist was realized early in life, and while still a student he was in the habit of spending his leisure hours and vacation periods on long rambles in the fields and woods, sketching and painting birds in their natural dwelling places. His talent was so pronounced that even before he was graduated from Cornell as a Bachelor of Science, in 1897, he had painted the illustrations for two books, "Birding on a Bronco" and "Citizen Bird."

JUST as he had completed his own observations of bird life by careful study in the laboratory, so he improved his ability as an artist by several years of study under Abbot H. Thayer of Boston. The life of an artist, particularly one working in so specialized a field as bird painting, is at best usually marked by many difficulties and a severe economic struggle. But Fuertes was fortunately enabled to avoid these discouragements, and it was possibly because of this fact that he was able to maintain through life an unusually friendly and amiable disposition which endeared him to colleagues and acquaintances, many of whom were his professional rivals. His work had come to the notice of Dr. Elliot Coues of Washington, who was then engaged in preparing his famous work, "Coues' Key to North American Birds." And thus it was that Fuertes was commissioned, immediately upon his graduation from the university, to paint illustrations for the book. The task extended over a period of six years and the book was published in 1903. In the meantime, Fuertes had also been occupied in painting illustrations for the "Report of the New York State Game, Forest and Fish Commission," which contains some of his most beautiful work. The two books appeared almost simultaneously, and Fuertes, then only 30 years old, was immediately recognized as the foremost living painter of birds.

Harvard Expedition Makes Important Finds in Newly Discovered Tombs and Closes Up a Big Gap in History.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

BOSTON, Mass.

FOLLOWING hard on the heels of the discovery of the secret tomb of Queen Hetep-Heres I, wife of King Sneferuw, founder of the Fourth Dynasty of Egyptian Kings, or the Dynasty of the "Pyramid Age," comes a detailed report from Dr. George A. Reisner of another important "find" by the Harvard University—Museum of Fine Arts Expedition. This is the tomb of Queen Meresankh III., granddaughter of Cheops, builder of the Great Pyramid. It is one of the most important archaeological discoveries made in Egypt for some time and outranks in importance, along with the discovery of the secret tomb of Hetep-Heres I, the finding of the tomb of King "Tut," whose place in history was relatively insignificant, though his tomb and its contents were the most gorgeous and spectacular ever found in Egypt.

For, through Dr. Reisner's discovery of this tomb and the one just previously found, a big gap has been closed up in the history of Egypt, of a period of which previously but little has been known—that of the Fourth Dynasty, or Pyramid Age. The Harvard University—Museum of Fine Arts party has been working for some years in the region near Giza—the area of the Great Pyramid, the pyramid of Cephren and that of Mycerinus—which is a vast city of tombs with streets between, deeply buried under the desert sand—a veritable city of the dead. They have uncovered a great system of streets and broad avenues between the mastabas and funerary temples under this sand, windblown for thousands of years.

Through the inscriptions in this tomb of Meresankh III, and that of Hetep-Heres I previously discovered and since thoroughly explored and studied, and through comparisons with inscriptions in other tombs of the area previously opened, Dr. Reisner has been able to build up the chronology of the Fourth Dynasty and has also unearthed some curious facts about the various members of this great royal family, that of Sneferuw, founder of the line, and of Cheops, his son and the first great Pharaoh of Egypt.

Hetep-Heres I was the daughter of Huni, last King of the Third Dynasty, and the Queen of Sneferuw. She and Sneferuw were the parents of Cheops, builder of the first, or Great Pyramid, at Giza. She was buried in an unidentified tomb at Dashur and reburied later by Cheops in the secret tomb at Giza.

Cheops had four Queens and many children. One of the latter, Cephren, built the second pyramid. One of his daughters, Hetep-Heres II, married her brother, Prince Ka-wa-ab, and after his death she married Radedef, and became Queen. Following his death she married Ankh-ha-ef, one of the greatest nobles of that dynasty. Her daughter, Meresankh III, married, according to Dr. Reisner, Mycerinus, her cousin, who built the third pyramid. And the tomb that Dr. Reisner describes in great detail is of this Queen. The rest of the chronology does not particularly concern this story.

The Reisner party found that Queen Hetep-Heres II, daughter of Cheops and mother of Meresankh, was either blonde or red-headed, the first of either type to be recorded among the black-haired people of the Pyramid Age—Egypt's first red-headed Queen. Her life story is still a mystery, but the explicit statements in the inscriptions of the Meresankh tomb show that she was not a foreigner, but native born, though she may have had foreign blood from her mother, whose history is not known, or from some remote ancestor.

MERESANKH herself was of small frame and had black hair. She was about fifty years old when she died, and her mother, the red-headed Queen, outlived her and built the tomb for the daughter, which intrudes under the northern part of the mastaba of the mother. The burial shaft and sarcophagus of the latter have not yet been found, but the Reisner party expect to find it with further exploration.

A very unusual, if not unique, feature of Meresankh's tomb is provided by two inscriptions found on either side of the outer doorway, giving the dates of her death and burial. Some 272 days elapsed between the two events, or over nine months. This is a much longer period than could have been required by even the elaborate embalming process of the Egyptians, so that it is probable that the tomb was being prepared in the interval.

The tomb had been plundered by thieves thousands of years ago, as was practically every tomb thus far opened by archaeologists. The red granite sarcophagus had been pried open, the mummy pulled out and whatever valuables there were contained in the wrappings taken. The disjointed skeleton of the Queen was found in a disordered heap in one corner. Very few things of any great value, if any, however, had been buried in this tomb, as the fortunes of the family were at a low ebb after the death of Mycerinus.

Only a part of the tomb had been decorated at the time of the burial. But the colors of the paintings and painted reliefs were found to be almost as brilliant as when laid on some 4500 years ago. Other decorations, of an inferior order, had apparently been added many years later. Another unusual feature was that the signature of the sculptor, Yenkay, was inscribed over two of the reliefs, and that of the painter, Rahay, over a picture of a man painting a statue. The names of the craftsmen are seldom found in Egyptian tombs.

The chief funerary priest for the burial of Meresankh was Khemten, who was also the family steward. The two positions were apparently hereditary, or at least descended through several generations, for in the painted picture decorations of the tomb (the later additions) Khemten is represented as having been succeeded by Khemten-the-Younger, and in a group of four figures are seen the children of Khemten-the-Younger, heirs of the chief funerary priest.

Further light is thrown on the members of this dynasty by the reliefs cut in the rock, which were worked in a coating of plaster and vividly painted, while the greater part of the inscriptions were incised and painted in equally bright colors. The father of Meresankh II was pictured as a rather fat, coarse old man. He was Prince Ka-wa-ab, and undoubtedly the eldest son of Cheops. Nowhere in the tomb is any mention of the King to whom Meresankh III was married. But there is a record of the funerary estates painted in the tomb, which proves that one was inherited from Radedef and the rest from Cheops. However, Meresankh, the third Queen of that name in the dynasty, could have been married to only one of two Kings—Cephren, her uncle, or Mycerinus, her cousin, with the balance of probability that this daughter of the greatest aristocrats of the age would have been married to the younger man, Mycerinus.

HER tomb was very similar in plan and construction to that of Prince Khuwnera, son of Mycerinus and another Queen, and that tomb was made after the construction of the pyramid and temples of Mycerinus.

Another noteworthy fact is that the tombs of the line descended through Hetep-Heres I from Sneferuw are the greatest and most expensive mastaba tombs of the Old Kingdom, proving that they were the aristocrats of the dynasty while the branch line, descended from Sneferuw by another Queen, have much less distinctive tombs. Moreover, the inscriptions on these latter trace their descent from Sneferuw and not from Cheops, their later ancestor. Manifestly there was a split in the family—perhaps some quarrel over the succession or an intrigue in the harem, engineered by the old Queen, Hetep-Heres I.

Dr. Reisner's deduction that the Queen Hetep-Heres II, mother of Meresankh III, was either blonde or red-haired is made from painted figures on the walls of the Meresankh tomb. In one scene she stands in front of Meresankh, who in turn is followed by the latter's eldest son and other children. Meresankh is represented with short black hair and wearing a leopard skin over her white dress. Hetep-Heres, her mother, wears a white dress with very peculiar high pointed shoulders rising level to her ears, and her short hair is painted a bright yellow with fine red horizontal lines.

IN ONE inner room, the walls were never finished, and several stages are preserved of the technical process of preparing reliefs. On one part, the rock-cut wall has been smoothed and covered with a thin coating of pinkish plaster. On this surface the design for the scene was drawn in fine lines. On another wall the process was carried a stage further, the background around the black design having been cut away by chiseling both the plaster and the rock, and inscriptions incised. The next step was the white plaster modeling of the details, as seen in an unpainted relief on another wall; and finally on the white plaster the design was redrawn in red lines and colored, as in the main room.

Much more spectacular from the layman's standpoint were the contents of the secret tomb of Hetep-Heres I, work on which has practically been completed. The sarcophagus in this was of the finest alabaster, whereas that of Meresankh was of red granite. This fact alone reflected the fallen fortunes of this great family. There was a great golden canopy, a magnificent example of the metal working of the previous dynasty, and an inlaid box bearing the name of Sneferuw, whose Queen the buried Hetep-Heres was. Four other objects, the carrying chair, the jewel box containing the inlaid silver anklets, an inlaid panel and a gold disc, bore the names and titles of the Queen Hetep-Heres, a mother of a King of Upper and Lower Egypt.

IN ACCORDANCE with the Egyptian custom, the original tomb of the Queen Hetep-Heres was at Dashur, beside the pyramid of her husband, Sneferuw, and had probably been constructed by the latter's department of public works. Undoubtedly the Queen inspected her tomb frequently during its construction and after completion. She outlived her husband and was buried by her son, Cheops. Some few years later the royal police discovered that the tomb had been plundered by thieves. The anger of Cheops can be imagined and severe penalties were probably meted out to everyone under suspicion of guilt or negligence. Resolved that the burial of his mother should be beyond reach of further desecration, he ordered her body, with the alabaster sarcophagus and all that remained of the equipment, to be transferred to a secret grave within the precincts of his own royal cemetery at Giza. The grave-robbers seem in every case to have started work soon after burial, to have worked hastily and have been in deadly fear of discovery. They swiftly stripped the visible golden jewelry from the body after the coffin was opened, picked up what they could find quickly and departed. In such frantic haste did they work that they often overlooked valuable objects and did not try to carry away the heavy gold overlaid canopy and similar bulky objects.

This was apparently the case with the tomb of Hetep-Heres, and when the later burial was made everything in the tomb was hastily gathered up, dumped into wooden boxes and transported on wooden sledges hauled by gangs of slaves to the new secret tomb and put under ground as quickly as possible, to avoid the wrath of Cheops. And so that is why so much more material was found in this tomb than in some others excavated in the same neighborhood, and why two years were required to open the tomb, clear it out and carefully sift the rubbish with which it was packed to guard against further intrusion by thieves.

A LITTLE boy of 12 hitched up his trouser leg, squirmed with his sock and garter until they fell about his shoe top and, pointing to a brownish pink scar just above his ankle bone, said to me: "Thet's where my mother stuck me with a pitchfork the time I sed I wouldn't kerry whiskey fer her because I knew the revenue agents were in town. Thet's where she stuck me last before she run me from the house thet time I hid out'n the woods fer three nights."

Such an episode was a not unusual one in the life of young Claude Hayes, he informed me. Rather, he considered it more or less typical. And it was from such an existence that the lad finally rebelled, and so doing, sent just about his entire family to jail.

Claude now is at home with his father. But behind him is such an experience as might lead the advocates of Dickens to term the boy "The Oliver Twist of Moonshine Gulch."

Then he went on to tell me of the beatings he had gotten because he tired of carrying buckets of water from a stream to his uncle's still; he told me of how his grandmother, a woman of 69, who one would think would be almost old enough to know better, had slapped him when he failed to distribute the products of her homebrew plant as speedily as she thought he ought to; he told how necessary clothes were denied him, and "Then," he informed me, "when the trial came up they tried to get me to say they were makin' buttermilk."

BUT on that recent day when young Claude Hayes took the stand as a witness for the Government—before Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell, sitting at New Albany, Indiana—on that day young Mr. Hayes certainly did not testify that his mother and his grandmother and his uncles had been engaged in the mild pursuit of buttermilk manufacture.

Rather, young Mr. Hayes testified to beer at 25 cents a pint and whisky at $2 a pint, and he gave testimony as to hundred violations of the law of the land. And when the testimony was over, the Court, remarking that he never expected to hear another such case if he continued on the bench for a hundred years more, sent Claude's grandmother to 60 days in custody, staying the sentence, but announcing it would be in force for two years.

Claude's mother is Mrs. Bethel Hayes, a woman of 34. Her mother is Mrs. Martha—the family pronounces it "Marthie"—Conrad, and her sons who now grace the jail at New Albany for varying terms are Clarence, Claude, William and Herbert Conrad, and their ages run from 38 to 26.

Claude now is at home with his father. But behind him is such an experience as might lead the advocates of Dickens to term the boy "The Oliver Twist of Moonshine Gulch."

Then he went on to tell me of the beatings he had gotten because he tired of carrying buckets of water from a stream to his uncle's still; he told me of how his grandmother, a woman of 69, who one would think would be almost old enough to know better, had slapped him when he failed to distribute the products of her homebrew plant as speedily as she thought he ought to; he told how necessary clothes were denied him, and "Then," he informed me, "when the trial came up they tried to get me to say they were makin' buttermilk."

Baltzell, sitting at New Albany, Indiana—on that day young Mr. Hayes certainly did not testify that his mother and his grandmother and his uncles had been engaged in the mild pursuit of buttermilk manufacture.

Rather, young Mr. Hayes testified to beer at 25 cents a pint and whisky at $1 a pint, and he gave testimony as to hundred violations of the law of the land. And when the testimony was over, the Court, remarking that he never expected to hear another such case if he continued on the bench for a hundred years more, sent Claude's grandmother to 60 days in custody, delaying the sentence, but announcing it would be in force for two years.

Claude's mother is Mrs. Bethel Hayes, a woman of 34. Her mother is Mrs. Martha—the family pronounces it "Marthie"—Conrad, and her sons who now grace the jail at New Albany for varying terms are Clarence, Claude, William and Herbert Conrad, and their ages run from 38 to 26. These four Conrads and Mrs. Hayes are five of eleven children still alive; in total, Martha Conrad is the mother of eighteen. Reposing in the jail, along with the aforementioned Conrads and their sister, is James Belcher, 51, a brother-in-law, who married one of Martha Conrad's daughters.

When I talked to Mrs. Hayes she assured me the Government had "framed" her, and that Claude was a bad boy who wouldn't mind. Her brothers and her brother-in-law declared they, too, were innocent of evil.

IT WAS the outskirts of French Lick, Indiana, a section of the town known as "Moonshine Gulch," that claimed the homes of Mrs. Hayes, of Claude and Herbert Conrad, and Belcher. William and Clarence Conrad lived on farms not far apart and a few miles out of French Lick. Mrs. Martha Conrad lived with her son, Herbert.

According to the best evidence of the district prohibition office, the family first got into moonshining on a business-like basis about the beginning of the summer of 1926. And it was about that same time that John Hayes, husband of Bethel Hayes, separated from his wife and moved to an Indiana town not far away. The four children of this couple, of whom Claude is the oldest—the others are a girl of nine and boys of five and three—remained with their mother.

Now, as Prohibition Group Chief Liebert told me—from his headquarters at New Albany he hunts out the stills in 25 Indiana counties—the Conrad family did not go in for bootlegging and illicit manufacture in a big way. Rather, they were what the enforcement officers term penny-ante violators.

"They didn't turn out good enough stuff for the guests at French Lick and West Baden," Agent Roy Negley, Liebert's assistant, informed me, "that bunch want this fake Scotch. These Conrads made plain old corn whisky—they like that stuff down here—and they sold it to the bums around the two resort towns. They put the corn out at 25 cents a drink, I hear, or at a dollar a half pint."

Agents Liebert and Negley are two of the busiest prohibition sleuths in the land. In their territory moonshining flourishes like a weed, and as I mentioned before, the two of them have to patrol 25 counties.

LAST June was just like any other time in the hurried lives of these two fellows; they had a long list of stills before them, and they were getting around to them as speedily as possible. But one morning Liebert got a call from Shoals, Indiana, the county seat next to Orange County, wherein are the towns of West Baden and French Lick, and the call was from the Sheriff at Shoals. This official informed the dry agents that his business was of singular importance, so the two prohibition men jumped into their Ford and made for Shoals and the Sheriff.

Once arrived, the aforementioned county official took them to young Claude Hayes and young Claude Hayes began to tell his story. It wasn't long before Liebert and Negley had heard enough. They promptly began taking affidavits and on June 29 they arrived at "Moonshine Gulch."

Straight to the home of Claude's mother they went and when the search was over the agents marked down in their book that in that residence 65 pints of homebrew had been discovered. The home of Herbert Conrad was next on the list, it was an even more fertile field. For here resided Grandma Martha, she who specialized in beer making, and when the count was over the story was told by 214 pints of brew and a tub of beer on ice and waiting to be poured down the first thirsty throat.

Uncle James Belcher was next on the list. A couple of gallon jugs here, and a pint of moonshine. Then to Claude Conrad—no evidence found here. Now, into the Ford again and a six-mile drive into the country, and then the farm of Clarence Conrad. These fellows, Liebert and Negley, are meticulous. They didn't even miss the garbage pail. In its depths they got a pint of whisky and looking around a little further they found 20 gallons of peach brandy mash, and then to William Conrad's, two miles away. This place was where Claude had carried buckets and buckets of water from a stream to the still on the cliff, a distance of 100 yards. Part of the still the agents found, and mash to a grand total of 75 gallons.

The Federal Court wasn't far away.

Ah, yes, but how did the Sheriff of Shoals find out all about it? The answer is Claude Hayes, star witness for the Government. And this is why, Claude told me, he did what he did:

"They made me start helpin' 'em make whisky and help 'em sell it back last summer, 1926. Papa and my mother quit livin' together, an' he went away. They use to send me out to my Uncle William, outside of French Lick, where the still was. It takes a lotta water to run one uv them stills an' I hed to kerry water from the crik up a hill to where thet still was. I kerried it in buckets.

"Thet was purty hard work. Then, when I wasn't doin' thet, I was helpin' them at home. Marthie Conrad — that's my grandma — she made the beer. She'd sell it fer 25 cents fer a pint. She'd sell it where she lived or at my house. Then she used to sell it in town, too.

"I hed to do thet, too. I hed to kerry bottles of the beer to bootleggers in French Lick. I used to have to kerry whisky to them, too. I'd kerry bottles uv whisky twice a week to 'Jumpin' Jack' in French Lick, who's a bootlegger. He's a colored man. He never paid me the money, he used to pay them. I jest kerried it.

"My uncles and Marthie Conrad and my mother sed to me, 'You kerry it fer if the revenue agents get you they won't do nothin' to you, you're jest a kid. But if they ketch us, they'll put us in the penitentiary.' My mother sed thet, too, the time she wanted me to shoot papa. She sed once she was expectin' him to come to the house one day—thet was after he'd left—and she says fer me to shoot him, sayin' thet nobody'd do anything to me as I was jest a kid, but if she killed him they'd send her to the penitentiary. She hed a rifle she wanted me to do it with, but I sed no I wasn't goin' to kill papa.

"I USED to get awful tired kerryin' water fer the still and kerryin' whisky and beer to town to 'Jumpin' Jack' and other people. I was afraid uv the revenue men, too. But when I told 'em I didn't want to work at the still no more they jest cursed me and slapped me. I told Grandma Marthie Conrad I didn't want to kerry beer to town and then she'd slap me.

"When it came time to go to school, I could go if they didn't need me to kerry water or whisky. If they did, they kept me from school to make me work.

"An' all I ever got fer workin' was 10 cents or 20 cents about twice a month to go to the movies. It was awful.

"Well, people would come to my mother's house an' drink beer an' whisky. The men hed guns an' sometimes they'd pretend they were goin' to shoot the lights out. They'd get drunk. They let me hev beer and whisky, too.

"I got tired uv workin' at stills and kerryin' bottles and the next time my mother sed fer me to go to my uncle's and kerry water fer the still I sed I wouldn't. Thet night two men came to our house. They hed white sheets around 'em. They sed they were the 'white sheets' an' they took me out the house.

"I knew they weren't the 'white sheets,' I knew they were my uncles. I knew 'em by their revolvers. Well, they took me out a piece and they whipped me with switches. They whipped me on the legs and the switches left red marks. Then, when they got through whippin' me, each uv 'em shot at me with his revolver. One of the shots went right by my head.

"Then they sed, 'The next time your mother tells you to do anything, you do jest what she tells you to.'

"ONE day early last summer my mother told me to kerry some whisky to town. I'd heard the revenue agents were in town an' I was afraid. I told her I wouldn't do it because I was scared the revenue agents would get me. But she sed they wouldn't hurt me an' I must kerry it. But I wouldn't do it an' she stuck me in the leg with a pitchfork an' told me to pack up my clothes an' git out. So I did.

"I'd got tired uv being whipped and slapped and they told me they would kill me if I ever sed anything about the way they made whisky and beer to anybody. I got my clothes together an' I walked out. I slept out'n the woods thet night an' the next day I began walkin' toward my grandma's, my papa's mammy. But I walked too far an' I slept out'n the woods thet night, too. I knew my papa was at Shoals in the next county an' I started out to go there. Thet night I slept in the woods again.

"Next day I got to Shoals an' found papa. Then the Sheriff told the revenue agents about it an' they come over an' talked to me an' I told 'em everything about it an' about kerryin' water for the still an' where it was an' about kerryin' beer an' whisky an' what they all done to me.

"Then after awhile papa took me up here to West Lafayette where we live now. The other day when they hed the trial papa an' I went down to New Albany so I could tell about things. Before the trial started I talked to my mother fer awhile an' she asked me what I was goin' to tell an' sed I should say all they ever made was buttermilk.

"But I told her I was goin' to tell just exactly what happened. An' thet's what I did."

A JURY found these people guilty of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. It was up to the Court to decide their punishment and that was a not particularly easy matter. For the Conrad brothers and their sister and their brother-in-law had in their six families 21 children, not counting young Mr. Claude Hayes.

The Court dealt out the sentences. William and Claude Conrad and James Belcher, 8 months each in jail. Clarence and Herbert Conrad, six months. Mrs. Hayes, 60 days, 30 to be served, the other 30 to be suspended during a period of two years. Mrs. Martha Conrad, 60 days, suspended, but for two years to be in force.

And Claude and his father, who, by the way, was divorced from Mrs. Hayes in September, journeyed back to West Lafayette and to their small frame house which sits at the foot of the hill topped by the buildings of a state institution, but this time it isn't the shadow of the penitentiary that Claude is growing up in, but that of Purdue University.

The Window Washer Who Invited the World to Boston

BOSTON, Massachusetts.

THERE is at least one person in Boston who is an idealist, completely and without any reservations. Unlike most idealists, he did something about his ideal and with results that were felt around the world.

His name is William Aloysius Ryan and he happens to be a window washer. The trade of window washing becomes, after a few years, a more or less mechanical one. It allows no end of reflection. A year or two ago Ryan conceived an idea as far-reaching in its scope as Sir Thomas More's "Utopia" or one of H. G. Wells' imaginary worlds.

Ryan's idea was no less than a world league of cities to outlaw war. And to Ryan the outlawing of war was not an empty phrase, convenient at election time and at important banquets. It was a very real and actual thing to him. All alone, in the time he could spare, he set out to bring about his world league of cities, the first tangible evidence of which was to be a mass demonstration at Boston's tercentenary celebration in 1930.

Working nights in his home in Dorchester, a small apartment in a four-family house, with equipment that was almost childishly simple, he prepared and mailed out hundreds of letters to Mayors of cities, Governors, foreign executives and leaders of thought in his effort to unite the world for peace.

As a result of this idealist's activity the Mayor of Boston, Malcolm Edwin Nichols, got a rude shock the other day. Notice came by cable from Moscow that the Presidium, highest soviet executive council, had voted to accept Boston's kind invitation to send a delegation to Boston in 1930 with the aim of founding a federation of cities to work for world peace. But this was not as much of a surprise to Mayor Nichols as it might have been, for a week or two before the German Consulate at Boston sent a messenger to call upon the Mayor to inquire further as to the exact purpose of this startling peace move. And, too, Boston postoffice authorities had from time to time inquired whether Ryan had the sanction of the municipal government in his enterprise.

The secret was out. Not that Ryan had ever attempted to keep his plan a secret. He seemed a little bit surprised that anyone should think his plan at all unusual.

He displayed with pride some of the results of his two years of work—letters from Mayors of cities in all parts of the world, from the Governors of many states, from leaders and thinkers in many lands and even from the offices of the President in Washington.

"I hope we shall now enjoy a long period of peace and prosperity, and I agree with you that we want to establish a feeling of real brotherhood, which is the only way we shall ever attain to peace," Mayor R. J. Whitehall of Plymouth, England, wrote. "It is really up to everyone to do his utmost to cement the bonds of fellowship between all towns and all countries and I am very glad to know you are doing what you possibly can toward this end."

GANDHI, the Indian leader, wrote that it would be impossible for Bombay to become a member since Bombay was under English domination. The Mayors of European cities seemed in general more cordial toward the idea than those of American cities, but Mayor Cryer of Los Angeles, among others, expressed great interest in the project and asked for additional information.

Ryan, working nights, had mailed out hundreds and hundreds of communications. He had received numerous responses. In his letters he inclosed the following proclamation:

"Boston, with her notable traditions and geographical site, has been destined to lead the world toward peace, and is now calling on her creeds and racial groups to unite for the municipality with city hall as their focus—towards 1930, Boston's Tercentenary.

"Boston shall then be appointed to call a world conference of cities, inviting their deputies to assemble here in Boston to establish and to proclaim 'Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men.'

"Boston is now in correspondence with all the other cities of the world, urging them to carry on a like civic evangelism through a series of pageants, dramas and classics together with a display of their city flags, to create the community mind and local patriotism.

"In preparation for this great world revival in 1930, Boston's 300th anniversary, let every man, woman and child get behind this inter-municipal program for world peace and adopt the slogan, 'City Hall, the Gateway to World Peace.'

"WM. A. RYAN,

"'Municipal Government' is the publisher of Peace to a world now torn by war and mob rule (Boston, 1930)."

Ryan accompanied each circular with a written note in which he sketched his idea that a federation of the world's cities would be the perfect instrument with which to outlaw war.

Mayor Nichols made it very plain that the city of Boston had no connection with Ryan's plan. Told that St. Louis was inquiring about the Ryan plan, and asked if any formal, written acceptances of the Ryan invitation had been received, Mayor Nichols said: "My compliments to St. Louis. I should be glad to loan Mr. Ryan to that city," and denied any acceptances of the Ryan invitation had come to the City Hall.

This curt rejection of his great scheme disturbed Ryan not at all. The public attention gained for his new style Utopia was reward enough in itself, he said.

RYAN is strikingly like the principal character in John Galsworthy's play, "Windows." Mr. Bly of the play is a philosophical window washer and choreman, a mystical dreamer, with a touch of bitterness. He moves in and out of the story like a spirit from another world, making ironical comment upon war and other deep-rooted human foibles and follies. The play's symbolism is that of a wish to wipe away from human eyes the mists and fogs of materialism.

Ryan serves as handy man in 50 offices and stores in the downtown business section of Boston. His wage for a year is $1600. He has raised a family of five healthy children and, moreover, has paid all the expenses of his campaign for a Federation of Cities from his own pocket. But these he belittles.

"A good idea will find friends in the most unexpected places," he said in an interview with this correspondent. "The printing has been done by a friend who runs a small shop. Since he is heartily in favor of the formation of a federation of world cities, all the printing is gotten out at cost—away below the regular rates for such work.

"I get all the writing paper I need at the five-and-ten cent store, at bottom price. The only other items are postage, my time and labor, which I dedicate to the cause, and the slight expense of buying kerosene for the lamp by the light of which I work at night.

"As for the cold shoulder which my efforts have received at City Hall, comment is unnecessary. I am still hopeful that Mayor Nichols will soon see the wisdom of carrying on where I left off.

"At any rate, I have now begun to work among different races in our cosmopolitan Boston. I have gone lately among the Italians, the Poles and the Syrians, among whom the great Galilean dwelt in His own time.

"To them I have suggested that they themselves raise sums of money to pay part of the cost of bringing delegations here from their respective fatherlands for the 1930 federation convention, if the Mayor will allow it. All have given me a sympathetic ear. I have no doubt the German, French, Scotch, Irish, Spanish, Chinese, Russian groups in our city will be as responsive when I approach them.

"Should the Boston government finally decide to exclude my plan in connection with the 1930 tercentenary, then I mean to appeal the case as well as I can to the common people of America, and to the government at Washington which is oftentimes called their government.

"THIS generation of Americans knows too well the horrors of war, since few families escaped its scar, its blight. I am sure they will give me strong support.

"At Washington, on February 22, 1932, there will be some kind of an opposing program to memorialize the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birthday. If Boston turns us down in 1930, I should hope to convince my fellow-Americans to take us up at that appropriate time in Washington."

Mrs. Ryan, a graduate nurse, has shown a decided coldness toward her husband's plan.

"What does the world care about idealism and faith?" she asked. "It takes plenty of money to realize on such project. He will never get such backing. My husband is just a hard-working man who comes home at night and enjoys his hobby. I don't interfere."

DOCUMENTS which reveal complete for the first time the love story of John Wesley, founder of Methodism, have been brought to light here. Unearthed by Mrs. Marie Conway Oemler, they disclose Wesley in the most human role he ever assumed—that of a lover torn between the woman whom he worshiped and the vows he had made to his God.

From journals, diaries and public records, long obscured, Mrs. Oemler has pieced together the complete narrative of the great joy and great tragedy that were Wesley's during the less than two years he spent in the colony of Georgia, when he was ostensibly on a mission to the Indians. Of these facts Mrs. Oemler has made a biographical novel, "The Holy Lover."

With all the passion of which he was capable the founder of Methodism loved a girl 15 years younger than himself. But he had made a vow of celibacy, and his God was a jealous one. All the diverse forces implied in Wesley's temperament were involved in the struggle that followed.

The characters in the drama that was to play itself out in primitive Georgia between February, 1736, and December, 1737, were these:

With him were three companions—his brother Charles, and Ingham and Delamotte, devout followers who had been members of the Holy Club he had formed at Oxford.

DOCUMENTS which reveal completely for the first time the love story of John Wesley, founder of Methodism, have been brought to light here. Unearthed by Mrs. Marie Conway Oemler, they disclose Wesley in the most human role he ever assumed—that of a lover torn between the woman whom he worshiped and the vows he had made to his God.

From journals, diaries and public records, long obscured, Mrs. Oemler has pieced together the complete narrative of the great joy and greater tragedy that were Wesley's during the less than two years he spent in the colony of Georgia, when he was ostensibly on a mission to the Indians. Of these facts Mrs. Oemler has made a biographical novel, "The Holy Lover."

With all the passion of which he was capable the founder of Methodism loved a girl 15 years younger than himself. But he had made a vow of celibacy, and his God was a jealous one. All the diverse forces implied in Wesley's temperament were involved in the struggle that followed.

The characters in the drama that was to play itself out in primitive Georgia between February, 1736, and December, 1737, were these:

WESLEY, at the age of 33, handsome, proud, rigid in his religious beliefs almost to the point of bigotry, but susceptible to women, feeling the need of the companionship and conversation of women in a land that must have seemed to the fastidious Oxford scholar barbarous and savage in the extreme. With him were three companions—his brother, Charles, and Ingham and Delamotte, devout followers who had been members of the Holy Club he had formed at Oxford.

Sophy Hopkey, 18 years old, beautiful, slim, pious and intelligent, a woman of her time, trained in obedience, and prepared to do the bidding of the man she loved. Wesley's "Miss Sophy" was the ward of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Causton. They were a worldly pair, given to card playing, dancing, fast horses and fine plantations, resenting the presence in their household of the pious Sophy. Causton was Magistrate of Savannah.

Colonel James Edward Oglethorpe, called by many the handsomest man of his time, a gentleman in every sense of the word, tolerant, urbane, with a great ambition for fame, which he hoped to achieve through the success of his colony in Georgia. For the good of his colony he wanted Wesley to marry Sophy and settle down there. Marriage, Oglethorpe believed, would humanise the inflexible young moralist, bring him down nearer to earth, where he was needed. He let Causton understand that Oglethorpe's continued favor depended upon fostering the match.

Almost from the moment of sailing there was trouble among the band of colonists that Oglethorpe had brought out—storms at sea on the voyage over, the threat of attack by Spaniards and Indians and jealous rivalries and hatreds that sprang up. The four devout members of the Holy Club were none too popular. They sought to enforce a stern religion on a people that wanted little more than freedom for expansion, freedom to bring in rum and slaves, and a little enjoyment to enliven their existence in the wilderness.

Charles Wesley gave it up quite early and went back to England. So did Ingham. Of sterner stuff, John Wesley stuck it out, and with him remained his disciple, Delamotte. Moreover, John had a more pleasant post. Charles had been relegated to the distant Frederica, little more than an outpost against the Indians. In Savannah John found even at that early date some aspects of a civilized town, a certain society—and Sophy.

THERE can be little doubt that Wesley loved Sophy. He says so in his own journal, which he wrote in cipher. He was thrown with her much in Savannah, and with her friend, Miss Bovey. He organized a little group of the devout, comparable to the Holy Club at Oxford, and Sophy and Miss Bovey were among his most loyal followers. They came to services at 5 o'clock in the morning, they read and prayed long hours with him, they fasted and lived on bread and water for him. But from the first Sophy was his choice. And Sophy, in her mild, gentle way, was soon the slave of this ascetic young mystic. In Milton's phrase, he was for God, and she for God through him.

When Wesley was transferred temporarily to Frederica to fill the vacancy left by the departure of his brother, Charles, Oglethorpe arranged, through Causton, that Sophy should come there, too, to visit friends. In Frederica, more than in Savannah, he was thrown into her society. She spent long hours with him, strolling about the paths of the garden that surrounded the parish house. He read ponderous religious tomes to her and the more aware he became of the love that was growing within him, the more determined Wesley became to save Sophy's soul.

Oglethorpe watched the development of the relationship with satisfaction. But he understood the sternness of Wesley's soul and the intensity of his religious devotion. He realized that it would take more than ordinary circumstances to wring a proposal of marriage from the minister. He let Sophy into his confidence and at the same time he arranged that they should take the same boat back to Savannah—as the only passengers aboard.

There were nights and days under the blue Georgia sky on the broad rivers that were like arms of the sea. And other nights and days when it was necessary to take refuge on land from fierce storms that swept their boat. Through it all Sophy maintained her unbroken calm, her evenness of temper. Until at last Wesley was moved to ask her if she could be happy should she spend the rest of her life with him. Sophy gave a modest affirmation. It was not an actual proposal of marriage.

HE GREW frightened at the lengths to which he had gone. But he took refuge in the statement that Sophy had made at the beginning of their friendship, that she intended to remain single all her life—the conventional statement that an imaginative girl of her time might make. He labored harder than ever to save Sophy's soul.

And yet he wanted to marry her. All the evidence shows that. He consulted several friends about the problem, showing that singular lack of reticence and discretion that marked his entire life. Could he, he asked, love his God with an undivided zeal, should he marry Sophy? And what about his vow of celibacy? They gave vague or unsatisfactory replies. He consulted Delamotte, who couldn't endure the thought of the man he worshiped marrying anyone. They decided to cast lots, a method of settling annoying questions to which Wesley often resorted.

"SEE her no more or see her only in the presence of Delamotte," was the verdict. This was a torture to Wesley. He found himself unable to abide by the decision.

But meanwhile even the patient Sophy grew weary of this kind of love making. He told her he cared for her, he even kissed her once, and then, as if afraid of what he had done, he became more cold and severe, more sternly religious, than ever before. The Caustons were impatient, too. Mrs. Causton, in particular, wanted to see Sophy married and out of the way. Oglethorpe had had to return to England on business. Savannah talked, too. People gossiped about the saintly lover "who blows hot one day and cold the next." They were looking for a chance to condemn the man who had inveighed against them with a satiric bitterness. And then, suddenly, with very little warning and without bothering to have the banns read, Sophy married another man, William Williamson, a suitor who had been pressing the Caustons for her hand. Causton, in obedience to Oglethorpe, had given Wesley every chance. He had told him, although not in so many words, "The girl is yours if you want to marry her." Sophy had intimated that he need say only one word. But always Wesley had shied away, taking refuge in the fact that they had not actually spoken directly of marriage. The records which Mrs. Oemler has studied indicate that Sophy was virtually forced into a match with Williamson by her quarrelsome and complaining aunt.

ONLY Wesley himself realized how close he had come to marriage. "What might have been the consequence," he was to record later in his journal of an incident that occurred just before the marriage, "had I then but touched her hand, and how I avoided it, I know not. Surely, God is over all."

But now that Sophy had married, bitterness filled Wesley's soul. Even though he had not been able to bring himself to marry her, he had wanted no one else to have "Miss Sophy." He saw her several times after her marriage, each time to upbraid her because she did not observe the religious offices so closely as she once had. And at last, his jealousy goading him to desperation, he vented all his fury upon her. The meek Sophy could not endure this, and she turned in silence, her head held high in anger.

Not content with these rebukes, Wesley began to talk to the few friends who remained to him about her lapses from religious duty. He maintained that her marriage was illegal because the banns had not been previously read, but in this he was not upheld by the church in England. He found imaginary charges against her. He wrote a concise account of the "Case of Miss Sophy" and showed it to anyone who cared to see it.

But this was not enough to appease his jealous hatred. One Sunday morning, dressed all in white and as beautiful as ever, unchanged by her marriage, even though she was then to become a mother, Sophy approached the communion rail to receive the sacrament from his hands.

IT WAS the greatest scandal the colonial town had ever known. Before nightfall everyone knew of the incident. Indignation flared. Even Wesley's friends began to turn against him until very few remained. He was not at all disturbed. He was even calmer and happier than he had been since coming to Georgia. He had done what he believed was the righteous thing, and he was prepared to wear the martyr's mantle. He even welcomed his martyrdom.

When Causton demanded an explanation of his act, he wrote to Sophy as follows:

"So many as intend to be partakers of the Holy Communion shall signify their names to the Curate, at least some time the day before. This you did not do.

"And if any of these . . . have done any wrong to his neighbours by word or deed, so that the congregation be thereby offended, the Curate . . . shall advertise him, that in any wise he presume not to come to the Lord's Table, until he hath openly declared himself to have truly repented.

"If you offer yourself at the Lord's Table on Sunday, I will advertise you, as I have done more than once, wherein you have done wrong. And when you have openly declared yourself to have truly repented, I will administer to you the mysteries of my God."

A letter which no one could understand, Sophy least of all.

But Williamson and Causton were determined to have some redress. Sophy had been made seriously ill by the incident. Early Monday morning the Recorder issued the following warrant:

"To all Constables, Tithingmen and others whom these may concern: You, and each of you, are hereby required to take the body of John Wesley, Clerk:

"And bring him before one of the bailiffs of the said town, to answer the complaint of William Williamson and Sophia, his wife, for defaming the said Sophia, and refusing to administer to her the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in a public congregation, without cause; by which the said William Williamson is damaged one thousand pounds sterling."

THE trial that followed was more or less of a farce. Wesley maintained that the question was one for the ecclesiastical courts. He defended himself before the rustic jury. Williamson had a notice set up in the square forbidding any person or persons to take John Wesley out of the Province of Georgia, under penalty of one thousand pounds sterling, "Mr. Wesley being guilty of divers notorious offenses."

There were various retaliations. Causton read Wesley's letters to Sophy to all who cared to hear them. Wesley told his side of the case to his congregation—the dwindling few who remained. But no one believed the charges against Sophy, most of which dealt with minor religious offenses.

Finally Wesley realized that he must return to England. He was weary of the whole affair. Williamson made an effort to compel him legally to stay in Georgia to face a second trial, but he smiled disdainfully, ignored the bailiffs who had been sent to hold him, and eventually took ship for England, there to work with an indomitable and tireless zeal, a fierce and relentless spirit, to found a church that was to perpetuate his name. Nothing remains of the memory of Sophy but the record of her brief love for the founder of Methodism.

NEW YORK.

CHARLES A. LEVINE, the only living trans-Atlantic airplane passenger, came sailing home on the Leviathan the other day, and his home city, by this time pretty well hardened to returned oceanic flyers, welcomed him with professional restraint. Crowds which used to dash right out in the rain to applaud an aviator observed this time that the weather was bad and stayed indoors. No police cordons were penetrated, no property damaged and although the hero rode up and down Fifth avenue three times, not a single instance was reported of personal injury suffered from falling out of windows.

First there was a parade from the Battery to the city hall, and there Mayor Walker, in a "welcome-home" speech, told Levine New York was proud of him, and "don't let anybody tell you different." Orations were made in denunciation of certain "whispering campaigns" and speeches in defense of the flyer became so heated that finally somebody reminded the assembly that Mr. Levine wasn't on trial, but was being welcomed home. After the speech-making he went over to the Rockaways and shook hands with all the neighbors. Everybody was well behaved and seemed glad to see him back.

ALTOGETHER, it wasn't quite like a Lindbergh reception, but it may have been just as well to save some of the cheering for next year, because next year, Levine declares, he is going to Europe and fly back by way of making the return trip what it ought to be. Either that or he will fly around the world. He hasn't yet decided which. In either event, he asserted, he would have, by that time, an air mail line in full operation between New York and Europe.

Levine's European stay lasted four and a half months, which was as long as his plane, the Miss Columbia, would hold out against the rigors of being flown without a pilot. Nobody was much surprised at the news the plane had been wrecked. The surprise was that it hadn't been wrecked sooner and its dare-devil owner put out of commission along with it. His proclivity for courting disaster was appalling. But there was one thing which could make Levine give up trying to be a hero. That happened. After his plane was gone there followed a falling off in press notices, so the first trans-Atlantic air passenger gave it up and came home to build another ship. The wreck occurred in a vineyard near Fiorano, Italy, where the Don Quixote of the air plunged one day while looking for an airdrome.

Among all the adventurers who have made or attempted trans-oceanic flights in this big year of sea hopping none was more serious than Charles A. Levine. His thirst for applause made him something approaching an international joke, but no matter how much he held the spotlight it could not nullify a certain admiration for his courage. Sometimes his courage became foolhardiness. Often it looked like sheer suicide. But it never lacked a flavor of cold nerve.

LEVINE'S flying career, beginning with the dash across the Atlantic as a passenger in his own plane, which was piloted by Clarence D. Chamberlin, was a bit unusual from the start. Before he could set out to face the opposition of the Atlantic he had to face the opposition of his wife, and he finally sidestepped it by fooling her into the belief he was simply going on a short trial flight.

When he stepped into the cockpit of the Bellanca monoplane, hatless and in ordinary business clothes, she had no idea he was starting across the ocean and swooned when it became apparent he really was on his way. However, when the plane was reported safely over Yarmouth, N. S., she became enthusiastic and no longer held his deception against him when she journeyed to Europe with Mrs. Chamberlin a few days later to join the flyers in their triumphal tour.

Once across and safely landed near Eisleben, Germany, Levine quickly blossomed out in all the glory of an ocean conqueror although the spotlights were pretty busy with Lindbergh about that time.

Asked by officials of Germany, and later by those of France, to produce his passport, the first of all trans-Atlantic passengers waved them aside, pleasantly but firmly. "I don't need any passport," he remarked, his manner not only suggesting but decreeing that the incident was closed. "All I have to say is that I am Mr. Levine."

Von Hindenburg entertained them. So did various German burgomasters. Later they were feted by the Presidents of Czecho-Slovakia and Poland. Both were lions. They were besieged with business offers and swamped with requests from persons who wanted to accompany them on the return trip. Various German officials presented them with beer by the truck load.

There appeared, however, to be one feature of this flight and its general appraisal that was disconcerting to Levine. This was the fact that he had been only the owner of the plane and a passenger in it instead of a trans-Atlantic pilot. He was loyal enough to Chamberlin. He heard without grudging the acclaim which went to the man who had held the stick. But it was suspected that the public's tendency to make Chamberlin the hero of the exploit was painful to Levine. Accordingly, at the earliest opportunity he set about to correct the situation and get his share of the laurels. To his credit let it be said he attempted to do this not by undermining Chamberlin's pedestal, but by trying (although sometimes unwisely) to build one for himself.

Chamberlin departed for home about the middle of July, but Levine stayed on in Europe. His appetite for public mention had only been whetted. He announced he would fly back to New York in the Columbia and engaged Maurice Drouhin, the French flyer, as his pilot. Then disputes arose. It seems that besides the question of money matters and guarantees there was the question of who would steer the ship on its return course. Before these questions were settled, Levine flew to London and left Drouhin behind. His first trip to London was made as a passenger in a commercial plane, but later he returned to Paris, kidnaped his own Columbia from its hangar at Le Bourget Field and hopped off alone. If the public liked pilots better than passengers he would be a pilot. Never before had he flown the Columbia alone or any other plane of its type, but that was not allowed to stand in the way. Two hours later he bounced the craft across the Croydon Field at London in a tragi-comic landing that had professional pilots gasping.

THE Croydon airdrome authorities had received word that Levine had left Le Bourget but did not know he was bound for London. Indeed, nobody else did, either. They were amazed when he arrived overhead and began his 20 minutes of desperate aerial gymnastics. A British pilot who witnessed the arrival declared that, for producing comedy, "Charlie Chaplin at his best could not have done better."

"Levine did everything that a pilot should not do," the airman related. "If we had not been so terrified about the chances of his being killed we would have rolled on the ground with laughter. He missed a smash and probably death by only a few feet on several occasions. He stalled at a low altitude and righted himself again. He missed an observation tower by a few feet, swerved and came on.

"On another round he got so low his wheels hit the ground, and he bounced 60 feet into the air, but he righted himself once more. Finally he made a perfect landing and stepped out of the plane as cool as a cucumber."

While this performance was going on, spectators held their breath and covered their faces to keep from seeing the tragedy that appeared inevitable. A fire engine and an ambulance were called out and dashed to the field. A wrecking crew was hastily mobilized, and doctors got ready to minister to a dying man. But they weren't needed. Still deadly serious, Levine stepped from the cockpit without realizing what all the commotion was about. He hadn't sensed his danger sufficiently to be even scared.

This Croydon escapade was characteristic of what was to follow during the two succeeding months. Levine went "air crazy" and "fame crazy." His appetite for publicity was insatiable. Shortly after the famous Croydon landing, Levine announced he had selected the veteran British aviator, Capt. W. G. Hinchliffe, in Drouhin's place. That was about August 20, and it was said they would hop off as soon as the weather cleared.

The weather, however, refused to clear, and another plan was adopted. The return trans-Atlantic flight was abandoned until next year and Levine announced he and Captain Hinchliffe would start eastward on an endurance flight about the middle of September. The destination would be Karachi, India, or some other point more distant.

This flight was actually started. On September 21, they hopped off from Cranwell airdrome and set out for the Far East, but were forced down near Vienna by a shortage of gasoline. They then flew to Venice to see the Schneider Trophy race and later to Rome, where Levine was received by the Pope and Mussolini. They were still flying about Italy when the crash occurred near Fiorano. With the Prince of Orleans in the craft as a passenger, they were on their way to Ravenna, where Levine intended to drop a present for Mussolini's baby son, when the crash occurred. The engine worked irregularly as they approached Fiorano, and they began to look for an airdrome in which to land. They were unable to find one and finally came down in a vineyard, where the famous Columbia was quickly converted into junk by crashing against the obstructions.

HOW long Levine might have kept up his hectic flying program abroad, had this incident not occurred, nobody is able to guess. He changed plans and courses with astonishing frequency on short notice. He already had one Budapest flight ahead and others were under consideration when the Columbia's part in the program was cut short. Even after all his lucky escapes from disaster, Levine still hasn't his fill of hazardous flying and came home declaring he would make the trans-Atlantic flight eastward next year. For this venture he plans to build a plane more powerful than the Columbia. Maybe it will be a multi-engined seaplane, he says. And, though he hasn't said so, the probability is that he will fly it himself. He is fond of taking chances.

All his life Levine has been taking chances, and in nearly every instance he beat the game. That is how he made the fortune which enables him to build planes for trans-oceanic flights. He started his business career as a buyer of junk metal and although he is now only a little past 30 he is financially independent. He made most of his fortune during the World War, when he furnished tremendous quantities of munition materials to the Government on huge contracts.

Since the war he has been the promoter of several flying companies. Some may call him an aerial clown, but nobody will say he isn't game.

A SECRET REVEALED AT LAST

THE following startling story is not only appropriate to the deer season, which is now with us, but will come as a distinct blow—or at the very least, a smart tap—to the many who knew the late Gerald Choakes, society man, cotillion leader and expert deer hunter, who died 20 years ago this month.

I alone have known Gerald Choakes' secret. I have not revealed it until now for the reason that I promised poor Choakes not to publish it until 20 years after his death. I gave him this promise in 1903. In 1907 Choakes was in perfect health, and, growing impatient, I shot him. This being 1927, I am privileged to reveal the skeleton in Gerald's closet.

HE NEVER SHOT A DEER IN HIS LIFE!

But do not judge him too harshly. You must hear the facts.

In 1896 Choakes, then in Paris, fell in love with Cleo de Merode. King Leopold was also at that time in love with Miss de Merode, who was a great admirer of beards. The King had a long, white beard that was the envy of the Paris boulevards, but when the handsome American, Choakes, appeared on the scene it was noticed that his beard was dark brown, curly and fully a foot longer than the King's. So the King sent an equerry to Choakes, challenging him to a duel. Naturally, however, a King could not fight Choakes, the latter being a commoner, so the King sent Miss de Merode in his stead. Miss de Merode fired twice at Choakes, but both bullets were lost in her adversary's beard.

Choakes fired gallantly into the air and returned, heartbroken, to America. He wanted to forget, so he went to the Adirondacks to hunt deer. Arriving there, he found he had forgotten. He had forgotten his gun, his ammunition, his hunting knife and his guide. But the memory of Cleo de Merode's eyes and that fateful struggle at dawn in the copse in the Bois were with him. Choakes had become a cynic, convinced that the love of woman is a commodity not worth striving for, no matter how long one's beard is.

Having forgotten the gun Choakes could not hunt deer, but one day he thought he would take a walk in the woods. He had not gone far before he saw two moose, horns locked in mortal combat. It was the mating season and they were fighting over the charms of a lady moose. Both moose had beards, so poor Choakes was reminded of King Leopold and himself and that futile conflict in the copse.

"Ah, moose!" he addressed them. "You are young and hot-blooded and little do you know that it is not worth it."

They did not understand him, being French-Canadian moose who had come down to the Adirondacks for the hunting season.

Choakes stepped forward and very gently untangled the antlers of the two moose, slapped them affectionately on their flanks and shooed them off in opposite directions. He then uprooted a small but sturdy spruce tree, and turning to the lady moose, knocked her unconscious. This was Choakes' method of getting even with Cleo de Merode.

He never shot any deer after that, but naturally he had to have some trophy to show his friends. Fortunately, he was very handy with a jigsaw and was quite a carpenter, so he took the necessary wood and whittled out as nice a pair of fake antlers as you ever saw. When he returned to New York his antlers were the envy of every hunter in the city, so perfect were they. Choakes grew inordinately fond of them and took to wearing them Sunday mornings on Fifth avenue, but he gave up after two or three hunters forgot themselves and sent bullets whizzing by him.

That was the beginning. From then on, every autumn, Choakes' jigsaw was in a constant state of animation and his library and den rapidly accumulated such a collection of "antlers" as New York had never seen.

I discovered his secret quite accidentally one night in Choakes' library when he and I were shouting at each other. He and I used to shout at each other for an hour or so three or four times a week, as we both led sedentary lives and got little exercise. Jarred by the vibration caused by the shouting, one of the antlers fell on Choakes' head with a sort of "p-p-p-kkkkk!" sound, which I knew immediately could be caused only by the impact of wood upon wood. I investigated, found that all his antlers were made of wood, and his confession followed.

"No deer will be safe," Choakes used to tell me, "until architects stop designing libraries filled with antlers."

"They never will," I said. "It's asking the impossible."

"In that case," said Choakes, "it is our duty, as lovers of the deer, to shoot all architects."

I shall say no more on THAT subject, but I suppose you people think Harry Thaw shot Stanford White. Ha, if you only knew who really did shoot White!

HOLIDAY

By Edna Ferber

IT HAD been raining for three days. It was rain, as much as anything, that caused the Cowans to decide on an Atlantic City holiday. That and Pa Cowan's bronchial cold and Evelyn's everlasting telephoning and Evelyn's children's noise and the state of irritability to which the whole family was reduced after three days of being cooped up. Six—not counting the girl—in a seven-room flat are likely to cut jagged edges in each other's nerves, even if they are a devoted family.

And the Cowans were a devoted family. They spoke of it often. "We're very devoted." They were always saying. "Let me do that," or "I'll go. You sit still," and "Here's a nice, juicy piece just looking at you. Don't you want it?" Naturally, they quarreled a good deal. Take, for example, Evelyn's telephoning. It was enough, Carrie said, to drive a stone image crazy. Still, before taking Evelyn's telephoning, it might be well to take the family, one by one.

There was Pa Cowan, 69; Ma Cowan, 65; Evelyn, the widowed daughter, 33; Evelyn's two children, Dorothy and Junior, aged 4 and 7 respectively, and Carrie Cowan, the unmarried daughter, aged—Carrie, the unmarried daughter. Not that Carrie seemed to mourn her maiden condition; nor was she reticent about her years. She was always the first to speak of these, and jokingly.

Evelyn, after her husband's death, had come home to live. It was hard, she told her friends, after you've lived in New York for nine years, and had your own things and everything to do with. Of course, she never said this in the presence of the family, except sometimes when Carrie was there.

Carrie went about almost exclusively with married people. She made a fourth at bridge or mah jong. She filled a last-minute vacancy at dinner. She had presented dozens of baby jackets, rattles and teething rings. She heard the innuendo of the married women in Evelyn's group. She cried gayly: "Not knocking anybody's husband, but I wouldn't change places with any of you." But within her, someone else cried out, "Oh, heaven!"

It wasn't as if Carrie hadn't had her chance. When she was 29 there had been a man, and an engagement, with everything announced, and Pa Cowan was going to take him into his business. Cotton goods. Then Pa had made some investigations, and the man was no longer seen. Ma Cowan said that Carrie had had a lucky escape. Strangely enough, it was hard to make Carrie see her luck. Red-eyed from weeping, she had said, over and over: "I don't care. I'd have married him anyway."

"Yes," Ma Cowan had retorted, "and been miserable the rest of your life."

"I'm miserable anyway."

"Not half as miserable as you would have been, if you'd married him."

"How do you know? Anyway, I'd have had"—— She stopped, and her face had twisted comically and tragically, and her hands had reached out, clutching after something that was slipping out of her life—forever.

Pa Cowan, spruce, a little tremulous, given to discussing the doings of the day at the dinner hour: "Seems nobody stays where they belong any more. Run, run, Florida, Bermuda, and I don't know where. Koch was saying today you can't get a sailing for Europe for love or money, and here it's January—the worst sailing on the Atlantic of the year."

PA COWAN wanted to go to Florida, Bermuda, and he didn't know where. Oh, how he wanted to sail on the Atlantic in January! Pa Cowan had always meant to live the life of a Robert Louis Stevenson hero, though he had never read R. L. S. But he had gone into the cotton goods business at 24, and there he was at 69. Another writer with whom he was unfamiliar was Mr. Thoreau, so he did not know that the line about most men living lives of quiet desperation was applicable to himself. He dreamed about ships and about the sea; about forests and tigers and mountains and beautiful maidens, blond and slim.

Ma Cowan was dark and heavy.

"Out alone, girlie?"

In the last 10 years the silvering of her hair had relieved the sallowness of her face. She had carried her weight well, but it always had distressed her, too. Ma Cowan, all unsuspected—perhaps even by herself—still had visions of herself transformed into a slim wisp of gold and cream and roses: a lily maid; a wraith, all flame and chiffon. This while she knew that her waist, even in a stylish stout, had never measured less than 40.

The Cowans lived in an old street that was beginning to grow shabby. Just around the corner you noted those harbingers of decay—undertakers' parlors, private hospitals, delicatessens.

Since her return to the parental roof, Evelyn was always urging her family to move to a new, fashionable suburb. Evelyn was secretly and fiercely ambitious for social prestige. She actually humbled herself to scrape acquaintance with people who might be of benefit to herself or to the children, Dorothy and Junior, 15 years hence.

"We've always been a very devoted family," said the Cowans. "We live for each other. . . . I'll go. . . . Don't you bother. . . Let me do that . . . Can I help you?"

"Come, Adventure," cried Pa Cowan, "before I die."

"Come, Beauty," cried Ma Cowan, "before it is too late!"

"Come, Love!" cried Carrie. "I am starving for want of you."

"Come, Power," cried Evelyn; "I have always dreamed of you."

EVEN in the summer, the Cowans stayed pretty close to home. It was so cool, and you could get to the beaches in a jiffy. Besides, years of thrift had made them cautious. But this Atlantic City jaunt of three days' duration had come about almost of itself. Rain, cough, snuffles, nerves, the children, Evelyn's telephoning.

In the last three days she had, it seemed to Ma Cowan and Carrie, said the same thing a hundred times, seated at the wobbly telephone table and jotting down meaningless figures and curlicues on the pad as she talked.

"Hello! . . . Yes. . . . Oh, hello, Daisy. I was just thinking of you. . . Oh, I'm fine, but the rest of the family's laid low. Colds. I'm keeping Junior home, because he has a little—(Dorothy, mother can't hear a word when you pound on the floor like that. Stop it, dear). . . . He has a little temperature, and I thought I'd just. . . What? What did you say? I couldn't catch that last—(Lover, take that out of sister's mouth this minute! You'll kill her.) . . . Aren't they terrible! . . . I wanted to get out to see the overblouses that—(Put that down! Put it down, mother said! Put it . . .") Crash! Wails. Tears.

Ma and Carrie had a conference. "If I have to stand much more of this, I'll be a raving maniac, that's all."

It was decided suddenly that Ma and Pa Cowan were to go away. Atlantic City. One of the girls would go with them. Evelyn, you go. No, you. It'll do you good. You need it more than I. No, I won't leave the children. You're with them too much, that's the trouble. The trouble with whom, please? Oh, nobody.

In the end, Carrie went. On Evelyn's face, as she stood in the doorway, waving them good-by, there was a look of anticipation. Carrie thought: "I'll bet she's going to give a party while we're gone. The girls in for luncheon—or even dinner, with the husbands, too, and that bachelor brother-in-law of Daisy's. And her own silver and china and linen unpacked for it."

THEY rumbled away in the taxi. Evelyn went into the house and began to telephone. Junior and Dorothy were drawing with colored crayons. "My angels," said Evelyn. "Mother's angels. It's brightening up. You can both go out, just as soon as it gets a little dryer. Hello! . . . Daisy? . . . Listen. The family's gone to Atlantic City . . ."

Pa Cowan, on a holiday, was no niggard. Seats in the parlor car. No stopping at one of the ramshackle side-street hotels, but at a fantastic rococo pile on the board walk itself. The doorman and attendants wore uniforms of French blue, with scarlet lapels and pipings and facings and gold buttons, and white gloves. They rather overawed Mr. and Mrs. Cowan, but they stimulated Carrie. Their backs were so flat and their waists so tapering and their buttons and gold braid glittered so.

Two bedrooms, connecting, with a bath for each, and you could see the ocean from both of them. There was cretonne. There were dressing table lamps, with pert silken shades, and a queer ventilator over the door and push buttons labeled Maid, Waiter, Valet. A rush of exhilaration shook the three as the women unpacked.

From Pa Cowan: "Well, I think you ought to stop fussing over those valises and get out. That's what we came for. I'll meet you downstairs. And don't be all day."

"I'm too dark for orchid."

"I used to wear it, when I was your age. I had a waist, time I was engaged, trimmed with this passementerie across here in a kind of yoke—that was when they wore basques"——

"Oh, come on! I got a notion to go on by myself, if you don't stop gawping in front of every window you see."

It was queer how remote the ocean seemed. You hardly noticed it.

They had luncheon and walked back to their hotel. The old man abandoned his springy stride. He was frankly weary, as was his wife. The Madeira embroidery and the souvenirs and the kimonos and the new spring models were much less interesting a second time.

"We'll take a chair this afternoon," said Ma Cowan. "I've done all the walking I want for one day."

"Call this a walk!" scoffed Pa Cowan. But his eyes looked fagged.

"I certainly do. And I'm going to have a nap, and so are you. It wouldn't hurt you to lie down, Carrie."

Carrie shook her head. "I'm going to sit on the porch in the sun. Why don't you lie down in my room and Pa in yours? You'll rest better."

They separated, to meet again at 3:30. From 3:30 until 5 up and down in a chair, almost to the inlet and back. And beyond, the flat, blue-gray expanse that was the ocean.

"A good black velvet's always good."

CARRIE cut loose a bit and ordered hors-d'oeuvres of sea food, braised celery, shad roe, chocolate meringue. "Things I don't get at home." But Ma and Pa were cautious. They ordered accustomed dishes. The old man had scant chance to do otherwise. For years a chronic ailment had made sweets, starches and red meats forbidden delights to him. Sometimes he rebelled.

"Now you know you can't touch that stuff," Ma would caution him. "It's poison for you."

But she was firm. "You know who'll suffer for it. You're like a child."

The old man and old woman and the spinster daughter slept very well. But they awoke at their accustomed hour and could not sleep again.

The day stretched empty ahead of them. Walk. Wheel chair. Windows. Some shopping. Madeira embroidery, post cards, salt-water taffy.

Mrs. Cowan stopped again before the window full of pink and rose and orchid crepe de chine. "That orchid set is lovely."

"Well, I don't see"—— said Carrie vaguely. The truth is, she was bored. So was Ma Cowan bored. So was Pa Cowan bored. Bored with Atlantic City, with the Madeira embroidery, with each other; with walking; with riding in wheel chairs; with the flat blue-gray ocean.

Lunch? Pa Cowan didn't think he'd eat any. No, he felt all right. But he had had breakfast at 9, instead of at his accustomed hour of 7:30. He had eaten two eggs. The man had brought him two. Simply wasn't hungry, that's all. No use stuffing yourself, if you're not hungry.

"Do you want to sit with us, while we eat? Ma and I'll have a sandwich and a cup of tea in one of these tea-rooms."

No, he didn't think so. There was an exhibit up the walk that he wanted to take in. Showed how they made Happy Days cigarettes. Not a hand touched 'em. Everything by machinery—rolling, packing, labeling—everything. He turned to go.

"WE-E-ELL," said Ma Cowan doubtfully. "You sure you feel all right?"

"Never felt better in my life. See you later." He was off briskly. On a window, in raised lettering, he read, "Sea Food, Steaks, Chops." In the window, nestling in crisp lettuce, Pa Cowan saw the red and white of forbidden foods. He entered.

"Um—bring me a steak," he said to the waitress. "Cut thick." He indicated a surprising thickness with thumb and forefinger.

"That's what we call an extra steak," said the girl. "Cost you a dollar and a half."

"I didn't ask what it would cost," retorted Old Man Cowan testily. "An order of French fried. Got some lima beans? All right. With butter. Cup of coffee. Afterwards you can bring me a piece of that cake I saw up front. Uh, make it a pot of coffee, you'd better."

As he munched the forbidden food, he resembled, in a startling degree, a naughty boy, his eyes darting here and there, as though, even in this remote corner, he was not safe from Ma's watchful scrutiny. He devoured all the monstrous meal. He glanced carelessly at his check and left an almost ostentatious tip for the girl. He felt rakish, free, expansive, wicked.

HE EMERGED from the portals of sin satisfied, and went to the hotel. The room reached, Ma Cowan was not there. Neither was Carrie. On the sun porch, probably. He was drowsy in spite of the unaccustomed coffee. He settled himself for a nap. As he dozed off, he had the queer idea that weights of iron had settled themselves on his chest.

He had been right about Carrie. Supine in a steamer chair, Carrie lay in the sunshine on the veranda. She was thinking: "I suppose this is doing me good. Good—for what? Suppose it is! Then what? . . . I wish . . . No wonder Evelyn's so nice to Daisy, with that brother-in-law. . . . Poor Ev. A pretty bum time she has, lumped in with us. . . . I'll be glad to get back tomorrow. What's Ma doing? Sleeping? . . . I'll be old, too, in a few years, and I've never lived a minute."

She shut her eyes, but not in sleep.

Down in the baths—separate departments for men and women—Ma Cowan, red of face, was seated in an electric bath cabinet, her head sticking out of the hole in the top, for all the world like a guillotine victim on exhibition. The attendant, a plump, dark-haired, eye-glassed woman, was leaning against the cabinet, watching its temperature indicator. She had seen these stout old women go off into a faint when they weren't used to bath cabinets.

"You'd better come out now," said the attendant. She wrapped Ma Cowan in a sheet and the treatment proceeded. Scrubbing, hosing, shower, massage. Ma Cowan bulked huge on the table. The treatment ended, she was weighed. "I've lost half a pound," and she stepped down from the scales, shaking the room.

Up in her room she found Pa. He was asleep and breathing stertorously. She lay down in Carrie's room, feeling delightfully drowsy. She thought of the orchid crepe de chine set in her suit case.

Carrie, coming in at 5, found them both asleep. Pa had actually to be shaken before he could be roused. Both of them, as the lights were turned on, looked queer. Ma's face was very red, and she said she felt one of her headaches coming on. Pa's face was drawn and strangely yellow, and had a greenish tinge.

"Don't you feel well?" the two women asked him.

"Sure. Why shouldn't I? Slept too long, I guess. Foolish. Come to Atlantic City and then sleep your time away."

At dinner he looked queerer than ever. Ma Cowan looked queer, too. "I'm just going to have a plate of soup," she said. "My head's beginning."

No one suggested a picture. They sat in the lounge.

"Weather's getting rough," said the elevator attendant, looking like a glorified Coldstream Guard.

Carrie went into her room. She heard her mother moving about. She opened the connecting door and stood in the doorway. As she did so, her mother thrust something hastily out of sight.

"My land, you scared me. I didn't hear you come in." She was in kimono and slippers. She nodded toward the bed. "He's sleeping again. He was asleep when I came in; it's only 10 o'clock." The old man was breathing heavily.

"Out of doors so much," said Carrie vaguely. "Good night." She shut the door. Once in bed, she was conscious of listening to something like a slow and regular drum beat. The sea. Boom. Boom. Boom. Surging that fused with her heart.

THEN she got up and dressed. When the door of the elevator was flung open, she was afraid to face the surprise of the blue and gold and scarlet Coldstream Guard. But he found nothing unusual in the sight of this plain woman, bound for a walk at 11 at night.

"Out for a nightcap?" said this splendid creature.

"Nightcap?"

"Yeh. 'S what we call a late stroll?"

"Oh, yes," said Carrie.

She walked a mile, happily. She turned, came back. Her cheeks felt fresh and cool, as though color had been whipped into them. Her eyes felt bright.

"Cer'nly is some foggy night," said a voice beside her. A man's voice. He laughed, a little uncertainly. A tall man. Broad-shouldered. A rakish cap pulled down over his eyes. A great overcoat.

"Out alone, girlie?"

"Yes. I came out for a little nightcap."

"That's a new one." He laughed appreciatively. His shoulder just touched her arm. She did not move away. "That's a great little idea, I'll say."

"Nobody else seems to have thought of it," said Carrie. "I hardly met a soul."

"Afraid of the fog, I guess. I like it. The foggier the better. Give me a foggy night and a strange road and my car and I'm happy."

"Oh, I don't know about driving in the fog'" How easy it was, this conversation. His car. He probably didn't have one. Just talk.

"Like to try it?"

"Try it? How do you mean?"

"Take a little run tonight. I know a little place between here and Philly where we can get something"——

She felt a little breathless.

"Say, that hat's got me stumped. How can I tell whether you're a blonde or a brunette, with that hat down over your head like that?"

Carrie laughed. "Which do you like?"

"Brunette," said the man.

CARRIE pulled off her hat and laughed up at him, her head thrown back, her face sparkling. "I aim to please," she retorted. Suddenly, swiftly, the man kissed her. A long kiss. And Carrie's mind, working clearly, said: "So this is it. Well, I don't even like it. It feels as if I had fallen, face down, into a plate of wet sausages."

She jerked herself free.

"You're not sore, are you, girlie?"

"No."

"Come on, take a ride with me in the fog. A nightcap."

"Where's your car?"

"In the garage. If you'll wait for me at the foot of this street"——

"I'll come to the garage with you."

She was not at all clear in her mind as to her course of action. Not that it mattered. Too careful all her life, that was the trouble with her.

"Taking the bus out," she heard him say to one of the men. "How's she fixed for gas?" She could not hear what the garage man was saying.

She was not at all clear in her mind as to her course of action. Not that it mattered. Too careful all her life, that was the trouble with her.

"Taking the bus out," she heard him say to one of the men. "How's she fixed for gas?" She could not hear what the garage man was saying.

"Shut up!" said the other, and climbed into the driver's seat.

As she saw this, terror possessed Carrie; and, with terror, reason returned to her. Without a backward glance, Carrie turned, flew, flew up the street to the board walk.

Her room was flooded with light. So was the room beyond. Her mother was standing in the middle of the room. She was looking very wild and old and vast. A strange man, cool and competent, stood at the bedside.

"Your father! I thought he was dying. I don't know what—I woke up and heard him breathing funny"—— She regarded Carrie piercingly. "Where've you been, Carrie Cowan? This time of night! And your father almost dying!"

Carrie took off her hat. Her cheeks were pink. "I couldn't sleep. I took a walk. I"—— Terror shook her. She went to the bed. An old, old man looked up at her with eyes that had known recent and terrible anguish. "Pa! Pa! You all right now?" She felt a rush of tenderness toward him, so yellow and frail and suffering. The old man nodded; even attempted to smile.

"I'm fine. Never better. Must have et something didn't agree with me; that's all."

"It's those two eggs," said Ma Cowan, "for breakfast." He looked at her gratefully.

The strange man finished writing on a little pad.

"Can we go home tomorrow?" inquired Ma Cowan fearfully. "Will he be able?"

"I think so. I'll look in at about 10 tomorrow morning."

He was gone. The old woman came to the bedside, put one plump hand on the lean shoulder under the bedclothes. "You scared my headache away," she said. She turned to where Carrie stood. "Crazy thing for you to do. Run out at this hour of the night. What possessed you?"

The old man stirred in the bed. The old woman put a hand to her head absently, as though the headache had not, after all, quite vanished.

By 3 the next day they were home, these holiday seekers. Evelyn welcomed them. The children, Dorothy and Junior, fell upon their balloons and post cards and salt-water taffy with shouts and boundings. Evelyn, called to the telephone, could hardly hear for the noise.

"Hello. . . . Oh, it's you, Daisy. . . . Yes, it was nice. I'm glad you enjoyed it. . . . Uh, not now. Not now. Yes, they're just back. . . . They say they had a fine time. (Junior, you oughtn't to eat that taffy, with your brace. You'll break it.) . . . Oh, well, I suppose they didn't do anything they couldn't do at home, but it's the—(Sister, you mustn't sit on Lover's balloon. No. No. NO, I say!) . . She's sitting on Junior's balloon, and I just know. . . . I was saying it's the change that does you good. I don't care about Atlantic myself. Just the ocean and taffy and post cards and those hotels and Madeira embroid—— (There! I knew it! Don't cry now. It won't do you any good to cry now. Mother warned you.") and was hailed by the discerning as the successor to John Audubon, the American naturalist and bird painter.

It was at about this time that Fuertes came under the influence of Dr. Frank Michler Chapman, a scientist of distinction and since 1908 Curator of Ornithology at the American Museum of Natural History. Together the two men went on a trip which took them from British Columbia down to the Magdalena River in South America, traversing thousands of miles, enduring all manner of hardships together, studying and painting birds. A friendship which was to endure until death sprang up between the two men. Doctor Chapman, 10 years Fuertes' senior, besides being a distinguished scientist, was a man of culture, and hence able to appreciate Fuertes' great talent as an artist, in addition to his solid knowledge as an ornithologist. On the other hand, Fuertes came to attach great respect and value to the older man's opinions. He came to regard Doctor Chapman much as a young man regards a much-admired older brother. In the 20 years that followed their first friendship, Fuertes, despite his recognized position as a scientist and artist, never failed to turn to Doctor Chapman for judgment, and in all those years every sketch or painting which Fuertes made was invariably submitted to Doctor Chapman for approval before the public could look upon it. Theirs was a deep and rare friendship, and there is no little amount of irony in the fact that it was an indirect contribution to Fuertes' death, for it was while returning from a visit to Doctor Chapman's summer home in the Catskills, where Fuertes and his wife had gone to show him the painter's most recent work, that the fatal accident occurred.

Until two years ago Fuertes had received all the honors and rewards that his position as an ornithologist and a painter had merited. He had been commissioned to paint certain of the bird habitat groups of the Museum of Natural History which are characterized in the New International Encyclopedia as "one of the most attractive features of the institution." His paintings had appeared in a score of volumes dealing with bird life. His murals were hanging in the New York State Museum at Albany and on the walls of the New York Zoological Society. Nor were scientific societies alone interested in his decorations. He painted the murals for the Flamingo Hotel at Miami and did 25 paintings of water fowl and shore birds to adorn the mansion of F. F. Brewster of New Haven. And in 1922 he had been appointed lecturer on ornithology at Cornell University, where his studio became a Mecca for scientists, artists, students, professors, alumni and worshipful Boy Scouts, all of whom found him a friendly and interesting host.

During all this time, however, there remained one ambition which Fuertes had not been able to realize. He had illustrated many books and had lectured extensively on birds, but he had never yet written a book and illustrated it, too. And finally, two years ago, the opportunity to realize this ambition came to him. He was commissioned by various scientific societies, including the Field Museum of Chicago, to visit Africa and there secure the pictures and the text for a volume on the birds of Abyssinia. And Fuertes gladly embraced the opportunity.

After due preparation, the expedition reached Africa and Fuertes set out for the interior. He penetrated some 1500 miles into the Dark Continent, passing with great difficulty and danger over mountains and through jungles until he reached his objective—a remote settlement far from the sea coast, containing no more than 20 people, white and black. And just as he was about to set to work he discovered that the boxes containing his paint, brushes, canvases and drawing materials had been left behind in America on a Brooklyn dock! It was a hard blow, but not enough to discourage Fuertes. He had acquired that patience which characterizes all good scientists and artists, and particularly the men who often sit for hours in uncomfortable positions only to make close observation of a bird or animal. Undaunted, Fuertes systematically ransacked every nook and corner of the tiny village, and he was finally rewarded by discovering a small box of water colors, such as children use to play with. But what in the hands of a child is a toy, in the hands of an artist can be made to serve a good and useful purpose. Fuertes next obtained a pad of paper receptive to water color and collected all the stray pieces of stiff paper he could find. Without giving a thought to the scantiness of his materials, Fuertes, accompanied by his native guides, plunged into the wilderness.

Day after day, Fuertes labored at his task. Without any of the comforts of civilization, enduring many hardships and privations and equipped with the crudest materials for a work which required exactness and the greatest accuracy of detail, he stalked his birds in the wilderness, painted them and recorded his observations. It was a Herculean task such as no ordinary inspiration could accomplish. While his equipment was gathering dust in a Brooklyn warehouse, Fuertes was slowly and painstakingly achieving his purpose. At the end of 18 months he emerged from the jungle, the triumphant possessor of the manuscript for his book and with almost 40 paintings of bird life in color. His crude materials had long been exhausted, but he brought back with him specimens of all the birds which he had been sent to obtain. He had won a victory against overwhelming odds.

Last August, shortly after his return to the United States, Fuertes and his wife went to spend the week-end at Ontero Park, near Tannersville, New York, the summer home of his friend, Doctor Chapman. With him the artist brought his manuscript and his paintings, modestly offering them to his friend for criticism. Doctor Chapman read the manuscript, studied the paintings and was enthusiastic in his praise of both. He pronounced the work as Fuertes' greatest achievement. That was high praise, indeed, and coming from the Curator of Ornithology at the American Museum of Natural History, it was the judgment of a skilled and discerning critic. It was a happy week-end for Mr. and Mrs. Fuertes. And Doctor and Mrs. Chapman, their son and the son's wife, found as much pleasure in their friend's successful work and in the animated discussion of it as if it had been their very own.

Shortly before noon on the morning of August 22, Fuertes and his wife, after exchanging affectionate farewells with the Chapman family, entered their automobile and drove away. Half an hour later they came to a railroad crossing at Tannersville. A train was approaching and several cars had pulled up at the roadside to let it pass. For some unexplained reason, Fuertes, unmindful of the danger, continued on his way. The machine was struck by the locomotive and hurled into a ditch. Mrs. Fuertes was thrown clear of the wreck and escaped without serious injury, but her husband was dragged from the burning car only to die a few minutes later by the roadside.

Occupants of the other machines hurried to the wreck to offer what assistance they could. They quickly seized the suitcases of clothing and placed them out of reach of the gasoline flames that were consuming the wrecked car. Then a man, whose identity still remains unknown, happened to observe amidst the wreckage a crudely-wrapped package inclosed in strawboard, already scorched by the spreading flames. Twice the stranger tried to retrieve the bundle, but each time the terrific heat repulsed him. The third time, shielding his eyes from the heat, he rushed up to the burning mass and succeeded in getting the bundle. Then he placed it by the roadside among the surrounding spectators. He did not know that that bundle contained the manuscript and illustrations for Fuertes' masterpiece, "Abyssinian Birds," and he probably does not know today that he has rendered a great service to the science of ornithology.

And thus, ironically enough, it has remained for a stranger to preserve to posterity Louis Fuertes' last and greatest work, and to be, unknowingly, the means of adding posthumous glory to the name of America's greatest portrait painter of birds.

and Mrs. Chapman, their son and the son's wife, found as much pleasure in their friend's successful work and in the animated discussion of it as if it had been their very own.

Shortly before noon on the morning of August 22, Fuertes and his wife, after exchanging affectionate farewells with the Chapman family, entered their automobile and drove away. Half an hour later they came to a railroad crossing at Tannersville. A train was approaching and several cars had pulled up at the roadside to let it pass. For some unexplained reason, Fuertes, unmindful of the danger, continued on his way. The machine was struck by the locomotive and hurled into a ditch. Mrs. Fuertes was thrown clear of the wreck and escaped without serious injury, but her husband was dragged from the burning car only to die a few minutes later by the roadside.

Occupants of the other machines hurried to the wreck to offer what assistance they could. They quickly seized the suitcases of clothing and placed them out of reach of the gasoline flames that were consuming the wrecked car. Then a man, whose identity still remains unknown, happened to observe amidst the wreckage a crudely-wrapped package inclosed in strawboard, already scorched by the spreading flames. Twice the stranger tried to retrieve the bundle, but each time the terrific heat repulsed him. The third time, shielding his eyes from the heat, he rushed up to the burning mass and succeeded in getting the bundle. Then he placed it by the roadside among the surrounding spectators. He did not know that that bundle contained the manuscript and illustrations for Fuertes' masterpiece, "Abyssinian Birds," and he probably does not know today that he has rendered a great service to the science of ornithology.

And thus, ironically enough, it has remained for a stranger to preserve to posterity Louis Fuertes' last and greatest work, and to be, unknowingly, the means of adding posthumous glory to the name of America's greatest portrait painter of birds.

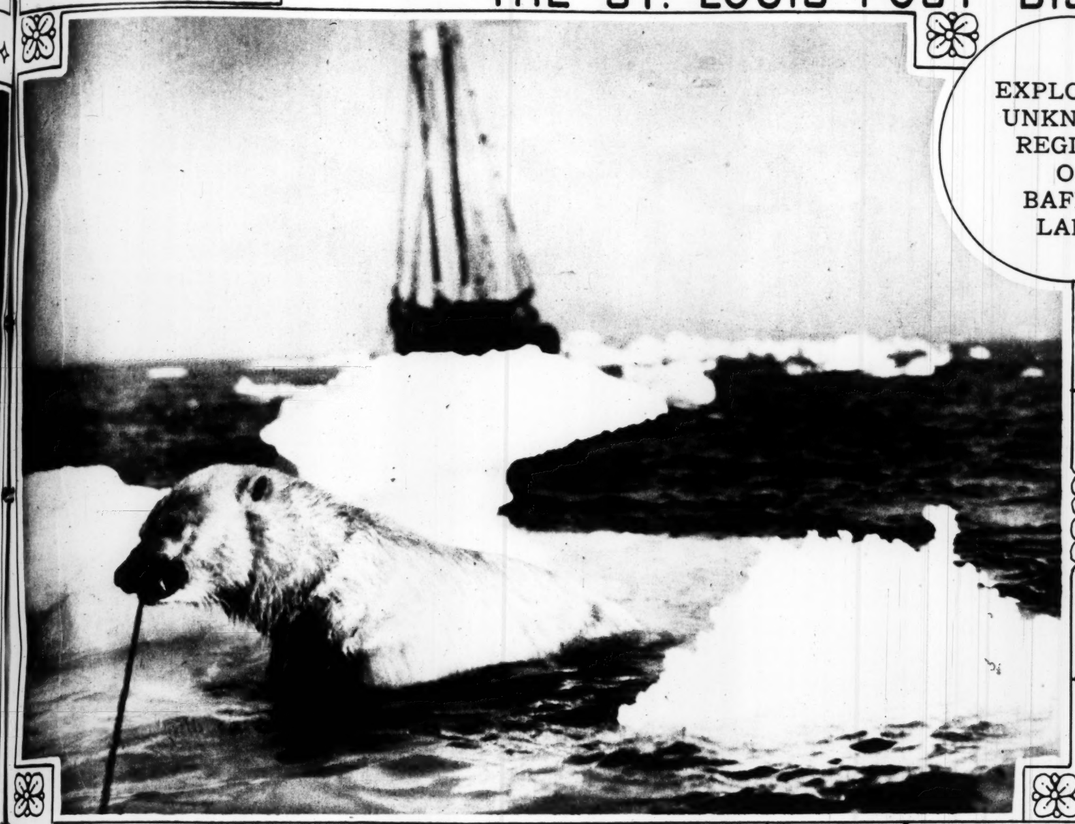
EXPLORING UNKNOWN REGIONS OF BAFFIN LAND



The king of polar waters at bay. A lassoed bear endeavors to bite in twain the rope which has tightened around his neck. The photographs on this page were taken by the George Haven Putnam expedition to the Far North.

When the expedition's ship was pinched in the ice pack, bending propellor and tail shaft, the crew was forced to beach the schooner so reserve shaft and screw could be installed.

Summer sleeping quarters. The Eskimo member of the party, each night, made himself a bed in the open, piling up slabs of rock to serve as a windbreak.

A temporary shelter for the night. A small boat, oars, rocks, and small sails were utilized to provide a sleeping place when the expedition was storm-bound on Fox Land.

Dentists urging NEW-FOUND WAY to tooth beauty and adequate protection against tooth and gum disorders

ORDINARY brushing does not successfully remove dull film from teeth; the film to which science attributes most "off-color" teeth and many serious tooth and gum disorders.

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel that film—a slippery sort of coating. It absorbs discolorations. It clings to teeth and breeds germs. It is the basis of tartar. And germs, with tartar, are the cause of pyorrhea.

If your teeth are not film clear and sparkling, your present way of cleansing probably is failing you. Film must be removed.

Send for 10-Day Free Tube

For that purpose, get the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent that most dentists urge. It's different from all other tooth pastes. A recent scientific discovery.

It removes the film and hardens the gums to healthy coral tint. It gives teeth thorough cleanliness and high polish. It acts, too, to multiply the alkalinity of the saliva to combat the acids of decay. And thus meets modern dental requirements.

Use twice each day—at morning and at night. Learn what film-free teeth mean to your smile. Get Pepsodent at drug store. Or send coupon for 10-day trial tube.

LIGHT O' DAY—the amazing new fabric achievement by Butterfield—is ready to lend its rare, colorful beauty to your new Autumn frocks. Its super-threads, its costly weaving, give this remarkable fabric a rich "bloom" which makes every color lovelier. And the prints! Wee ones that will go to kindergartens; splashy, daring ones that will make the loveliest negligees; demure ones that will be worn with utmost chic on the street. You will love to sew on—as well as to wear—Light o' day. It's so marvelously soft in finish, it drapes so flatteringly. It does not crush, or cling. It will not curl, or work up. Go to your favorite store—see Light o' day. Feel it. Then, ask its price! We believe that you'll order it for every sort of Autumn and Winter frock—that its luminous pastel tints and pure, permanent white will inspire you into making all sorts of exquisite underthings! Made by Fred Butterfield & Co., Inc., 361 Broadway, N. Y. C.—who make the famous Normandy Voile and Lingette.

Teeth may shine like tinted pearls

STILL . . .

Too often, all seems so safe because teeth gleam in their natural whiteness. Then suddenly Pyorrhea swoops down on the unwary.

Clean teeth still gleam. But gums break down and Pyorrhea poison gets in its deadly work. It sweeps through the system destroying precious health and leaving in its wake a trail of havoc, often causing such disorders as stomach trouble, anemia, nervousness, neuritis. And beauty vanishes with lost health.

As the penalty for neglect, 4 out of 5 after forty and thousands younger pay Pyorrhea s high price.

These Odds Can Be Bettered—Easily

For safety's sake, protect your gums as well as your teeth. Visit your dentist regularly. Have him examine your teeth and gums. And start using Forhan's for the Gums, today.

As a dentifrice alone you would prefer Forhan's. Without the use of harsh abrasives it easily restores teeth to their natural whiteness and protects them against acids which cause decay.

In addition, if used regularly and in time, it helps to keep gums sound and healthy and so safeguards precious health against the attack of dread Pyorrhea.

This dentifrice is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., for many years a Pyorrhea specialist. It is compounded with the correct percentage of Forhan's Pyorrhea Liquid, used by dentists in the treatment of Pyorrhetic conditions.

Play Safe

It is folly to wait for danger signs, for gums to bleed and recede from teeth, or for teeth to loosen in their sockets. A little care now will protect teeth and gums and preserve good health in the years to come. Start using Forhan's for the Gums regularly, morning and night. At all druggists—in tubes, 35c and 60c. Forhan Company, New York.

Formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S.

If gums bleed easily, if they are tender, apply Forhan's. With the index finger vigorously rub with a circular motion the upper gums, both inside and out, until they feel invigorated. Then massage lower gums. Do this regularly and gums will soon become firm and sound.

With your thumb and forefinger massage the gums both inside and out and the roof of the mouth as well. Massage until you feel the pleasant tingle of increased blood circulation.

Your gums should always look like this — even, sound and healthy. Keep them so by exercising them. Twice daily, massage them with Forhan's for the Gums—the dentifrice that safeguards the health of the gums and cleanses teeth.

We Were Right. More and more people are realizing the importance of oral hygiene. Every morning and every night, they use Forhan's Antiseptic Refreshant. It protects mouth, nose and throat from infection. It keeps breath sweet and fresh. It is safe, effective and pleasant. Try it.
